PAY THE PRINTER.

STATE OF DR. HUMM.—The Doctor

for at one time to attend an unfortunate thief, who, in helping himself from a laborer's wood pile, had been tripped up by a line attached to a spring gun, which gun thereupon went off, wounding the prostrate rogue very sadly. "It was a very remarkable case," said the Doctor, "and I think the only one on record of a man's coming so near losing his life by a trip to the springs."

WISCONSIN LIME.—It has been discovered

recently that the pebbles on the shores of the Four Lakes in Wisconsin furnish a lime equal to the best Louisville pebble lime for any kind of finish or cement, and is not surpassed in point of whiteness, gloss and beauty for the finish of the finest work. Mr. Wilcox intended plastering the Capitol at Madison with this beautiful article.

Agricultural.

OIL FROM CORN.—In the baleful process of distilling good honest corn into bad whiskey, we are glad to learn there is one beneficial result obtained—the production of a superior kind of lamp oil. This fact has only lately been known to distillers. The process of gathering the oil is very simple. After the "mash" has fermented as usual, and nearly settled again, the oil rises on the top, and may be skimmed off at the rate of about one quart to each bushel of corn mashed. The mash must be entirely of corn, or the oil will not rise. The article thus produced, burns beautifully clear, is very durable, and is afforded at the West, where it is manufactured, at about $1 25 per gallon, at retail. The Germans on the banks of the Wabash in Indiana, instead of throwing away or giving to the pigs, the seeds of their pumpkins, as usually done, make an oil from them which they use for all the purposes of lamp oil and olive oil. One gallon of seed gives about half a gallon of oil.—They are pressed like flaxseed.

POTATOE PUDDING.—Take eight ounces of boiled potatoes, two ounces of butter, the yolks and whites of two eggs, a quarter of a pint of cream, one spoonful of white wine, a little salt, the juice and rind of a lemon; beat all to froth and sugar to taste.—Saturday Courier.

...of there were as many haunted houses and wonderful things seen in the neighborhood as in former times. He answered very seriously and with a long sigh that there was, and unfortunately for him, his family was deprived of the best room in the house by a man that had been murdered there for his money many years before.
 I remembered the circumstances well, for I had heard my grandfather tell over and over again of persons getting frightened, and horses running away and dashing through the woods and throwing their riders, from the awful phantoms appearing in the road before them.
 My father smiled and told him that he was very sorry for their disturbance, and regretted exceedingly to hear that the unfortunate man had not yet gone to rest, for that he had long since come to the conclusion that the grave was the resting place from our labors. Indeed says the landlady, "I am convinced that we see more trouble after death than before, for that poor man is wandering about at all times of the night, and is the most frightful looking object I have ever seen." "Then I suppose you have seen him have you?" "Yes, that I have, for not more than one month ago, I had to sleep in the room that he visits, on account of having our other rooms filled with company and I was frightened until I fainted, and I would not go into the room again for the world.
 I told the landlady that I would like to see him, and she told me that I could see him by sleeping in the room, but she would advise me not to do so for I should certainly be frightened to death; I told her that I would try it, and as I was much fatigued, I would retire early, and accordingly I was shown into the room. Father then took his pistols and placed them under the head of the bed and then blew out the candle and went to bed.
 I lay awake some time thinking about what I was to see, and even went so far as to think over what I would do if he should appear.
 At length I turned my eyes towards the foot of the bed, and horrible to relate, there stood something in human form, with the most horrible bloody face, and most distorted features that the human mind is capable of conceiving.
 I raised myself in the bed and thought that I would awaken my father, call for a light and leave the room, and then again I knew that they would laugh at me, for I had made light of the subject, and my pride was greater than my courage, and I determined live or die, sooner than be laughed at I would risk the consequences, and I felt for the pistols which
