CONGRESSMAN THEODORE BURTON.

There is still talk of making Mr. Burton chairman of the appropriations committee, but great as that position is, it would not be a promotion to Thedore Burton. Not that he would not make a fine chairman of that committee and an effective floor leader, but he should not be transferred, because he knows more gins Drug Co. about rivers and harbors than all the rest of Congress. He is inflexibly honest, and he will not permit any considerable sums to be wasted on a work that will never bring results. He stands by any river or harbor that the people need and will use. Some small sums are forced through over his head, but no considerable money is voted against his judgment. Every member of Congres knows he is the one man who cannot be deseived as to the need of improvement of a given river or harbor. He knows the commercial possibility and value of every one of them, and this is why he should be returned at the head of the rivers and harbors committee.

The long and short of it is, the head of the country needs him at the head of the committee that he has long honored. He is had, and he is should stay where he is as long as he stays in the House. Some day when horse sense gains the ascedancy in Ohio he may be sent to the Sanate, and that will be soon enough to transfer him from the rivers and harbors committee to put on the noseguards.
