sold within the last 9 months. A. J. WOODWARD returns his thanks to the public for the unprecedented encouragement he has met with in the manufacture and sale of his celebrated Polish, and at the same time wishes it understood that he always keeps a supply on hand for wholesale or retail

Experience has proved that this Polish is unsurpassed for quickness in putting a gloss on boots and shoes, and also in preserving the leather.

Persons wishing to oil their boots can use this Polish with equal success immediately afterwards: the leather should be rubbed as soen as the Polish is applied, before it dries. The Polish can be found at the store under the Carolinian Printing Office.

SHIPPING COAL. - Many of the coal shippers of Richmond, Va., have been, and are, exporting coal to Havana, and other tropical climates, packed in large hogsheads, which, upon their arrival at the destined ports, are emptied, filled with sugar and molasses, and re-exported to the United States. This is a new idea. and causes a vast saving to both manufacturers and consumers, as formerly it was the custom to export the staves and hoops, and have the hogsheads put together on the plantations, where coopers' wages are much higher than here; saving in that and 52-Daniel C Currie, Arch'd Buie, John H likewise in the transportation, which has item in our commerce.

ADA'S SAD FATE.

By the late Philo Henderson of Charlotte, N. C. On the green banks of Catawba Once there lived a beauteous maiden. Stainless as the flower at sun-set With the dews of evening laden.

Gentle as the westwind blowing

Softer than the streamlet flowing Came her words that soul revealing. High the breathings of her spirit In the radiance brightly beaming, Of that land it would inherit When it ceased its earthly dreaming.

Was her soul's unearthly feeling,

On the green banks of Catawba Died that rare and radiant maiden, When the evil days came on her And her heart with grief o'erladen. Died the victim of delusion

Words, that ne'er were true believing, Words that filled her soul with anguish While her breaking heart deceiving, Though her heart was blighted, broken, Calmly passed away that maiden, Dying, leaving ne'er a token Telling how her heart was laden

On the green banks of Catawba. Never more will sit the maiden, Gazing on the laughing water With the leaves of autumn laden. Never more will sun-lit billow Glance in gladness down before her For she sleeps beneath the willow

And the flowers are springing o'er her. Sadly sorrowing, wand'ring lonely Mourns for her my soul despairing, And my heart that loved her only Ever to her graye's repairing Never more will sounds of gladness Pour their music sweetly o'er me

But forever strains of sadness

WALTER SCOTT'S ADVICE TO HIS SON. "I cannot too much impress upon sour mind that labor is the condition that God has imposed on us in every station of life. There is nothing worth having that can be had without it, from the bread which the peasant wins by the sweat of his brow, to the sports with which the rich man gets rid of his ennui. The only difference betwixt them is, the poor man labors to get a dinner to appease his appetite-the rich man to get an appetite for his dinner. "As for knowledge, it can no more be planted in the human mind, without labor. than a field of wheat can be produced without the previous use of the plaws There is, indeed, this great difference that chance or circumstances may sor it that another shall reap who sows; but no man of his own studies; an tended acquisitions of know he makes are all for his own use. La therefore, my dear boy, and improve time. If in youth our steps are light and contemptible, our harvest will be chaff. and the winter of our cold age unrespected and desolate. "Again: Read, my dear son, read, and read that which is useful. Man differs from birds and beast, because he has the means of availing himself of the knowledge acquired by his predecessor. The swallow builds the same nest which its father and mother built; and the sparrow does not improve by the experience of its parents. The son of the learned pig. if it had one, would be a mere brute, fit only to make bacon of. It is not so with the human race. Our ancestors lodged in caves and wigwams, where we construct palaces for the rich and comfortable dwellings for the poor; and why is this, but because our eye is enabled to look To CURE THE TOOTHACHE. - Take a back upon the past, to improve upon our
