The Life Time of Man.

When the world was created, and all creatures assembled to have their life-time appointed, the ass first advanced and asked how long he

"Thirty years' replied Nature, will that be agreeable to thee?'

'Alas!' answered the ass, 'it is a long while. Remember what a wearisome existence will be mine; from morning until night I have to beat heavy burthens, draging corn sacks to the mill that others may cat bread, that, while I shall have no encouragement, nor be refreshed by anything bet blows and kicks. Give but a portion of that, I pray!'

Nature was moved with compassion, and pre-sented but eighteen years. The ass went away comforted, and the dog came forward.

'How long dost thou require to live?' asked Nature. "Thirty years were too many for the ass, but wilt thou be contented with them?"

'Is it thy will that I should!' replied the dog. Think how much I shall have to run about; my feet will not last for so long a time, and when I shall have lost my voice for barking, and my teeth for biting, what else shall I be fit for but to lie in the corner and growl?"

Nature thought he was right and gave 12 vears.

The ape then appeared.

'Thou wilt doubtless willingly live the thirty years,' said Nature: 'thou wilt not have to' abor as the ass and the dog. Life will be pleasant to thee!

'Ah, no, cried he, 'so may it seem to others, but it will not be! Should puddings ever rain down, I shall excite laughter by my grimaces, and then be rewarded with a sour apple. How often sorrow hes concealed behind a jest! I shall not be able to endure for thirty years."

Nature was gracious and he received but ten. At last came man, healthy and strong, and asked the measure of his. 'Will thirty years content thee?'

'How short a time!' exclaimed man; 'when I shall have built my house and kindled a fire on my own hearth-when the trees I shall have planted are about to bloom and bear fruitwhen life shall seem to me most desirable I shall die.

O, Nature grant me a longer period!' Thou shalt have then the eighteen years of the ass besides.'

'That is not enough,' replied man. "Take likewise the twelve years of the dog." 'It is not yet sufficient,' reitcrated man; 'give' me more,'

'I give the ten years of the ape; in vain wilt thou claim more."

Man departed unsatisfied. Thus man lived seventy years. The first thirty are his human years, and pass swiftly by. He is then healthy and happy. He labors cheerfully and rejoices in his existence. The eighteen of the ass come next; burden upon burden is heaped upon him; he carries the corn that is to crowd with perfect composure. Three cheers feeds others; blows and kicks are the rewards of his faithful service. The twelve of the dog follow, and he loses his teeth, and lies down in a corner and growls. When these are gone. The man, weak and silly, becomes the sport of children.- Translated from the German.
