they can remain with the Populist party and not wind up with the Republican party. My friends if you are here, do not delude yourselves with that idea. Other men as honest, as sincere, as strong as you have tried that course and failed. I speak from a sad and bitter experience. In 1884 I voted with the Liberals in this State, I did not count on the certainty of drifting into the Republican party. Such an idea was repulsive to me. I would have resented such an imputation and denounced it. But in June, 1890, I found my self seeking the nomination for Judge at the bands of that party in the Second district-a party composed of 90 per cent of negroes. It was to them I was to look for the nomination. Every delegate in the convention was a black
