WASHING MACHINE.

The subscriber having purchased the Right of the above Machine for the Counties of Cumberland and Harnett, is now ready to furnish such as may be desirous of obtaining a Right. The machine is simple, both in its structure and operations, and should any portion of it fail, can be easily and speedily repaired by any person having the use of tools. I do not claim for this machine more than what it is able to perform with that description of labor which almost every family is able to supply, without at all interfering with the ordinary duties. In the first place a child 12 or 15 years of age can perform all the labor, after having seen it operate a few times, and if the directions are adhered to, will do as much work in one day as three or four women in the ordinary way, and the work will be much better done. Below will be found a certificate from those who have purchased and now 23.436 do have in use one of these machines ISHAM BLAKE.

April 12, 1856. FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., April 9, 1856. We, the undersigned, having purchased of Mr Isham Blake one of the above machines, cordially recommend it to the favor of the Public. It washes very rapidly, and the work is much better done than is usually done in the old way, and with less wear to the Clothing. It far exceeds our expectations, and has only to be seen in operation to satisfy the most skeptical of its utility and economy. We have no doubt of its being generally used wherever introduced.

NORTH CAROLINIAN.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

For What are You Living? How many break from the stern behests of business to ask themselves this simple question? Simple, we said, yet fraught with as mighty in-50 terest as eterni y itself. Every day we are winding the chains of our destiny about us-every hour taking from life some spice to embalm our memory, or gall and vinegar to make bitter 25 the recollection of our sojourn on earth.

For what are you living, followers of the fashion? The night wears away, the route is ended, the faded face turns languidly from the on down but where is the heart? Back in the heated room, throbbing in the glare of gas light, drinking in the wine of the flatterer. feasting on the froth of vanity! And it will sleep a feverish sleep, and waking to spend its $5 every thought and energy on that cut. For what are you living? For the utter annihilation of all good and virtuous deeds-the dea th of heaven's sweetest blessings. To sing the $5 death dirge of hope—not as the mother sings her cradle song with busy hands, and beauty of maternity mantling her face, but as the friendless wails the coronation above the sleeper, whose eyes before they closed, were the only ones that ever smiled on him. Was it only to wear elegant garments? only to add acre to acre-only to think all the time of ourselves and our interests, that God gave us being. Sometime since an old man died in Boston. All his life he had been living for a bag of gold. And to see that old man on his death bedhow his yellow eyes and bony fingers fastened to the bag. Poor old wretch! it was very hard that what had given him so much greedy joy in life should thus forsake him. Better have died a beggar, with the consolation of having spoken only a kind word to a brother in misfortune; then would be have lived to some pur-

A young and beautiful, but poor widow 1 50 was about to marry an old rich widower. Her 1 50 friends wished to know what she was about to marry him for? She feelingly replied. "Pure love -I love the grown! (meaning the farm probably,) on which he walks, and the very house in which he lives." There is platonic love for you. There is none of your school-girl foolishness in that. LIFE AT THE SPRINGS .- A sickly-looking man accosted another visitor by remarking:

"You appear to be well, what do you visit this place for?"

"To enjoy myself. Are you ill?"

"O, terribly so."

"Then permit me to remark, as a friend, that even if you were in the most robust health, you eat altogether too much." At this sickly looked indignant, but the next moment he cooled down and replied: "I like your conversation very much; but what on earth is a man to do, who is here paying two dollars and a half a day?" A DANDY TRYING IT ON .- "My dear Amelia," said the dandy, on bended knee before his adorable, "I have long wished for this oppor-$1 00 tunity, but hardly dare speak now, for fear you will reject me; but I love you-will you be mine? You will be to me everything desirable -everything my heart could wish. Your smiles would shed"-

Here dandy stuck fast for some big poetic expression to help him out. "Your smiles would shed"-"Never mind the wood shed," said she; "pass it, and try something else!"

. A Beautiful Allegory. A meerchaum pipe and a lute, hung in the boudioir of Daffy Downdilly An evident coolness subsisted between them, for it was January. 2 00 The silence which had long been unbroken was at last disturbed by the lute, that with a contemptuous twang said to the pipe.

"You're a mere sham." "You are a lyre," said the pipe, with an angry puff. "You never will be anything till you give up your bowl," said the lute.

This was a remark which provoked the wrath of the pipe, and it struck the lute. The sound Dress-coat Vest and Pants. 2 00 the lute sent forth was a gentle complaint at the harshness of its treatment, but made no resistance The pipe which evidently had ex-50 pected a return of violence that it might be 50 hard to stem, sat expectingly, but the sound melted into gentleness, and the pipe dried up. It is always thus that it will be found that easy blows kill the devil.

How joyous rings their merry laugh, And lightly wave their glossy curls! Ah, how the dry goods clerks do sigh, And think them of a better half!

Oh, the College Girls! the College Girls! Love eloquently speaks In every glance that radiates From their bright eyes set like the pearls

Of summer dews on roses' cheeks. Oh may they all find worthy mates! Oh the College Girls! the College Girls? The're lovely as the're pure;

They bloom without the bloomer dress And, far away from fashion's whirl, They bloom far better I am sure, And keep their youthful beauty best. The College Girls! The College Girls! They're beautiful and true;
