

AS WE GO ALONG.

Things That Are Best Come to Him Who Waits and Works: There Are Times of Sorrow, But We Can Leave Them Uncounted In the General Sum,
If We Will It
That Way.

Because I hold it sinful to despond, And will not let the bitterness of life Blind me with burning tears, but look beyond Its tumult and its strife; Because I lift my head above the mist, Where the sun shines and the broad breezes blow,
By every ray and every raindrop kissed
That God's love doth bestow, Think you I find no bitterness at all?
No burden to be borne, like Christian's pack?
Think you there are no ready tears to fall Because I keep them back?
Why should I hug life's ills with cold reserve,
To curse myself and all who love me? Nay!
A thousand times more good than I deserve God gives me every day.
And in each one of these rebellious tears Kept bravely back He makes a rainbow shine;
Grateful I take His slightest gift.
No fears
Nor any doubts are mine.
Dark skies must clear, and when the clouds are past, One golden day redeems a weary year; Patient I listen, sure that sweet, at last,
Will sound His voice of cheer.

As has been in substance pleaded in this place many a time, it is pleaded again, because true hearts demand, we have got to look and listen; to reflect, to keep our minds open for the reception of truth, and all life is an anthem. There is a hymn in every breeze, melody in every zephyr, tender harmony in every ray of sunshine, and in every flower kissed to life by the sunbeams that dance from the darkest clouds which may lower above us on our journey to the everlasting slumberland in the sphere we know not of in our common human conception.
One golden afternoon compensates us for many a day of gloom. All our yesterdays may have been unhappy, but the one to-day of joy leads us to acclaim all this life joyous. And so it is. There are times of sorrow; but we can leave them uncounted in the general sum if we will it that way.
The world is ours for joy, not for mourning. Long-faced repining is a disease of the mind, or it is actual hypocrisy.

Better love your fellowman, love the flowers and the trees and the birds and the dumb beasts, than to love your own ambition to make a show of yourself in black type in the public journals. Better the faithful attachment of one beloved friend who will love you unselfishly than the thunders of plaudits of a hundred thousand of the unthinking ones, who would cheer you as loudly for jumping off a bridge, swimming a river or slaughtering men as they would if you leaped into the Presidency or over a steeple. Better be accounted a good man in your street than a hero with a world-resounding name and a world-filling vanity, for heroes are too numerous and bothersome, while the demand for good men is perpetual.

Be patient—be good—be happy.
There is no room at the top of the world; it is over-crowded. Let your sober thoughts never learn to stray in that direction. Be worthy, be fit, and the top will not appear to be worth your while. The friendship and good opinion of those amongst whom you make your home are worth all the top ever had to offer since the vanity of man fashioned it to break human hearts and destroy the careers of the deserving.

Whoso has one friend, we are told, is fortunate; whoso has two friends is blessed. That is the essence of all truth of man's worldly well-being.
If one merits friendship one receives it, a solace and a comfort beyond all reckoning. Thus friendship is something vastly more than a name, as most of us know, more than "a charm that lulls to sleep"—more than "a shade that follows wealth or fame and leaves the wretch to weep." It is the one great blessing that makes life worth the living in the sense of worldly comfort and spirit of contentment, and therefore it calls forth in honest hearts the noblest sense of gratefulness that man may feel. Added to the joy of having a friend is the joy of being to that friend ever faithful, and so the gentle blessing nurtures the tender virtue which from oldest days to this good time has held man above the brute forces and lifted him into communion with the Most High. Friendship, faith, truth, these be transcendent over all the wickedness, the follies, the shortcomings of humanity, blessed virtues that in the end must sway the world to universal sweetness and light!

Hail to our friends! Good day, good morrow, good and sweet afternoons. Things that are best come to him who waits and works. Patience brings its offering, great or small, as one's deserts may be—if small, still great to him who expects little while he loves much and loves long. Across the space of the afternoons the light still breaks in gentle radiance. And so it is good day, and so it shall be good morrow.

Cures Rheumatism and Catarrh.
Medicine Sent Free.
Send no money—simply write and try Botanic Blood Balm at our expense. Botanic Blood Balm (P. B.
B.) kills or destroys the poison in the blood which causes the awful aches in back and shoulder blades, shifting pains, difficulty in moving fingers, toes or legs, bone pains, or swollen muscles and joints of rheumatism, or the foul breath, hawking, spitting, droppings in throat, bad hearing, specks flying before the eyes, all played out feeling of catarrh. Botanic Blood Balm has cured hundreds of cases of 30 or 40 years' standing after doctors, not springs and patent medicines had all failed. Most of these cured patients had taken Blood Balm as a last resort. It is especially advised for chronic, deep-seated cases. Impossible for any one to suffer the agonies or symptoms of the rheumatism or catarrh while or after taking Blood Balm. It makes the blood pure and rich, thereby giving a healthy blood supply. Cures are permanent and not a patching up.
Drug stores $1 per large bottle.
