WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Congress may adjourn for the session leaving a good record of work done, but thus far the alcohol bill is the only great measure that has been perfected. The isthmian canal business is only fairly started in the Senate, and no vote has been taken in either House defining the nature of the canal. And yet it is important that the government should know whether it is to build a lock canal, or one at sea level.

Railroad rate regulation is another great measure, and it is before both Houses on a report from a conference committee. The present week may determine the term of this epochal bill. It is beyond all doubt the chief work of the session, outranking even the canal discussion, and yet it may prove disappointing to the people, for all rate questions are, after all, to be settled in the courts.

Another important measure relates to new states. The conference report is in favor of the admission of the Indian Territory and Oklahoma as one state, and the submission to the voters of New Mexico and Arizona of the question of statehood. Either Arizona or New Mexico can at the polls defeat a joint state movement. Senator Foraker desires to drop New Mexico and Arizona from the bill altogether, and the question will have to be fought out on the floor of each House before the statehood bill can be passed.

The beef inspection bill, as it stands, is an amendment of the agricultural appropriation bill. It is known as the Beveridge amendment. It went through the Senate the stronghold of privilege, and it seems strange that a matter which relates to the food of the people should be tied up in the House. It is an extremely important matter, and Congress dare not adjourn until it perfects a method of inspecting meats and provisions in the packing houses of the country.

Another important measure is the Knox immunity bill. It has been passed by the Senate. The bill aims to undo the decision of Judge Humphreys in the Chicago beef cases. Humphreys held that the beef trust magistrates could not be prosecuted criminally because they had furnished information to Commissioner Garfield. The Knox bill cuts out information voluntarily given, and confines immunity from prosecution to a natural person only who, in obedience to a subpoena, gives testimony under oath or produces evidence, documentary or otherwise, under oath. No corporation may be compelled to testify against itself. It will thus be seen that the Knox bill is one of the session's important measures.

These are the four big bills pending—the isthmian canal, statehood, rate regulation and the immunity bill—but there are also pending the Philippine tariff bill, the immigration bill and the quarantine bill. The free alcohol bill alone has gone to the President. All the rest remain in the one House or the other, or in both, to be acted on, besides the regular appropriation bills. An adjournment before July seems improbable.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GRANT AND FRAZIER.

Their Nominations Not Likely to be Confirmed at This Session of Congress.

There is no longer any doubt of the fact that the nomination of Cyrus P. Frazier to be postmaster at Greensboro and L. N. Grant to be postmaster at Goldsboro will not be confirmed at this session. These gentlemen can truthfully attribute their failure to be on the government payroll at this moment to Marion Butler, an ex-Senator from North Carolina. Although a member of the present Congress, Mr. Blackburn has been out-manoeuvred by the former Populist leader. Blackburn has signally failed in his effort to enlist the support of Republicans on the post-office committee, who, at the instance of Butler, have prevented the confirmation of two Republicans, against whom here is as little evidence of wrong doing as any from North Carolina, whose names have ever been presented to the Senate. Butler fixed the cards against Grant and Frazier before Blackburn got started. To do this he had to deal with Penrose, of Pennsylvania, and Carter of Missouri. Both of them are now enlisted under the Butler banner, and have succeeded in holding up for half a year the nomination of veterans against whom there are no serious charges.

In this game of politics which Butler has won so manfully, there will be a sequel in the course of a few weeks when congress shall have adjourned, it will be up to the President to name postmasters for Goldsboro and Greensboro. Ordinarily the executive would send in the nominations of Grant and Frazier as recess appointments in view of the fact that no serious charges are preferred against them; but it is not to be supposed for a moment that the wily Butler will sit idly by and permit such a performance. He will be at the White House on the heels of the two nominees as this session of Congress becomes a memory, while Blackburn will undoubtedly go his length to have their names sent in a second time. Blackburn has the greater incentive, for recess appointments for Grant and Frazier mean immediate possession of office for them. The victory is Butler's to date. Blackburn has the opportunity of changing defeat into success. Will he be able to do it? If he has more influence at the White House than Butler he will. The contest will be the greatest in which these two warring Republicans ever engaged. It is an event starting at this minute, with the self boasting administrator of the square deal hovering over the post.

WHERE OPPRESSION COMES FROM.

Governor Hanley of Indiana is a republican, and in an address at Purdue university on Memorial day he discussed at length and with rare emphasis the criminal aggressions of incorporated and aggregated wealth against the individual. He expressed a desire that the muck raker should remain as long as the muck bed does. He then said:
"The American people are at the beginning of a great revolution. As yet there is in literal sense no call to arms. There are no drum beats, no bugle blasts; but the revolution is upon us."
"Stupendous social, economic and political changes are involved. Deeply imbedded in the very core and center of this revolution, running like a thread of gold through all its shifting scenes and changing forms, are certain fundamental principles of human right and of human liberty and unless we, in our day, and especially you in your day, possess a willingness to seek for means and the wisdom to find them and the patriotism and the courage to proclaim them, to stand by them, and save them when found, the call to arms, the drum beats, the bugle blasts, the serried ranks, the marching columns and the battle fields will come to us and to you as certainly as in the past they came to our fathers."

So they may, but why did not Governor Hanley have the courage to tell his hearers that the source, the inspiration, the beginning, the real impulse and impetus of monopoly and plutocratic despotism in this country is the Dingley tariff, and that until that devilish device for taxing the many for the benefit of the few is essentially modified and put on a strictly revenue basis, there is no possible way in which free and open competition can be reestablished in this country. Big and little Standard Oils and big trusts will spring up and thrive at the expense of consumers and to the destruction of individual rights just so long as our Chinese wall stands in all its present enormity and injustice and out-and-out robbery of the people.

Governor Hanley should have had the courage of his convictions. He should have assailed the national Upsa tree first of all.

Candidate For Solicitor.
To the Democratic Voters; of the Sixth Judicial District:

If the Democrats of this District see fit to honor me with the nomination and election, I will endeavor, faithfully and conscientiously, to perform the duties of the office as the law requires.
Very Respectfully,
W. B. SNOW.

A Modern Miracle.

"Truly miraculous" seemed the recovery of Mrs. Mollie Holt of this place," writes J. H. Hooper, Woodford, Tenn. "She was so wasted by coughing up phlegm from her lungs. Doctors declared her end so near that her family had watched her bed-side forty-eight hours; when, at my urgent request Dr. King's New Discovery was given her, with astonishing result that improvement began, and continued, and until she finally completely recovered, and is a healthy woman to-day."
