From the North State Whig, Dec 7. We went to press last week amidst great excitement occasioned by the attempt of the murderer Carawan to kill one of the counsel who appeared against him on the trial, and his shooting himself before the court and jury.

We presume the particulars of the transaction will not be uninteresting to our readers.

On being told that the jury had agreed upon a verdict, he simply remarked—"They have found against me." On passing out from the jail, he hade the wife of the jailor good by, and the lower grades, which the singlety improved. In the Havre market Flour had declined.

Railroad Accident.—A collision occurred on the Eric railroad on the night of the 9th, three miles from Jersey City. The trail came together with a fearful crash—I also one were badly wounded, and 2 killed.

Jail, he bade the wife of the jailor good by, and when he stepped into the street he was in tears. This passed off instantly, and he went into the court room looking sterner and more undaunted than usual. He received the verdict of "guilty" without moving a muscle. The first that was seen of the pistol was just as the crowd commenced to the court room. He was pointing at at Mr Warren, and at the pistol drop, thrust the hand into his bosom. drew out another pistol, and was in the act of the muzzle of the pistol, when he fired. > For some hours after his death, Carawan's countenance bore a most demonical appearance, but this gradually wore off, and when his face assumed its natural appearance, a cast of it, in plaster was taken, and a Daguerreotype likeness, to enable the publisher of the forth coming volume containing the trial and sketch of

> ***************** INFLUENCE OF ELEVATION UPON CHOLERA .- A curious fact has been arrived at in England, n connection with the prevalence of the Asiatic cholera in that country. It is this-that, in elevated localities, the ravages of the disease are much lighter than in those on a level with the water courses; and that the ratio of mortality varies with the degree of elevation. The existence of this natural law has been demonstrated by a thorough investigation by prominent medical men, which investigation showed that in sites in London, having an average elevation of twenty feet above the Thames, the deaths from cholera were one hundred and two n every ten thousand; at an elevation from twenty to forty feet, the deaths in the same number of population were but sixty-five; in localities from forty to sixty feet high, the deaths were only thirty-four in ten thousand; where the elevation was from eighty to one hundred feet, the deaths fell to twenty-two in the same number, and where the height was one hundred, the mortality was seventeen; while at Hamstead, lying about three hundred and fifty feet above the level of the Thames, there were but eight deaths. This general law is, of course subject to modification from circumstances more or less favorable to health .- Detroit Free Press, ******************

Surphugous .- A verdant Irish girl, just arrived, was sent to an Intelligence Office by the Commissioners of Emigration, to find a place of service. She was sent to a restaurant, where "stont help" was wanted, and while in conversation with the proprietor, he took occasion to light his eigar by igniting a locofoco match on the sole of his Loot. As soon as the girl saw this, she ran away half frightened to death. and when she reached the Intelligence Office. she was almost breathless. "Why, what is the matter with you?" said the proprietor, seeing her rush in, in such con-"Och! sure, sar, but ye's sint me to the old divil himself, in human form!"
