surveying a route from a point four or five miles above Spout Spring, (say about twenty-three miles above Fayetteville,) by Bryan's Cross Roads, to Gilimore's or Evans's Bridge on Deep River. This route I would represent as far more Bridge, From the point proposed, above Spout would command a large amount of travel that travel through Pittshorough and the most wealthy and productive parts of Chatham and Orange. It would also be the direct route from Fayetteville to Chapel Hill and Hillsborough; while the lower route would command all the travel that and would penetrate in its course a much more productive country than the other; and in addition to all this, the proposed route leads through an extensive region of country well adapted to the production of turpentine, and is worked to some extent already, and would be worked to a considerable extent if the people had the advan-

I therefore must suggest to you the propriety tageous that can be adopted, for connecting Fayetteville with the coal region on Deep River. and the most wealthy and productive portion of
