Let France delight to go and fight, If 'tis her folly to:

Let Austria cry for "territory!" With that we've nought to do.

Our shout must be, "Neutrality!" To England peace is sweet: But friends, that she may neutral be, Let's Man our Forts and Fleet!

THESE THINGS ARE AN ALLEGORY .- We read the following in a North country paper: "Curious Story of a Cat."-In the village of Tottington, near Bury, at the house of Mr Adam Brooks, sexton, may be witnessed a curious instance of felipe attachment. A cat, which has a kitten three weeks old, about a week ago caught a mouse, but instead of devouring the little creature, according to the old established custon, she brought it to the kitten, and they are all living together on the most affectionate terms. Puss evinces an extraordinary affection for it, and appears disconsolate should the mouse be out of her sight. It is delightful to witness the fearlessness with which the mouse trusts itself in the hands of Court of Pieus and Quarter Sessions, May Term. its natural enemy, nestling itself for hours in its breast, running up and down its body, and evincing the most unbounded confidence in its new friend; whilst the cat, if possible, lavishes greater attention on it than on its own off-spring. CONSUMPTION, of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent without some personal experience of its effects; and fewer yet the communities any where which have not among them some living traphy of its victory over the subtle and damerous diseases of the throat and lungs. While it is the most powerful antidate yet known io man for the formulable and damerous diseases of the palmonary organs, it is also the pleasantest and safest remely that can be simpleyed for infairs and young persons. Facents should have it in store against the instale as enemy that steads upon them unprepared.
