LOCAL BRIEFS

Is Goldsboro going to hold any public observation of Washington's birthday this year? If not, why?

THE ARGUS is glad to announce that Mr. L. F. Dorch has so much improved from his recent illness as to be able to be up again.

THUNDER and lightning in February is, indeed, an unusual occurrence. But then, this is indeed a day of strange happenings.

THE Benton murder trial, the particulars of which are known to ARGUS readers, that has been engaging the attention of the Superior Court, at Wilson this week, Hon. C. B. Aycock, of this city appeared for the defendants Benton, resulted in an acquittal.

Mr. W. H. Overman, a well-known farmer of this county—especially noted for his fine water-melons, has purchased the residence adjoining the home of Mr. J. D. Rice from that gentleman, and will henceforth make Goldsboro his home. We welcome him to the city.

The old and popular firm of M. E. Castex & Co., of this city, so long located at their present business stand, will, on the first of March, move to the new building, "Einstein Building," which is larger and better capacitated to accommodate their constantly increasing business.

The desirable corner store under the Hotel Kennon which has for years been occupied by the Griffin brothers, has been leased and will be fitted up in handsome style by Messrs. John H. Hill & Son, for their drug store. We are gratified to note this evidence of progress on the part of this old and reliable firm of our city.

As a tobacco fertilizer that has been tried and has always triumphed over all competitors the "Prolific Cotton Grower" takes the lead. It is a home product, manufactured by the Goldsboro Oil Company, and that it is the finest is but another attestation to the correctness of the claim THE ARGUS has ever advanced, that we've got the best town in the State.

"ARE you going to the New-bern Fair?" This is the question that is now most prevalent among our citizens. The fair opens on the 24th current, and is going to eclipse any of its brilliant predecessors. A low rate and special trains will be in vogue over the A. & N. C. R. R. every day of the Fair, which closes on the 20th.

We are glad to note that Mr. Frank Miller, of the Goldsboro Book Store, has a scheme on foot, and is pushing it, for establishing a circulating library for Goldsboro. By paying 25 cents per month, members can have access to the books of the library. The larger the membership, the more voluminous can the library be made. It is to be hoped, therefore, that every reading citizen, young and old alike, will promptly join. Nothing better could be instituted for Goldsboro than a circulating library.

THE marriage of Miss Lillian Stevens, eldest daughter of the late D. E. Stevens, and Mr. D. H. Overman, an affluent and progressive young farmer of Brogden township, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother on William street, this city, Rev. J. G. Johnson, of the Clinton circuit officiating. It was a quiet home marriage, only the relatives and a few immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. The groom has recently constructed a handsome and cozy home on his farm, and to this the happy young couple immediately repaired yesterday afternoon to begin the pleasant duties of house-keeping. THE ARGUS joins their many friends in wishing them the fullest measure of life's joys and prosperity.

As an indication of the material benefits derived by a community in the establishment therein of minor industries, THE ARGUS is pleased to call attention to the employment furnished by the Standard Manufacturing Company in this city, for the manufacture of cheap woodenware. The compensation received for such labor stimulates the desire for employment, and consequently there is not a home in the vicinity of this factory in which the inmates are dependent on their energies for a livelihood that is not now doing the light work they offer, and the click of the hammer and tack are heard long after the curtains of evening have been drawn around their cottage doors.

THE nomination of Maj. H. L. Grant, of this city, by the Republican Senatorial caucus in Washington last Friday to be Sergeant-at-Arms of the U. S. Senate, is tantamount to an election, provided the Senate organizes. Otherwise it is a recognition of services and a triumph over the seekers after place without compensation. However, to the victor belong the spoils, and if the Republican Senate refuses to organize and assume the responsibility of power, it will shirk a duty for which it will not be excused by the country at large when another election rolls round.

THE beautiful and finely illustrated 1896 seed catalogue of T. W. Wood & Sons, of Richmond, Virginia, is one of the most desirable catalogues of the kind issued. It is very valuable and desirable to the farmers and gardeners in many ways. Besides giving illustrations and descriptions of all the products of the farm and garden and the most desirable flowers and bulbs, with directions for their cultivation; it takes up the different months in the year, giving exactly the line of work the farmer and gardener should do in each month to enable him to reap the best results for his labor. For a work that will be of invaluable aid to the farmer and gardener, T. W. Wood & Sons' Seed Catalogue for 1896 is unequalled. It will be mailed free on application to them at Richmond, Virginia, provided you mention THE ARGUS.

RAVAGES OF THE STORM.

In New York the Wind Blew Sixty Miles an Hour.

New York, Feb. 7.—The wind to-day was sixty miles an hour with the thermometer at 40. The sun was shining in the storm center to-day off the coast of Maine. The Iron Pier at Coney Island is wrecked. The big photograph gallery on Arcade Street was blown away. From all parts of New Jersey come reports of havoc by floods. The Somerville Water Works were submerged by the waterfall. The railway streets are submerged four feet. The damage done in New Brunswick by washouts amounts to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Patterson, Feb. 7.—Several bridges have been washed away. The Cedar Grove dam broke and the Little Falls flooded several feet of water into the Beattie Carpet mills. The electric lines are flood-bound.

Camden Feb. 7.—The Delaware is higher than ever known. Railways are submerged and many business places are drowned out. An immense damage done to farms.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS

Agree in Caucus Upon Nominations for Elective Officers of the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Republican Senatorial caucus this afternoon after a debate of an hour and a half, settled the question of the elective officers of the Senate, by the nomination of a full ticket. Mr. A. J. Shaw, of the State of Washington, was nominated to be Secretary of the Senate; Major H. L. Grant, of North Carolina, to be Sergeant-at-Arms; Mr. Alton Stewart, of Iowa, to be acting assistant Doorkeeper; and Rev. Mr. Milburn, the blind Chaplain, to succeed himself.

Major Grant is an old Union soldier, who went to North Carolina shortly after the war. He is a native of Connecticut and served in the army, in the regiment commanded at one time by Gen. Hawley, the present Senator from that State. Three ballots were required to make Major Grant the nominee.

Mr. Alton Stewart, the present chief of the pages, was nominated by acclamation for the position of acting doorkeeper, the place so long filled by the venerable Isaac Bassett. Mr. Stewart has grown up in the Senate from boyhood and is thoroughly conversant with the duties of the office, which he has often filled temporarily.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Navy Department has just acquired, for the sum of $20,000, about forty acres of land on the St. Julian Creek, Norfolk, near the Navy Yard, whereon the naval magazine will be established.

Havana, Feb. 7.—News was received here today confirming the report that Jose Macao, the insurgent leader, is suffering from a wound in the leg.

WELL! WELL! WELL!!!

Here's a Howdy Do. What's the Matter With Those Kinston People, Anyway?

EDITOR HERBERT SEEMS TO

Have Lost His Sense of Vision, as Well as of Justice and Editorial Courtesy: He is 'Seeing Things'—That Don't Exist—And 'Talking Through His Hat.' But he is, Withal, a Good Fellow: He Has Just Got all Wrong all of a Sudden, and Will Get Right Again, and do the Amende Honorable, we are Sure. This is Only Another Phase of the Peculiar Influenza Prevalent Down There, Which the Kinston People

HAVE TERMED "FIRE BUGS."

Pardon, us, dear readers, for this rather elongated heading; but here is the burden of it—an editorial clipping from the Kinston Free Press:

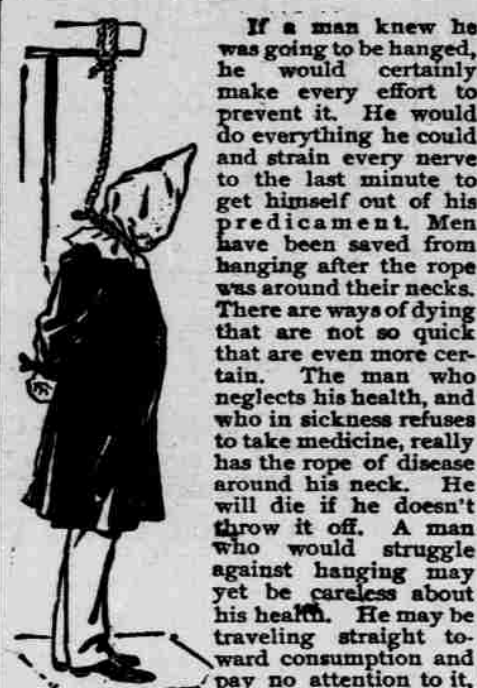

"Two or three papers have praised Mr. C. B. Aycock's efforts in defending the firebugs of this community very highly. He did do a great deal to that end (which he may consider a worthy end, as he expressed belief in their innocence), but the people of this community do not have the same cordial and kind feelings toward Mr. Aycock they felt toward him before.

We notice the Goldsboro ARGUS attacks Judge Graham for his remarks to the jury. We have an idea this attack was inspired by Mr. Aycock. We do not care to go into any discussion—haven't time or space—but wish simply to state that Judge Graham's remarks voiced exactly the sentiments of most of our people. We think the judge might have left off saying to the jury that they knew they had acquitted four guilty men; and simply said "you have acquitted four guilty men," but under the circumstances the judge was excusable."

Now, in truth and in fact, THE ARGUS has let this Kinston "Fire Bug" influenza entirely alone: its columns have contained no expression of our own, whatever, on the subject, and no line in reference to it, other than what was copied from the Kinston Free Press, itself; and this, instead of "attacking Judge Graham," praised him in Mr. Herbert's best style, and instead of Mr. Aycock "inspiring" us to publish it, that gentleman was still on the scene of conflict—so nobly fought and brilliantly won by him—at Kinston when THE ARGUS copied what Mr. Herbert had to say—without comment, except a few words expressive of our appreciation of Mr. Aycock's forensic talent. Only this and nothing more.

Mr. Herbert's wide departure, therefore, from every fact and circumstance surrounding this affair, as indicated in the above clipping, and his gratuitous "uncomplimentary" reference to Mr. Aycock and "ye editor," are strange, indeed, and beyond our comprehension entirely.

Senator Vest in a snort which emanated from him Wednesday described Secretary Morton as "swinging his golden censor filled with incense at the executive mansion and shouting: 'Holy, holy, art thou, Grover; king of kings and lord of lords!'" The Senate a few days ago was regaled by the most remarkable exhibition of blackguardism ever given in the Federal Capitol. Vest is apparently jealous of Tillman and is endeavoring to become as conspicuous for blasphemy as the South Carolina ruffian is for vulgarity.

If a man knew he would certainly make every effort to prevent it. He would do everything he could and strain every nerve to the last minute to get himself out of his predicament. Men have been saved from hanging after the rope was around their necks, there are ways of dying that are not so quick that are even more certain. The man who neglects his health, and who in sickness refuses to take medicine, really has the disease around his neck. He will die if he doesn't throw it off. He must be traveling straight toward consumption and pay no attention to it, and yet death by consumption is much more terrible than death by hanging. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. Consumption is likely to be caused by weakness and in its turn, it increases the weakness. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is an invigorating, strength-giving and flesh-making medicine. It increases the appetite, puts the digestive organs in perfect order, purifies and enriches the blood, and builds up firm, healthy flesh.

In one chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand page family doctor book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," are scores of letters from people who have been cured of consumption, lingering coughs, throat and bronchial diseases by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery." Their full names and addresses are given and their cures are proved beyond doubt by the local doctors. Twenty-one (21) cent stamps, to be in the form of a postcard, will secure a free copy of this great book. Address, World Dispensary Medical Association, No. 563 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHAT INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT MEANS

For the South.

When the war changed all the business conditions of the South and revolutionized its labor system and its mode of living, it brought into play forces which required that the South must develop into a great manufacturing territory, or else forever remain "a hewer of wood and drawer of water" for others, because economic changes had made it impossible for any section or any country to be permanently prosperous without diversification of labor. Here was a region of almost infinite natural wealth, where thousands and hundreds of thousands of people were compelled to remain in idleness and poverty because of a lack of employment. Work at any price could not be had. The aggregate amount of labor which could have been done if all the people of the South could have found employment was double, or treble, or possibly quadruple, all that the opportunities and conditions offered. The farmer might be criticised for his failure to diversify his crops, but this criticism failed in the light of investigation, when it was seen that there was no opportunity for diversification, and the only crop upon which he could secure advance money was cotton, and when there was no market for any other farm product than cotton. Without towns or cities, without manufacturing enterprises, there were no consumers of farm products, except the farmers themselves. Around villages and country stores boys and young men grew up in idleness, wasting their time, because there was no opportunity to find employment. The South was universally blamed and charged with being thriftless and its people without enterprise, when the one great trouble beyond the control of the people was the lack of opportunity to find work. Every factory built meant increased employment for people hitherto compelled to remain in idleness, and an increase in the demand for farm productions. Wherever factories have been developed and industrial towns have grown up, farmers have become more prosperous, agricultural land has greatly increased in value, and in many of the cotton mill districts of Carolina farm property has doubled and quadrupled in price within the last five years as a result of the ability of the farmers to find a home market for all the diversified products of land which was formerly given over to cotton only. More over, this lack of employment forced thousands of the more enterprising young men of the South to seek homes in the North and West; and we have but to study the history of the business life of New York and of many of the great cities of the Western States to realize how much of a factor in their progress have been the energy and enterprise transplanted from the South. Years ago, when the Manufacturers' Record first commenced to plead for the industrial development of this section as the one thing of supreme importance to its own people, it pointed out what industrial advancement meant, not only in the way of creating a home market for the products of every

TESTIMONIALS.

RED OAK, N. C., Jan. 4, 1896.
Goldsboro Oil Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

Dear Sirs:—I wish to say a few words in behalf of your Prolific Cotton Grower Guano. I used last season several brands of Fertilizers, and Prolific Cotton Grower made by your company was best of all. I sold my Tobacco at Gravelly's Warehouse, Rocky Mount, N. C. for which there was a premium offered for the best average on one thousand pounds. During this time there was 800,748 pounds sold, and I was awarded the premium on an average of $2.46 per hundred over anything sold during the time the premium was offered. This Tobacco was grown by Prolific Cotton Grower. I shall use your goods again this season. Respectfully,
M. S. GRIFFIN.

Gentlemen:—I have been raising fine yellow tobacco for several years and have used a great many standard brands of guano, and I am glad to say the Prolific Cotton Grower beats them all. If I could not get Prolific Cotton Grower I would quit making tobacco. Very truly,
J. G. DRAKE.

farm, but also in furnishing a profitable field of employment for the rising generation; for opening to them opportunities for work and for wealth, which they could then only find in other sections. It meant the keeping at home of the brightest and most active spirits, who in former times had been compelled to look elsewhere; it meant increased comforts for millions of people, it meant better schools, better country roads, and all of the comforts and conveniences and blessings of the most advanced civilization; it meant a broader and better culture, not for the few only, whose wealth enabled them to secure these advantages, but for the great masses who had been without these blessings. Industrial advancement meant all of this and even more to the South; and every Southern man who has studied these conditions could only rejoice as from week to week the record of new factories established, new mines opened and new improvements made in the extension of manufacturing pursuits pointed to the day of deliverance from the bondage of the first quarter of a century following the war. The South's industrial needs and possibilities should be thoughtfully studied by every man concerned as to the future of this section, that he may do his full part in aiding and encouraging that which is so essential to the welfare and progress of the people of the South.

Dear Sirs:—We have been selling Prolific Cotton Grower Guano for the past five or six years, with increased demand each year, and am glad to say it has given entire satisfaction to those who have used it, and that its high standard has been maintained. As evidence of its merits, the demand for the coming season surpasses any previous year. Its results for Tobacco has been exceptionally good. I can produce any number of testimonials if you desire it and refer to any one of the large number of my customers who have used it. Yours very truly,

BOND STATISTICS.

Partisan leaders and partisan organs have scrupulously avoided telling the truth about the loans made by the present administration to maintain the gold reserve in the Treasury. When the loan was made last year we had a Democratic Congress, and the President, after completing the contract with the American syndicate for the sale of the bonds at $104, had a reservation in it that if Congress should provide a 3 per cent. gold loan within ten days, such bonds should be taken at par, which would have been equivalent to paying $119.32 for the 4 per cent. bonds instead of $104.

The President frankly stated the conditions of this agreement to Congress, and asked that a law should be passed authorizing the loan that would save nearly $17,000,000 to the people. The bonds were sold for gold, and although by the terms of the law made payable in coin, no one could reasonably doubt the purpose of the government to pay the bonds in gold, or its equivalent; and it was the action of the last Democratic Congress refusing to authorize the issue of such bonds, that made the contract with the syndicate a necessity to preserve the credit of the nation at home and abroad.

A new loan has been necessitated, not for the payment of the expenses of the government, for the Treasury has vast ample means for that, but to maintain the $100,000,000 gold reserve that has been accepted, not only by this nation, but by the world as a measure of gold in reserve necessary to maintain the hundreds of millions of paper the government has in circulation redeemable in gold on demand. The Treasury is not bankrupt today and has no need for a loan to meet the expenses of the government, but it must maintain its gold reserve or distrust would become widespread abroad as to the credit of the nation, and our securities would be returned to us by hundreds of millions, resulting in panic and general business revulsion.

We now have a Republican Congress, and to that Congress President Cleveland appealed to maintain the credit of the nation by authorizing the issue of bonds that would command the highest credit in the markets of the world. As all the obligations of this government have been paid in gold, even in war times when gold commanded an immense premium, and as they are certain to be paid in gold no matter what party should come into power, he urged the enactment of a bill authorizing the issue of 3 per cent. bonds payable in the money accepted by the civilized world. The Republican Congress was just as faithless as the late Democratic Congress. It passed a bond bill at 3 per cent. payable in coin instead of gold, and the Senate intensified the burlesque of national credit by substituting and passing a free silver bill. Had the present Congress passed a 3 per cent. gold bond bill, the bonds would have been taken at par or at a premium on Wednesday last, and would have commanded bids from every money centre of Europe as well as at home. The premium on a 4 per cent. bond necessary to make the interest on it but 3 per cent. must be $19.32 on every hundred dollars. In other words the bonds sold this week to make a 3 per cent. loan should have sold at $119.32. Not being payable in gold they have sold at $111, making a direct loss to the people of the country of $8,320,000. For this loss the present Republican Congress was answerable just as the Democratic Congress was answerable for the millions lost by the people when the last loan was disposed of.

The one fact that political leaders and partisan organs studiously conceal from the public in the sale of bonds made to the American syndicate last year, is that under the terms of the contract the syndicate was required to maintain the gold reserve for months after they received the bonds, and they did it with fidelity. To-day we have sold $100,000,000 of bonds which with the premium will realize $111,000,000 of gold in the Treasury, but nine-tenths of it is taken at home, and the gold must come either from the United States Treasury or from the gold reserve of the banks, and the banks will replenish their gold reserve from the Treasury whenever they need it. Thus while the gold reserve will be made whole at once, there is nothing to hinder the withdrawal of gold by millions from day to day, leaving the government no better off than before so far as the gold reserve is concerned.

The fact that five times the amount of the loan called for was bid may accomplish good results in establishing the credit of the government, and that may for a time hinder the withdrawal of gold from the treasury, but the government has no assurance whatever that the hundred millions of gold to be paid for these bonds will remain in the treasury a month. There is no way by which the government can hinder its withdrawal. It is the same "endless chain" telling the story of our miserable financial system, for which President Cleveland is in no way responsible, and which must be entirely re-modeled on a sound basis before the credit of the nation can be surely maintained. Let organs and leaders tell the truth, and the people will understand why they are robbed—not by banking syndicates, but by our idiotic financial system that Mr. Cleveland received as a legacy from Republican power.
