Naturally the question arises, what did the fusion Legis!atures cost the State? Both of those disgraceful and never-to-be-forgotten Assemblies came high. They were luxuries that the people of the State never care to indulge in again. The Fred Douglass affair, the one of 1895, cost the State $72,566.74.

Its running mate-the disorderly and turbulent Legislature of 1897-cost the State $70,-760.74.

When it is remembered that the present General Assembly was in session three days longer than either the Assembly of 1895 or 1897, it will be seen that the contrast in figures should be even greater than they appear.

All the clerical departments of of the Legislature just adjourned have been conducted with dispatch and on business principles. They have been free from the scandals that tainted both the fusion Assemblies. The Legislature was not made a vehicle of political reward without regard to cost and the welfare of the State. In this respect, as in nearly every other, the present Legislature has been as different from its two predecessors as has sunlight and darkness. The statement was made yesterday from a legal source that the employees of the Legislature would be entitled to draw pay continuously until it reconvened in June, 1900. It was claimed that the Legislature had not ads journed; that it was only taking a recess; and that by a strict interpretation of the law the employees could demand salary, It is a great pity to destroy a beautiful story like this, but it haps pens that the presiding officers of the Assembly have a say so in the payment of bills.
