

MAJOR STEDMAN.

A PROMINENT CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

What a Life Long Friend Who Knows Men and How to Estimate Them Has to Say of This Patriotic North Carolinian.

The following is from the pen of Dr. Kingsbury, clipped from Sunday's Raleigh News & Observer:

There was a highly appropriate, patriotic, exhilarating and impressive address at Charlotte on the birthday of Gen. Robert Edward Lee, the peerless Knight of the Ages, without fear, without reproach, by that gifted alumnus of the University of North Carolina, faithful, ever true citizen and distinguished and most honorable lawyer, Major Charles Manly Stedman, of Greensboro. It is very good reading for this decadent day, when honor is kept in abeyance, and commercialism and greedy money-grabbers rule the country, and is full of fine conceptions and noble sentiments every way worthy of the true and manly man who spoke them. It fitted the time, the place, the State, and was distinctively North Carolinian in tone and principles. It was full of grand views and high ideals of citizenship, and unbroken devotion to duty, and in style was much above the average productions of our day of much speechmaking. Read the following warning to his countrymen, and it is well bated, for the signs are ominous and ruin is ahead under the leadership of enemies and marplots and corruptionists and demagogues of the most despicable type. The political thimble-riggers and vile abusers of opportunities, under Roosevelt, the marauder and political gambler, have for their motto and plan of operation—"Confusion, and illusion, and relation, Elusion, and occasion, evasion." In contrast read this admirable extract among many equally fine and impressive that could be selected, from the noble Stedman:

"The day will come, though I trust it may be far distant, when the intentions and ideas of the founders of this government will be disregarded by those who, in the wild greed for money and amidst the dissolute luxury, engendered by the vast accumulation of wealth, have forgotten the teachings of purer and better days; and the very existence of a constitutional form of government, as framed by our ancestors, will be in jeopardy. Then will be found amongst a people regenerated by fire and blood, that high and broad and lofty patriotism which shall constitute them the strongest, safest and best defenders of the land of our fathers in its entirety. And as the suffering and oppressed of every land and every clime shall still turn their steadfast gaze towards the western hemisphere, they shall rise up and call you blessed.

"Have you learned naught from the silent endurance, the patient agony, the deathless valor of the Confederate soldier? His life and his conduct have taught us the lesson over again which history has ever repeated."

I have known Major Charles M. Stedman since September, 1876. I saw much of him until he removed his residence to another town some years ago. The impression he made upon me early in our acquaintance; remains fixed—that of an honest and honorable gentleman, without guile, without hypocrisy, brave, resolute, self-contained, trustworthy every way, sincere, unalterable in principle, and faithful to his pledges, to his own high character and to his friends. He was a very gallant soldier in the great, disastrous war. I heard more than thirty years ago, a captain in Pender's grand old Thirtieth Regiment, say once—"I do not know personally who the Major Stedman I see mentioned in the newspapers is, but if he is the Major Stedman I saw in battle, I am sure I never saw a braver man in the war."

Major Stedman, like his race, is fearless. But he is forbearing, kind, gentle. He is a gentleman in the high sense of that most sadly abused word, of real ability, of exalted character, of chivalrous nature, and can be trusted always, whether in time of war or in time of peace, to do his duty, whether at the bar, in civic life, or as Governor of a great State. His life shows that with him the keynote of character is to "Live pure, speak true, right wrong Else, wherefore born?"

He has that refined character which when united with gentleness and sympathy and "wed with manhood, makes a MAN."

OH THE FOLLY OF IT ALL!

This man actually made himself lame by walking all over the country looking for suitable material with which to build a house. He wanted good lumber, good brick, and good shingles; but his means were limited, and the prices at the mills were beyond his reach until he found A. T. GRIFFIN, who at once proved to him the folly of walking all over the face of the earth trying to find what he desired at reasonable prices. The man got what he wanted and went away wiser, and declared he would know where to go next time.

Mr. Griffin's Brick plant is situated just outside of the city limits, on the Southern Railroad, and his Lumber and Shingle plant is on the banks of Neuse river, near the mouth of Little river. When you need anything in his line, call on him or write your wants to
