Inheritance of Talent.

A cotemporary says that great men usually inherit their talents from the mother. This is a popular belief, but not the less erroneous. The mistake has arisen from attending only to those cases in which the mother had a superior mind, to the neglect of the equally numerous examples where the father possessed remarkable.

"My DEAR SIR: Permit me to address you on a subject which has excited much feeling throughout the City and County of Philadelphia, and has enlisted my warmest sympathies. " Five hundred mechanics have been suddenly thrown out of employment in the Navy Yard in Philadelphia, at this inclement season of the vear. Most of them depending on their daily bread, you can easily appreciate what must be their sufferings. Their large families (as a friend informs me) are in a most lamentable condition, and God only knows what will become of them unless Government gives them employment.
