

From the Washington Union. ENDURANCE. BY ROBERT JOSSELYN. 'Tis bitter to enduse the wrong Which evil hands and tongues commit, The bold encroachments of the strong. The shafts of calumny and wit; The scornful bearing of the proud, The sneers and laughter of the crowd.

And harder still it is to bear The censure of the good and wise, Who, ignorant of what what you are, Or blinded by the slanderer's hes, Look coldly on, or pass you by In silence, with avoited oye.

But, when the friends in whom you trust Was steadfast as the mountain rock Fly, and are scattered like the dust. Before misfortune's whirlwind shock ; Nor love remains to cheer your fall? This is more terrible than all.

But, even this and these--ay more, Can be endured, and hope survive ; The noble spirit still may soar, Although the body fails to thrive ; Disease and want may wear the frame-Thank God ! the soul is still the same.

Hold up your head, then, man of grief, Nor longer to the tempest bend ; Or soon or late must come relief ; The coldest, darkest night, will end, Hope in the true heart never dies ! Trust on- the day-star yet shall rise.

Conscious of purity and worth, You may with calm assurance wait The tirdy recompense of earth; And, e'en should justice come too late To sooth the spirit's homeward flight, Still Heaven, at last, the wrong shall right. Holly Springs, (Miss,) Nov., 1815.
