THE OLDER MORE PROTECTION THEY WANT

The average duty on imported merchandise under the McKinley bill is given as about 50 per cent.

One of the hitherto "strongest arguments" of the advocates of high tariff, such as the McKinley bill, has been protection to American "infant industries."

The Brooklyn Eagle points it out that the Republican party has exactly reversed the theory of protection to young and unestablished industries, that what they have done and want to continue to do, is seemingly to protect and shield the old established, wealthy institutions.

It is this arrogant, unreasoning demand that the people have so recently rebuked. It is this assumption that the people are calling for an Extra Session of Congress to sit down upon them.

The people who have voted a lack of confidence in the party of high protection ask this; the business interests of the country are anxious for it.

"In point of fact, from three to six months will be inevitably consumed in formulating and discussing a new bill, if the details of the work are to be done by Congress, and even after the legislation has taken final shape, a further period of several months would be allowed to elapse before it would be put in force.

There should be no delay in giving the people the relief they voted for.

The tumble of the high roller Republicans from their perches on the roof, when the result of the late election became known, was a spectacle for men and gods.

Down they came like potato bugs from a feast on Paris green-pick-mell, and each with a "dall, sickening thud." It was a wholesale tumble from the sublime of confidence in victory, to the ridiculous conclusion of utter and overwhelming discomfiture and defeat.

Chauncey M. Depew, alone of all the gang of blow-hards, maintained his altitudinous position, and uttered words of cheer to the dismayed and shattered legions of the G. O. P.

Newbern Journal: The trial of Mr. Thos. Clark, charged with the murder of Mr. R. D. McCotter, which has been in progress several days at Bayboro is ended.

Charlotte Observer: Dr. Wilder was called upon yesterday to amputate several fingers for a negro man who had been bitten by a "blue-gum nigger" about a week ago.
