TWO SOLDIERS KILLED.

TWO SERIOUSLY INJURED THIS AFTERNOON.

Four of the Durham Company Undertook to Ride the Top of the Train With the Above Result.

As the second section of the troop train, moving the State Guard to-day from their ten days' encampment at Morehead City, pulled out from La-Grange this afternoon on its way to this city, four members of Company A., of Durham, Capt. E. F. White, commandant, viz, privates Burney Warren, Bunch Johnson, S. F. Cates and Will McDade, all of whom had got out of their company car at La-Grange to get a drink and were more or less under the influence of liquor, climbed to the top of the coach, and although ordered down by their company officer, in charge, persisted in remaining in their perilous position, singing as they rode, until they reached Stoney Creek covered bridge, two miles east of this city, where the accident as recorded in the heading of this article occurred.

The train as it approached and ran through this bridge was going at a speed of 45 miles an hour, engineer Russell at the throttle and conductor Davis in charge. The four men were sitting with their back towards the locomotive, and consequently were struck on the back of their head by the heavy timber of the bridge cover. Warren and Johnson were killed instantly, their heads being fearfully crushed. The other two, Cates and McDade received fearful head wounds, the extent of which at this hour cannot be determined, and all that saved them from a like instant and shocking death was that their now dead companions were sitting somewhat in front of them and being struck first fell against them knocking them forward and somewhat breaking the force with which they struck the bridge, and also bending them forward a little.

This is the account of the affair as told by Cates himself, who is conscious and does not seem to be fatally hurt, and was taken on to Durham, together with the dead bodies of Warren and Johnson, on the troop train. McDade is more seriously hurt and is now in the Goldsboro Hospital, where he was borne on a litter by the Hospital corps and the two surgeons of the company, accompanied by Gen. B. S. Royster, Adjutant-General, and Col. Jos. E. Robinson, secretary of the Hospital Board, and where Dr. John Spicer was quickly summoned and promptly responded and deftly dressed the injured man's wounds, and where he is now receiving every possible attention.

The accident is distressing and greatly to be deplored; but the fault lies entirely with the injured men, who, in direct violation of their commandant's orders, vacated their company's coach and climbed to the roof, where their presence was unknown until the train ran into this city, with the two dead and the two injured lying on the top of the car, bleeding profusely. As the train came round the curve at the Rice mill, an engineer of another train, on the side track, saw the bodies lying on the top of the car and blew his whistle calling engineer Russell to an emergency standstill, to which he quickly responded, and this was his first knowledge of the accident.

Two Fine Sheep.

Two of the finest sheep ever seen in this city passed through by express to-day, from the Valley Crucis Stock farm, of Valley Crucis, N. C., and were being shipped to E. M. Johnson & Son, of Wilson, N. C.

They were admired by everybody who saw them. The largest one would probably weigh two-hundred or two-hundred and fifty lbs., and was indeed a fine specimen.
