NO 146

When the Circus Comes.
There's a sort of buzz feeling
That is spreading everywhere,
Making daily tasks so irksome
That they're mighty hard to bear,
And the people hang so busy
To their work can't settle down,
For all catch the floating fever
When the circus comes to town.

To the street all eyes are turning
Every time a crowd appears,
And each sound off in the distance
Causes pricking up of ears,
But at last there's end of waiting,
From each face has fled the frown,
For all rush to see the pageant
When the circus comes to town.

Fathers, mothers, aunts and uncles
Get the little ones in tow,
All declaring that the children
Must go down and see the show.
E'en to babies they're pointing
Out the beasts of great renown,
For the old excuse they're working
When the circus comes to town.

But 'tis always plainly noticed
That the grown ups no time waste;
Soon the savage beasts they're leaving
And right to the main tent haste,
For they want to see the riders,
Every athlete and each clown,
And their money's worth they're getting
When the circus comes to town.

Some are staying for the concert
That has been so highly praised;
Some are taking in the side shows,
There to be again amazed,
And the lemonade and peanuts
Are by gallons going down,
For the populace gets reckless
When the circus comes to town.

GOVERNORS OF NEW YORK.

Control of State Has Been Equally
Divided Between Parties.

Chicago Chronicle.

The Republicans and Democrats since the formation of the Republican party have each had control of the governorship of the state of New York for 23 years, the terms of Governors Robinson, Cornell, Cleveland, Hill and Flower being for three years. The election this fall will break the tie between the two great political parties. The Republicans have elected nine governors, as follows: John A. King, Edwin D. Morgan, Reuben E. Fenton, John A. Dix, Alonzo B. Cornell, Levi P. Morton, Frank S. Black, Theodore Roosevelt and Benjamin B. Odell, Jr. Morgan and Fenton served two terms. No Republican governor has been re-elected since Fenton, in 1866. It remains for Governor Odell to break the record. The Republican governors, with the exception of Fenton and Roosevelt, were all elected by big majorities. Black heads the list with 212,000. Morton had 146,000 and Odell 111,000. Dix was defeated for re-election in 1874. Morgan ran for governor again in 1876, but was defeated.

The Democrats during this period have elected seven governors, viz.: Horatio Seymour, John T. Hoffman, Samuel J. Tilden, Lucius Robinson, Grover Cleveland, David B. Hill and Roswell P. Flower. Hoffman and Hill were both re-elected. Seymour and Robinson were defeated for re-election. Cleveland had the largest majority, 182,000. Hill had a close call in 1885, getting in by 11,000 plurality. He ran again for governor in 1894 and was snowed under by 146,000 adverse majority.

Each party has re-elected two governors, while two Democrats were defeated at the polls for re-election and only one Republican. It will thus be seen that Governor Odell's chances for re-election are good this fall when viewed from a historical standpoint.

Of the Democratic governors only Cleveland and Hill survive, while of the Republicans Cornell, Morton, Black, Roosevelt and Odell are living. Governors Cleveland Roosevelt became presidents of the United States. Governor Morton was vice-president before he became governor. Governor Dix was a Democratic United States Senator before he became a Republican governor. Governor Dix was a Democratic United States Senator before he became a Republican governor. Governors Morton, Fenton and Hill became United States Senators, the latter holding for a while both offices at the same time.

VERDICT APPROVED.

Raleigh Post.

The jury that tried and executed the wretch Tom Jones was just as good a one as could have been otherwise chosen. There was no doubt of the identification, and, there is no doubt of swift and unerring justice. The verdict of the coroner's jury was as justifiable as was the promptness of the execution. The brute, we care not what his race, that commits such a crime as Jones committed, places himself outside the pale of all law, outlaws himself, in fact, and the reamer of his death is not a question to be considered; its promptness merits approval as well as satisfaction and this approval may as well be expressed by the coroner's jury as reflecting the sense of the public. The act of destruction as well as the approval of the jury are but the expressions of the public faith in the virtue of law and order and of the public determination to defend and maintain both. The sooner that all vicious brutes know and understand that, when they commit such crimes as that for which Jones has been shot to death will be hunted to certain destruction, the sooner the crimes will cease. And this decree should be as applicable to the white as to the black brute.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

EDITOR ARGUS:—I see from our papers and hear frequently from my good friends in Wayne county that I am named among the candidates for the nomination of Senator. While I heartily appreciate this complimentary mention of my name and the honor incident thereto, at the same time I am in no sense a candidate for the nomination. In justice to myself and friends I take this method of notifying my friends that the duties of my profession are so exacting that I cannot accept the nomination, even if tendered to me. This is final with me and I hope it will be so regarded.

There are good men who desire this nomination, and they are worth our confidence and support. Let us act calmly and discreetly and name the best man for the place.

I am willing to abide by the result of the nominating convention and hereby pledge my hearty support for the nominees from Senator to Constable.

All I ask is the continued confidence and good will of my fellow Democrats of Wayne county, and my old position "at the front" fighting against the enemies of Democracy.

Sincerely,

J. B. KENNEDY.

McClammy, N. C. 'Sept. 1, 1902.

THEY ARE COMING.

THE ONLY HORSE-RIDING
LIONS IN THE WORLD,
SULTAN AND SULTANA.

A new feature with the Norris & Rowe big trained animal shows which appear here next Friday are the two performing lions, Sultan and Sultana. It is a well established fact that these animals are more difficult to train than any others in the animal kingdom.

Lions and other cat animals, from the very fact that they are treacherous by nature and fierce by instinct, are the most dangerous pupils to instruct, and the work of perfecting them in their acts before they can be exhibited in public, sometimes lasts for months. During the entire period of their training the teacher never knows what moment he may have to battle for his life.

It is a mistake to imagine that performing cat animals are tractable and not dangerous. The fact that they are educated to do certain things does not change their nature in the least. Just as much caution is necessary to avert danger in entering a den containing trained lions, as though they were not trained at all.

Mr. Norris has succeeded in training these vicious animals to perform upon a pony's back while running at full speed around the ring.

He has been an animal trainer for many years and has made a constant study of their habits and dispositions.

It is largely due to this fact that he has been so successful. The factors that have led to his success are kindness, careful attention to the routine of the work as originally laid out, persistency, and above all rare patience and firmness of purpose.

A grand free street carnival and parade will be given at 11 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition at which time the entire costly aggregation of animals will be seen in all their splendor. Performances will be given at 2 and at 8 p. m.

THE VERDICT APPROVED.

The grand jury of Duplin county, in making their report last week to the judge of the Superior Court, embodied therein an expression of sympathy for their sister county of Wayne in regard to the recent Tom Jones outrage near Seven Springs, and a commendation of the verdict of the coroner's jury over the lynched negro.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which strengthens the whole digestive system

And here's another soul; she's tired;
Seems earth would cast her off.
She's penitent, but oh! so tired
Of scorn and scowl and scoff.

Be patient, soul; the deeds we do
We never can undo.
But heaven beheld, and still beholds,
And heaven will see you through.

The old folks, too, are tired to-night,
But, ah! How patient—see?
What once to them seemed pure delight,
Seems now but vanity.

Life's little day is almost spent;
Its sun sinks in the west,
They're ready and they're waiting for

The call: "Come home and rest!"

OPEN WOOD FIRE PLACES

We like them best because they give good ventilation and prevent a room being close and too hot. Hence good health results are furnished at the Bingham School near Mebane, N. C. Besides they are so bright and cheery. All the students at Bingham enjoy them.

A newspaper offered a prize recently for the best answer to the question, "What are the reasons that keep a woman from marrying?" A horrid, cynical male creature carried off one of the prizes with a list of sixteen "reasons." Among them were: Her inability to make up her mind. The horror of being "given away." The unhappy result of most marriages. The fascination of continuous flirtation. The uncertain quality of a husband's temper. The glory of never having accepted a proposal. The scarcity of desirable, or even tolerable men. Her satisfaction in saying "no," when she means "yes." The saving in human life through the absence of bad cookery. The objectionable clause in the marriage service relating to obedience. Her natural unselfishness places the happiness of the man she loves before her own, and she remains single.
