From the Raleigh Standard. HON. A. W. VENABLE.

A late number of the Fayetteville Observer contains the following:

" Hon. A. W. Venable. - The fear of defeat by Mr Graves has induced this gentleman to come out from the disunionists and avow himself a real "submissionist." We learn from the Milton Chronicle that he declared in his speech in Granville a few days before the election, that he " would unconditionally abide by the Compromise"_" that he would do nothing to destroy it "-" that he would stand twelve thousand popular majority in thirty-six by the Union upon the terms of the Compromise."

Of course Mr Venable will be at once denounced by his Locofoco brethren as a "traitor to the South." At any rate, he deserves to be, for moved by the pattry considerations of a seat in Congress and eight dollars a day, he has avowed his de-South."

Now, we have the best authority for pronouncing the above statement of the Observer wholly destitute of truth. Mr Venable never made any such declaration in any Speech delivered in Granville, or elsewhere. On the contrary, he distinctly and emphatically declared on all occasions during the campaign, that of the measures of "adjustment" he voted only for the fugitive slave bill, and regretted that his vote against the other mensures could not defeat them, as such defeat would have compelled the free States to do justice to the South. He denounced the admission Rates of Postage to be charged upon all transient Mining operations were progressing satisfactori- bill, and the law abolishing the slave trade in the District of Columbia as disgraceful bills of surrender of Southern rights. These were the grounds occupied by Mr Venable in the late campaign; and he maintained them fearlessly, boldly, and without regard to the so-called "Union" by an overwhelming majority; and if he is a Disunionist, as charged by the Federal organs, then are his constituents, or a large But they are all friends of the Union according to the Constitution. All Mr Venable asks is the Constitution in its letter and spirit; and it is because he was unwilling to take less that he has been persecuted and denounced. The Observer owes it to the cause of truth and justice to correct the above misrepresentations.
