The man who is always shut up in a close 1163 64 room, whether the apartment be a minister's 636 96 study, a lawyer's office, a professor's laboratory. 1479 48 or a merchant's gas light store, is defying na-2126 76 ture, and must sooner or later, pay the penalty. 750 84 If his avocation renders such confinement ne-1694 76 cessary during a portion of the year, he can avoid 839 76 a premature breaking down of the constitution 1333 32 only by taking due exercise during the long va-1652 40 cations of the summer and winter months. The 1275 24 waste of stamina must be restored by frequent 1141 20 and full draughts of mountain and sea beach 867 36 air, by the pursuits of the sportsman, by travel, 825 36 or other similar means. Every man who has 2076 36 felt the recuperative effects of a month or two 638 52 of relaxation, knows from his own experience how general its influence is; how it sends him 2217 60 1560 84 back to business with a new flow of spirits; how 828 84 it almost re-creates him, so to speak. Between 825 96 the lad brought up to physical exercises in the 798 72 invigorating open air, and one kept continually 790 20 at school, or in the factory, there is an abyss of 1567 44 difference, which becomes more perceptible every year, as manhood approached, the one 1423 32 expanding into stalwart, full chested health, 472 20 while the other is never more than a half com-741 84 pleted man. females also. All that we have said about 688 92 preserving health in the man, is as true of the 740 28 opposite sex. But this is not the whole. The 835 32 true foundation of beauty in women is exercise 1406 88 in fresh air. No cosmeticts are equal to these. 739 56 The famous Diana of Poicteers, who maintained 1026 .24 her loveliness until she was near sixty, owed this extraordinary result, in her own opinion. 1708 32 to her daily bath, early rising, and her exercise 1287 72 in the saddle. English ladies of rank are cele-844 80 brated, the world over, for their splendid per-1794 84 sons and brilliant complexions; and they are 924 96 preverbial for their attention to walking and ric-723 60 ing, and the hours spent daily out of doors. 1059 00 The sallow cheeks, stooping figures, susceptibil --1289 40 ty to cold, and almost constant ill-health, which 1821 12 prevail among the American wives and daugh-952 32 ters generally, are to be attributed almost en-1329 60 tirely to their excessive sedentary life, and to 1483 56 the infirmity caused by the same life on the 1479 48 part of their parent. A woman can no more 1486 56 become beautiful, in the true sense of the term. 1477 32 or remain so, without healthful exercise in the 761 76 open air, than a plant can thrive without light 1018 80 If we put the latter into a cellar, it either dies 2117 16 out right, or refuses to bloom. Shall we will 534 24 our sisters, wives or daughters, by a similar 1110 96 deprivation of what is necessary to their har-2534 76 monious development?

1243 92 In another aspect, the care of health is a 573 60 more important thing than is usually supposed 401 76 There is no doubt that, as between city and 1377 36 country, the population of the former suffer-1397 04 most from want of exercise and fresh air, and that consequently the stamina, so to speak, of 968 16 a city population, is inferior to that of a rural one. It is even said that in some cities; Paris $99,425 04 for instance, few strictly town-bred families last over a century, and that, if the population was not continually recruited from the country, it would die out. It is an equally striking fact and one that lies within the observation of all of us, that the most energetic merchants generally, in New York, Boston and Philadelphia Hats, Bonnets, Boots, Shoes, Umbrellas, and have been originally lads from the rural town or counties, whose well-balanced health has no only produced well-balanced, vigorous, enterlavite the attention of their customers, and the trade prising minds, but enabled them to endure an amount of fatigue which the average of their city-bred competitors could not rival. The public weal, therefore, as well as the happiness of the individual, is concerned in this question of health. Yet, we Americans almost ignore it, and practically neglect it entirely. The old Greeks had their gymnasiums for physical exercise, which were as much state institutions as common schools are now. Were not the Greeks wiser, after all, than we are at least in this particular? - Mobile News.

To this arrangement the citizens of this place will most cheerfully subscribe. When the road will be completed through this place, a distance of about one mile, there will be seven or eight additional miles ready to be put under toll, which it is to the interest of the Company to have done as soon as possible. Planks have been laid down a distance of some seven miles West of Salem, but it seem to be somewhat uncertain where the terminus will be. We think the road should by all means be extended to the "hollow road," which would bring a great deal of travel through Bethania and Salem, which now takes another direction, and consequently increase the tolls materially
