

Some Western man is undoubtedly on the eve of being dubbed "The Barney Barnato of Cripple Creek."

Harry Howard, under sentence of death for murdering Catherine Ging, the Minneapolis dress-maker, has confessed that crime.

A New York man was taken out of a theatre suffering from too much laughter. The play could hardly have been a modern comedy.

The Speakership of the House of Representatives will go to Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, by common consent. For the other offices of the House a scramble is inevitable, but so far as the Chief Clerkship is concerned the scramble seems to be over already, with Ex-Congressman McDowell, of Pennsylvania, an easy winner.

Labor fools away its power and its opportunities. It has no business to organize except for the real benefit of the men and women who support to the organization, and every misuse of the power of an organization is a fraud, all the more cruel and dishonorable because it is perpetrated on the pretext of serving the interests of labor.

Mr. E. C. Benedict declares his belief that Mr. Cleveland will not accept a third term. He is a near and dear friend of the President's, and ought to know. But on the other hand, Mr. Morton, who is a member of the President's Cabinet, is at the head of the third-term movement, and is assisted by quite a number of Mr. Cleveland's appointees. However, the President will soon send his message to Congress, and if he is going to retire it will be the easiest and most natural thing in the world for him to drop a delicate hint to the effect. So let us wait until we see his message; otherwise we are for him.

Senator Frye's concern for the woolen mills is almost pathetic. "They must stand the present two years longer," he says; "if they survive this period they will do better than I expect." Perhaps the fortune and the success of our shoemakers in getting along with free leather, of our silk and cotton mills with untaxed fibres, may sustain the woolen manufacturers who have had free wool thrust upon them. Should these examples not encourage them that can look for hope to the steady prosperity of their chief competitors in free trade England and protection Germany, neither of which has ever had the sustaining help of limited selections of taxed wools. We wonder if Senator Frye really knows what a humbug he is?

The Philadelphia Press expresses the opinion that the reelection of Mr. Don Cameron to the Senate of the United States is not possible unless the people of Pennsylvania are far more indifferent than it is conceivable they can be. It is possible however, that in predicting the defeat of Mr. Cameron the Press may be just as much out of its reckoning as it was a short time ago when it claimed that Mr. Quay could not possibly win in his contest for the State Chairmanship of his party. The members of the Cameron family have been very successful in their political manipulations in the Keystone State for more than half a century, and if the present representatives of that family decide to enter the race for the Senatorial succession he can be relied upon to perform very effective work when the time for action arrives.

If American hop growers can export 17,000,000 pounds a year—or much more than one-third of their crop—selling these exported hops in England in open competition with the hops of all other countries, without any tariff protection whatever, why do they need any protective tariff to enable them to overcome here at home the competition of the same foreign growers?

GLEANINGS.

Items of Interest Clipped From our State Exchanges.

Henderson Gold Leaf: Minks are playing havoc with chickens in town. Mr. Sid Renn had 25 killed before he succeeded in catching the varmint with dogs, and Mr. J. Y. Landis has had 38 killed to date. He lost eight the last raid, a few nights ago.

Smithfield Herald: We are pained to chronicle the sudden death of Mr. Wm. Carroll which occurred last Tuesday night at his home in Pleasant Grove township, aged about 70 years. A quiet, estimable Christian gentleman, a farmer of unusual energy has passed away and will be missed in his community.

Charlotte Observer: Mr. Price of Rutherford, was in the city yesterday. He was on his return from South Carolina. Mr. Price is to establish a town between Camden and Kershaw. For this purpose he bought 1,800 acres of land—fine timber land—in the section named, and will move his mill machinery from Rutherford there and build a new mill and a mill town.

Laurinburg Exchange: Manly Gibson, a son of Lydia Gibson, colored, was accidentally shot and killed here yesterday by his little sister. This is another case of carelessness in leaving fire arms within the reach of children, and allowing them to fool with them.

Raleigh News and Observer: Died at the Louise Home, in Washington, D. C., on the night of the 27th inst., Mrs. Francis W. Daniels, widow of Hon. J. K. J. Daniel, once Attorney-General of the State, and sister-in-law of Judge J. J. Daniel, of our Supreme Court, in the 85th year of her age. In pursuance of her expressed wish her body will be buried in Oakwood Cemetery, near this city.

Lincolnton Democrat: We learn that Sam Jackson (col.) was killed in a row at a negro "festive" near Cherryville on last Saturday night. It seems that Jackson died game, shooting another negro in the arm and the eye before he was laid low. We could not learn the names of the three or four negroes who are accused of Jackson's murder. They are still at large.

Tarborough Southerner: Geo. Washington, Jr., the murderer of Charles Neville, will be hanged Wednesday. The scaffold will be erected just across the Beaver Dam Creek, to the East of town, the spot where criminals are usually executed. The execution will be public. I have been informed by the Sheriff, that the plan of the gallows is of the most modern kind, operated entirely by springs. The old fashioned way of cutting the rope will not be used.

Wadesboro Courier: The little 10 months old son of Mr. G. W. and Malle Plyler, on the 10th of last June swallowed a five cent nickel piece of money and on the 17th of last October coughed it up, it having remained in his throat four months and seven days. No ill effect resulted to the child.

Wilmington Star: Sunday afternoon Mrs. Moore, wife of Mr. R. H. Moore, while crossing Fourth street at the intersection of Harnett, was knocked down and run over by a road cart, and severely hurt. The injured lady was picked up and carried to her home and a physician called to attend her. It was found that she was badly bruised and one of her arms was cut. Oscar Croom and Walter Galloway who were in the road cart were arrested and arraigned yesterday in Justice Bunting's Court, but on account of the inability of Mrs. Moore to attend, the case was continued.

Winston Sentinel: Much interest is felt in the contest between the football teams of the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia, which will take place in Richmond on Thanksgiving Day—an interest akin to that which gathers about a prize fight, or a cock fight between mains from different counties or States, when county or State pride, so-called, is aroused. The privilege of brutal treatment, at the risk of limb and life, is a poor way, it strikes us, for the students of great Universities to celebrate a Thanksgiving occasion. Bad enough at any time, worse at this particular juncture.

Not to the Poorhouse.
A life insurance policy is not a sign-board pointing widow and children to the poor house.
A strong life insurance company with millions of dollars is a good friend for a man to leave his family in charge of after his death.
The most successful business men carry policies for large amounts of life insurance. They believe life insurance is a good investment.
A policy on the 10, 15, or 20 year plan, rapidly becomes a valuable piece of property. It is said that one of the richest men in North Carolina would have failed during the panic of 1893, had it not been for his life insurance policies.
The Home Life Insurance Company of New York, for more than a third of a century has been engaged in the great work. The Home Life is one of the strongest and best companies in the world. Its policies are plain contracts, containing a number of advantages not offered by other companies. Full information will be cheerfully furnished on application to A. C. CASTORIA is truly a marvelous thing for children. Doctors prescribe it, medical journals recommend it and more than a million mothers are using it in place of paregoric, Bateman's Drops, so-called soothing syrups and other narcotic and stupefying remedies. Castoria is the quickest thing to regulate the stomach and bowels and give healthy sleep the world has ever seen. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, quiets pain, cures diarrhoea and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothing the child and giving refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the child's only friend.
Castoria is put up in one-size bottles. It is not sold in bulk. Don't allow any one to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just a good" and "will answer every purr case."

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.
Several English writers have endeavored to prove that the Indians are the descendants of the ten tribes. Most of the arguments adduced are drawn from customs which the authors in question regarded as peculiar to the Jews, but are, in fact, common to the early stages of the human race.
The Albany railway was one of the first street railroads of the country to adopt the freight car service. The cars were put on the road last September, and run over the line between Albany and Troy, a distance of seven miles. There is a storage warehouse at each end of the line, into which the cars run.
The Kalamazoo Railroad Vehicle & Car company has recently brought out a new inspection car, propelled by a gasolene motor. The car seems well adapted to the uses of railroad officers making quick inspection trips where but two or three persons are to be carried. It is always ready for service, the engine being in motion after one turn of the balance wheel.
Cloverhook, the historical home of the poetess, Alice and Phoebe Cary, was sold under three successive foreclosures in May. The Briggs Swift estate bought it to be preserved as a historical literary center, and put Warren Cary, a brother of the poet, in charge. The property has been cleared of ground connected with the homestead.
So rich and beautiful is much modern furniture designed upon antique models, that the most acquainted with the real thing can detect at a glance the difference. This is especially true of such modern factory-made furniture as does not compare with the real thing. The latter, however, will at once see that the rush bottoms of factory-made chairs do not fit snugly, having been slipped in from the frames and are not so firmly secured as the real thing. The rungs, too, of the modern chair are not of hard wood, but of stained pine, while the bits of ornament that conceal the joints are manifestly stuck on and not part of the original work.
A woman was buried alive at Andover in Savoy recently; while the grave diggers were throwing earth on the coffin they heard a knocking inside. They had half an hour before making up their minds what to do, and then, instead of opening the coffin, went to notify the authorities. A priest was the first to arrive, and all his dard to do was to have the coffin hoisted so as to let in a little air. Finally, after three hours, soon after the knocking ceased, the coffin was opened and the woman's cheeks were seen to be flushed, and her eyes were closed. It took six hours and a half more to get a doctor, who when he examined her had found her dead for six hours; that is, she must have been alive at the time when the coffin lid was removed.
A strange attempt to enforce medieval penance ended in a rove recently at Bilsland, in Cornwall, near the Land's End. Two young men who had assaulted a girl were taken to the church as penance. The rector, who was told by the rector that he would absolve them if they would openly confess their crime and distribute ten dollars worth of bread at the church gates as penance. PRODUCTION OF MEERSCHAUM
Where Some Rich Deposits of the Queen Substance Are Found.
Mr. Cumberbatch, British consul at Anzora, in his latest report, says that rich deposits of meerschaum are found twenty miles to the southeast of Eski Shehir, an important station of the Anatolian railway. The Belgian consul in Constantinople, who recently visited the place, states that it would be difficult to determine the exact arena in which the meerschaum is to be found. Judging from the number of pits at considerable distances from each other, it must be extensive.
The meerschaum is extracted in the same way as coal. Pits from twenty-five to one hundred feet deep are dug, and as soon as the vein is struck horizontal galleries, sometimes of considerable length, are made, but more than two galleries are seldom to be found in one pit. The stone as extracted is called "ham-tash," or roughly broken, and is soft enough to be easily cut with a knife. It is white, with a yellowish tint, and is covered with a red, clayey matter, which is removed by dipping it in water. The blocks are then sorted into about twelve classes, each class being packed with great care in separate cases, and each block being wrapped in paper. The meerschaum is sent to Vienna, where it is worked, and dispersed all over the world. Most of the finest specimens are sent direct to Paris. Certain American dealers have visited Eski Shehir with the object of obtaining the raw material direct instead of through Vienna, thereby saving the higher custom home duty payable on the worked meerschaum. The meerschaum is exported in put down at eight thousand to ten thousand cases. The various taxes levied by the Turkish government amount to about thirty-seven per cent. ad valorem.
CRIPPLES WERE HEALED.
An Amusing Incident of Semi-Savage Rule in Hawaii.
Judge Austin of Hilo relates some interesting experiences of his own while secretary to Princess Ruth in 1854. At that time she was the governess of Hawaii.
He had been appointed secretary, says the Pacific Commercial Advertiser, with orders from King Kamehameha III, that King Kamehameha should never interfere with his work. In that year there was a large gathering of the natives at Kailua, commanded to assemble by her orders. A large plain was provided, in which the meeting took place, and also proposed to address them.
It was the unwritten law that the very old and infirm should be exempt from taxation. The natives were unwilling to pay taxes, so they prepared for the meeting.
Many who were young men and in the best physical condition came in, appearing to be doubled up with disease. Many used staves and walked with trembling steps, and some, slowly, coughing at every step, held up a leg and appeared to be cripples. One enterprising native appeared on a stretcher, carried by four of his companions. The meeting opened it appeared like an assembly without a well person in it, and it numbered several hundred. The princess, Trade a brief address, and was followed by her secretary, Judge Austin, who told them that all present would have to pay taxes, as there was nothing the matter with them.
At once there was a commotion. The men who were doubled up straightened themselves out. The coughing stopped. The men with "game" legs moved about quickly. The man who came in on a stretcher, raised up and made a speech to the crowd, showing that he had a very poor opinion of the government. The staffs were flung aside. In a few moments a fine stalwart body of men were seen talking with perfect ease, and the lanai was littered with the debris of the materials they had used in making themselves apparent cripples and infirm.
What Burns Did.
"It was in Perth," a teacher writes, "that, puzzling over a grimy statue, I was accosted by a barefooted newboy, with his raucous cry of 'Hair-said, Glasgow Hair-said!' 'I'll take one,' I thought. 'If you'll tell me your statue that is.' 'Tis Rabbin Burns,' replied he, on the nail. 'Thank you,' said I, taking the paper. 'And what did he do to deserve the statue?' My newboy scratched his head. 'Preserving his emporium, a party of his friends, from the street called out in stentorian chorus: 'Ay, 'tis Rabbin Burns.' 'But what did he do to deserve the statue?' I thundered back. They hung their heads. At last my newboy recovered himself; his face brightened. 'Well,' said I again, 'what did he do to deserve his statue?' 'He died,' answered the intelligent little man."
Utilizing the Clinders.
Use has been found for the top clinders made in iron forges, which has hitherto been wasted, and large quantities paid for it. It is needed in the manufacture of basic steel.
