The Latest Telegraphic News of the Day Boiled Down to a Focus For Busy Readers.

Abingdon, Va., March 24.—Robt. Turner, a negro was hanged here today for the murder of Louise Jefferson, colored.

Now that the tender season is at hand the old discussion about bathing suits has been resumed. It bids fair to continue until we all become birds and there will be no further necessity for such garments. In the meanwhile, watch pious folk, the paragraphs and the doggerel poets.

Cleveland, O., March 27.—Unless the higher court interferes, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick will spend the greater part of the next ten years in the Ohio State penitentiary. A sentence of ten years was imposed upon her by Judge Robert W. Taylor in the United States Court this evening.

An impoverished French nobleman is trying to dispose of his title to an American millionaire. The price will no doubt be rather high but they who have a longing to be addressed as "My lord" now have an opportunity to satisfy that vanity. There are very few things these days that money will not buy.

Professor Prentiss of Rutgers College, says that Mars is inhabited by intelligent farmers. The canals are not canals after all but strips of cultivated land. The beauty about Mars is that every scientific dreamer can entertain a notion of his own and need not consider the possibility of any one rising up on the planet to call him a liar.

It was "Five Weeks in a Balloon" and not "six." Mr. Verne could have made it six easily enough. There was no limit to his imagination but he wrote it "five." This reminds one that a contemporary mentioned "Forty leagues Under the Sea." The first mistake was a case of staying too long, the second a case of not going deep enough.

Gunshu Piss, March 27.—8 p. m.—The Japanese apparently have withdrawn from the region to the south of the Russian front. Cossack patrols which have been making extensive reconnaissance southward found no Japanese within 35 miles. General Lanewich is despatching scouting parties east and west to guard against a possible turning movement.

New York, March 27.—Blown through a break in a tunnel in the East River by an explosion today, carried to the surface of the water and shot twenty feet into the air, Richard Crocodon, a laborer, was rescued only slightly hurt. His escape from death seemed almost miraculous. Three of his companions were rescued in the tunnel and carried out, all painfully but not seriously injured.

Paris, March 27.—In the Chamber of Deputies today Count B. de Castellane, speaking upon the bill for the separation of church and State, declared that as the bill stood it would destroy the church. He blamed the Republicans for not respecting the Catholics, whereas in other republics, notably in the United States, Catholics were respected. It was, said Castellane, a duel between God and demagogy, and God would probably win.

Wilmington, N. C., March 27.—It was announced today that effective April 1st, W. H. Newell, Superintendent of the Norfolk district of the Atlantic Coast Line is appointed to succeed as Superintendent of the Charleston division G. G. Lynch, who was appointed last week to succeed Mr. W. N. Roy as general superintendent of the first division, E. E. Wooten, of Rocky Mount, superintendent of the Fayetteville district, is appointed to succeed Mr. Newell in Norfolk.

The Congreg. local ministers of New England, by a vote held with the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions accepting $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller, have put themselves on record as determined not to receive donations tainted by trust methods. This despite the fact that they were looking a gift horse under the nose and not despite the fact that the protest is a most scathing indictment of a man who would do this to a considerable favor. The mimics have taken a stand that have already started a lively discussion. Many institutions in this country would be poorer now if they had refused to accept Standard Oil donations. Dr. Harpers is not one of your flimsy persons and takes all the Rockefeller money he can get. There are lots of other people who would be glad to relieve Mr. Rockefeller of some of his riches and no questions would be asked.

WORKING HUMAN NATURE.

A story which is going the rounds of the northern press demonstrates that if you know how to work human nature properly it is more profitable than a gold mine. An electric railway company doing business in a northern city recently put this knowledge of human nature to work in a most novel way.

The company had a park, the soil of which it wanted to plow up and put to roughly at a small cost, at the same time attracting some traffic to the park. It therefore buried $500 in gold coin in various parts of the park and threw the place open to any patron of the street cars that wished to dig, prescribing only that none but small hand implements should be used.

The plan worked admirably. The cars were thronged with amateur miners, and by the time all the coin was found the entire surface of the park had been loosened up and reduced to powder to an extent that no landscape gardener ever saw equaled. The street car company got its $500 back in fares and at the same time got its park thoroughly plowed for nothing.

Many will tenderly recall the old school rector story of the dying father who called his sons to his bedside and informed them that though the old farm he was about to leave them was worn out and had become unproductive, there was buried somewhere upon it a great treasure and where they would persue intly dig for it they would surely find rich reward. The sons dugged, turning the old farm upside down and inside out, and though they found no signs of the gold they expected their harvests of gold to be enormous and their reward was richer than they knew.

Through some peculiarity in our construction we are willing to work ten times as hard to "get something for nothing" as to earn it in ordinary ways.

A scoundrel would exercise more cunning and energy in beating somebody out of a dollar than would be called for in acquiring $10 honestly. And he thinks he has got the dollar for nothing! Poor fool!

The gambler shows all his surplus earnings over the table and what he wins now and then he shoves after them. Whenever he has anything to lose he counts himself ahead of the game. His hope, his patience, his susceptibility to failure, if enlisted in a worthy occupation, might bring him substantial success.

It is a very decided weakness in human nature through which all of us are inclined to regard as clear gain only that which comes unearned. And in striving to get more than we earn we perform unrewarded labors which, if rightly applied, would bring us far more than we get. It is easy for a shrewd man to make a tool of human nature, but none of us are wise enough to fool old nature herself into giving up more than is worked for.

If the efforts that are made to get something for nothing were all turned to useful, productive pursuits, this world would be overflowing with plenty, and poverty would fade into a mere tradition.

Letter to Borden Cotton Mill, Goldsboro, N. C.

Dear Sirs: You are a maker; so are we. You know what you make; you know all about it. We know our paint as you know your goods.

We know what it is, how it acts, what it does, how it lives, and how long—the conditions being favorable or unfavorable. It is fair that we take the risk of it every way; but we ought not to risk any use or abuse of it. Can't draw the line. We are dealing with strangers. We are strangers to them as they are strangers to us. We want to be trusted by them. We trust them first; that's the way to get trusted. We trust them to paint with a fair degree of common-paint knowledge and care. We expect to be trusted to furnish paint as good as paint can be, and to last as long as paint can.

If you do your business that way, you are a fellow with us and one of a thousand.

A few mean men in the course of a year will abuse our trust and put us to loss; but 999 in 1,000 will tell their friends how true we are, and our paint is. That's what has made us the largest paint concern in the world. It is our best advertisement.

Yours truly, F. W. LYONS & Co. P. S.—Smith & Yelverton sell our paint.

THE TRUTH IN EDUCATION.

In his interesting and instructive address on "The Problems of a Modern University" Dr. J. H. Penniman, dean of the academic department of the University of Pennsylvania, declared that the supreme aim of a great university was "absolute fidelity to truth for truth's sake apart from personal opinion or personal gain." Certainly there could be no higher purpose in the training of the youth for the battle of life; for, as Dr. Baker said, one of the purposes of an institution of learning is first to conserve knowledge; secondly, to disseminate knowledge; and thirdly, to impart knowledge. But none of these three functions can be successfully performed without fidelity to truth unbiased by individual preferences or individual feelings. This devotion to truth goes hand in hand with a devotion to duty which itself finds application in three important objects in the acquisition of knowledge, and these are, as Dr. Penniman stated, to interpret the past, to measure the present, to forecast the future. All of these are useless if not honestly done. In a word, it may be said that the great purpose of the teacher should be to find out the truth and tell it truthfully to the pupil.

Some years ago a well-known teacher in one of the leading theological seminaries in this country published the results of some of his historical researches, and created widespread dissatisfaction among members of the denomination by which the institution was established and governed. A good many members of the denomination hold that the publication of these views did not and could not have a wholesome effect upon the church, and insisted upon the teacher's resignation. He himself held that his duty was to find out the truth to the best of his ability and impart that truth to the students. He was right. Had he neglected to do this he would have failed to perform his duties. It is often the case that the truth is unpleasant. Sometimes it even hurts. Still, he who fails to impart it a truth because it may be disadvantageous to the financial, social or other interests of the institution of learning in which he is an instructor does not perform the functions of education.

The object of education is not to find out or impart what may be pleasant or interesting or in line with individual opinions or preferences. That kind of an education is practically worthless. One of the great aims of education is to encourage good morals, and this cannot be done if truth does not enter into the work. As Dr. Penniman said, the University man should have ideals and should strive to keep faith with his ideals. He cannot do this without a strict adherence to the truth as he finds it.

SECT'Y WILSON'S LONG SERVICE.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has started swimmingly on his third term, and if he completes it he will have served longer in the cabinet than any other man, with one single exception. Mr. Wilson was appointed by McKinley when the latter first became President, and he will round out a service of twelve years if he stays in the cabinet until the end of Mr. Roosevelt's present term, as he undoubtedly will. He is both a farmer and a politician, and that combination is not found in every locality.

Washington, March 27.—Acting under authority of the special act of congress, General Ainsworth, the military secretary, today began the arrangements for the delivery to the governors of all the southern states affected of all Confederate battle flags captured by the union forces during the civil war.

SOUTHERNER'S GOOD FORTUNE.

Sam Hoover Finds Something Better Than Gold Mines. There is no happier man in this whole wide world today than Sam A. Hoover, Green-boro, N. C., who is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his fortunate find of something better than gold mines or oil wells. Mr. Hoover in a letter to a friend in Goldsboro writes: "Three months ago I was greatly distressed by nasal catarrh and entire deafness in the right ear. The labor of hawking and scraping to get my throat and nasal passages free from the foul secretions deposited there, might be about equal to that of a six mule team with a road-scraper to get the earth from the road-side to the center.

I purchased an outfit of Hyomei and Hyomei balm, and as a result of its use my head, throat and nasal passages are all free from secretions of any sort, only as Nature designed, and my hearing in both ears is nearly as acute as it ever was. There is no disagreeable stomach drug in using Hyomei; just breathe it and its pure fragrance will kill the catarrhal germs in the head, throat and lungs. Hyomei balm used in conjunction with Hyomei, will cure the worst case of catarrhal deafness. The complete outfit costs but $1., and extra bottles are only 50 cents. Ask J. H. Hill & Son to show you the strong guarantee card which they sell Hyomei. It costs nothing unless it cures."

Julie Verne is dead! The truth is, that woman, those seemingly improbable dreams of science and adventure has ceased to toil an after long years of literary labor one of the most famous romancers of her day has lain down to sleep. Jules Verne was not a great writer—his books are not even literature, but he will be remembered for "Around the World in Eighty Days," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," "The Mysterious Island," "Six Weeks in a Balloon" and a long list of other works that emanated from his fertile brain.

Washington, March 27.—Acting under authority of the special act of congress, General Ainsworth, the military secretary, today began the arrangements for the delivery to the governors of all the southern states affected of all Confederate battle flags captured by the union forces during the civil war. At the same time the military secretary addressed a letter to each of the governors informing them of the action of congress and of the steps taken by the war department for the return of the battle flags.

THE YOUNGEST CHILD OF GENERAL ROBT. E. LEE DEAD.

New Orleans, La., March 28.—General Stephen D. Lee, commanding the United States Confederate Veterans, issued the following orders today: "A feeling of sorrow, deep and profound, will enter every Southern home this morning when it is learned that Miss Mildred Lee, the youngest child of our immortal chieftain, Robert E. Lee, died suddenly in this city yesterday.

"Gifted by nature with a wonderful mind, the liberal education which her father gave her, improved and broadened by extensive travel and close observation, set her apart as an ideal representative of the womanhood of the South, her queenly and courteous bearing called forth the admiration of all who were so fortunate as to know her. She was devoted to old soldiers of the Confederate armies and was never as happy as when in conversation with one of them, or talking to others of the glorious deeds of our boys. Her untimely death is a distinct loss to the whole South, and an extreme grief to every Confederate veteran.

"By command of "STEPHEN D. LEE, "General Commanding."

Usefulness. To desire and strive to be of some service to the world, to aim at doing something which shall really increase the happiness and welfare and virtue of all. This is a choice which is possible for us all, and surely it is something worth striving for. The more we think of it, the more attractive and desirable it becomes. To do it thoroughly well, to make our toil count for something in addition to the sum total of what is actually profitable (or unprofitable), to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, or better still, to make one wholesome idea take root in a mind that was bare and fallow, to make our example count for something on the side of honesty and cheerfulness and courage and good faith, and love. This is an aim for life which is very wide—as wide as the world and yet very definite, as clear as light. It is not in the least vague. It is only free, it has the power to embody itself in a thousand forms and to be changing its character. Those who seek it know what it means, however it may be expressed. It is real and genuine and satisfying. There is nothing beyond it because there can be no higher practical result of effort.

TRIBUTE TO MILDRED LEE

The alarm of fire was turned in today about 3 o'clock, and when the brush brigade arrived on the scene, the woods between our shanty and the rail road were wrapped in flames, and threatened the fences and the property of neighbor Toby Howell. The kind neighbors turned out at the ringing of our farm bell, and by hard work succeeded in preventing any serious damage, other than that done the timber and destruction of all the small growth, and a vast lot of light-wood. The fire originated from a darkey's new-ground. In behalf of each one interested, we tender a note of thanks to each of our kind neighbors for their valuable assistance.

Miss Mildred Lee Dead.

New Orleans, March 28.—Miss Mildred Curtis Lee, youngest daughter of the noted Confederate chieftain Robert E. Lee, died here suddenly last night of apoplexy. Miss Lee visited New Orleans during the carnival and remained over as the guest of Mrs. W. A. Preston Johnson. She was to have left today for her home in Virginia. The body will be sent there for interment. Miss Lee was born at the Lee home-stead at Arlington during the civil war.

Mr. Chas. S. Andrews, form Kingston, spent Sunday night at "Oak Glen" where his visits are always enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Massey from the Oakland section were visitors at Mrs. Millie Swinson last Sunday, after services at Ebenezer.

Miss Annie Hoston who has had charge of the school at Ebenezer returned to her home in East Durham today, school having closed Friday.

Neighbor Toby Howell had garden "Sass" for dinner today. He is so sure to have a fine garden, as he is pulling the tags off of "Georgia Beauty."

Mrs. R. P. Howell and Mrs. Jack Smith, of your city attended church at Ebenezer Sunday, and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ruse.

Capt. R. P. Howell, and Mr. E. F. Atkinson, of your city attended church here Sunday and were visitors at Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Howell's.

Mr. Harry Chandler and Miss Hattie S. Roohan, and Mr. M. M. McKim and Miss Louise Massey from Princeton visited Miss Lezue Becton Sunday afternoon.

While fighting fire today, Toby burst his shoe, and his sock blazed up and he says when he found it out it was burning "just like walking up town, and he went down after it."

The Quarterly Meeting for Goldsboro Circuit convened Saturday and Sunday last. On Saturday the Presiding Elder Davis conducted the services. On Sunday Rev. W. L. Cunningham of St. Paul Church preached a fine sermon, to a large and appreciative congregation.

There's a movement on foot to consolidate Pine Forest and Walter schools, and erect a new and modern school building, at the Forks of the road, between the Southern R. R. and Mr. John M. Mitchell. If it is carried into effect it will give the community a ten months school, besides adding another step in the line of progress.

Some one entered Mr. Jess Crocker's dining room last Friday night, and carried off quite a lot of things for the inner man, consisting of flour, sugar, eggs, potatoes, milk and numerous good things. Mrs. Crocker had prepared for quarterly meeting. It is supposed to have been traps, as the tracks led from and back to the rail road, and one man could not have well managed it all.

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.
