Cumberland Academy is situated in the Northern part of Cumberland county, on the road leading from Fayes te-ville to Raleigh by Atkins's Ferry and about midway from either place. The location is distinguished for health, surrounded by a good neighborhood, and is removed from the temptations often prevailing in large towns to the de-triment of a School. The Trustees are in the process of erecting buildings, which they intend shall be competent to all the purposes of the kind of institution contemplated It will also be furnished with such helps in the instruction as the character of the School may require. A new and commolious house for boarding is nearly completed, which together with the buildings now ready, will furnish ample accommodations for such as may be disposed to attend the School. The boarding establishment will be under the direction of sir Hugh Mel.ean, who with his mother, long acquainted with such business, will do everything that can be reasonably expected to make the condi-tion of their boarders comfortable.

The price of board including washing and lodging is six delives per month. Students lodging in Academy buildings, will be charged for the use of rooms and furniture, one dollar and twenty five cents per Quarter, or five dollars per annum. Other Students will be charged twenty-five cents per quarter, or one dollar per year, for con-

States been counted, and that Zachary Taylor and Milshall vouchsafe them the mercy and consideration lard Fillmore have been duly elected President to provide them a government."

The Louisville Chronicle, a whig paper, says that Mr Clay was forced upon the State as Senator. Or in other words, the friends of General journed. Taylor were opposed to his election, although they did not, as a body, openly combine to do it. They fear he will oppose Gen. Taylor's administration; or rather, try to rule it, and oppose it if it will not be ruled by him.

30TH CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

February 12. of the Constitution, which article says that fugitives from labor, escaping into other States, labor is due. This is the right way to get at the his left. business. Some of the non-slaveholding States have made laws to prevent the owner from rethe difficulties attending an attempt to regain one, are such that it is rarely made.

Now, here is a plain provision of the Constitugoing to introduce a bill to enforce it. We marvel that such a bill has not long ago been agitated in Congress, but at last we shall see whether it can find favor enough to go through both Houses. We predict, (now mark it) that there will be found southern men (under some plea or other) to vote against it.

The civil and diplomatic appropriation bill was then taken up, and a number of amendments proposed. Mr Badger opposed the amendment which had been tacked on by the House, to abolish whipping in the Navy. He opposed it on the ground of the imprepriety of abolishing such a law. He thought if the end to be accomplished were desirable, a bil! for the express purpose should be introduced and passed. Mr Hale replied to Mr Badger, and most eloquently clead the cause of the sailor. He did not believe in the doctrine put forth by gentlemen that there must be punishment of some sort in the Navy to preseve discipline. He pointed to the example of Wm. Penn, the man of peace, who went with his followers and settled among the savages of Pennsylvania, without arms or means of punishing the savages, and although Europeans hooted at the idea. Penn succeeded with the Indians by mild and gentle means. He asked if the American sailors were worse than the savages of the

Mr Badger rejoined, still advocating the nement in some sensible remarks. He said if the Senator was so desirous of abolishing corporeal punishment, let him make a general matter of it as to the Navy.

Mr Benton said, that although in favor of abolishing whipping, he must oppose this mode of arriving at the object. The question was taken, and 17 voted for the amendment abolishing whipping, and 32 against appropriation bill. The debate was of no general interest.

In the House, much of the session was devoted to the discussion of a motion by Mr Ashmun to correct a portion of the journal of the preceding day's proceedings; which was not agred to. The committees were then called on for reports, and many resolutions, bills, adverse reports, and motions for discharging committees, were reported and disposed of; after which the House proceeded to the consideration of business on the Speak er's table-communications from the executive departments, bills from the Senate, &c., which occupied their attention until the hour of ad-

The Vice President then opened the certificate of the State of Maine, and said, "I now open and present to the tellers chosen by the two Houses, the certificate transmitted by the electors of the State of Maine, that the votes therein recorded may be counted '

Mr Jefferson Davis then proceeded to read the certificate, and the vote reported was registered by the tellers in duplicate lists.

The tellers having read, counted, and registered the votes of the electors of the thirty States, and compared their duplicate lists, delivered the same to the Vice President, who announced the following as the report of the tellers:

For Zachary Taylor 163 votes. 127 " For Lewis Cass For Millard Fillmore 127 For Wm. O. Butler

The Vice President then said: "I therefore declare that Zachary Taylor, of the State of Louisiana, having received the greatest number of votes for President of the United States, and that number being a majority of the whole number of electors, is duly elected President of the United States for four years, commencing on the 4th of March, 1849.
