

THE LOVING-ESTES CASE. JUDGE LOVING'S DAUGHTER ON WITNESS STAND.

She Relates The Tale She Told Her Father That Impelled Him to do the Deed of Death.

Special to THE ARGUS.

Houston, Va., June 26.—Following the evidence of Judge Loving yesterday afternoon, Miss Margaret Loving, the daughter in the case, took the stand.

Miss Loving testified that she was twenty years old, that her relations with her father were always affectionate; that he had "always been a most devoted father."

"Relate to the jury in your own words everything that took place between yourself and your father when he called you into his room."

"He told me that Uncle Harry Snead had told him that Theodore Estes had brought me home the night before in a drunken and unconscious condition and he wanted me to explain to him what it all meant. I went over and knelt down by my father and put my arms around him and he put his arms around me and as soon as I could speak I told him that while I was in Lovington Theodore Estes had asked me to go driving with him; that I at first refused; but that on Annie Kidd's insisting, I did go finally, but thought I would only go a little ways. I did not put my hat on; just thought it would be a short drive. We first drove out towards Oak Ridge station, drove out about half way to Oak Ridge station, then turned around and came back and drove down through Lovington and stopped at his house. He told me he was going in his house a minute, would I wait there and hold the horse until he came back. He was in the house about five or six minutes. He came back and we drove on down through Lovington, through the Gap and down below Mr. Coleman's old place; turned around and came back towards Lovington. Just before we got to the Gap he took out his bottle of whiskey and asked me to take a drink of it, and I did take a swallow of it, I told father I thought it must have been drugged, because I immediately began to get dizzy and could not see things; everything commenced to dance before me and I asked him to take me home at once, back to Lovington. When we got to where one road turns towards Lovington, and one up to the mountain road, instead of turning towards Lovington he started up the mountain. I asked him to take me home at once, that I was feeling very badly and was sick, to please take me. He did not answer me at all, but drove on as rapidly as he could. So father then asked me if he attempted to assault me. I told him that he had forced himself upon me. I tried to resist him; I tried to push him off; I screamed, but I suppose no one heard me; I resisted all I could, but I could not keep him back; he forced himself upon me and I then lost consciousness and did not remember anything after that until I was at Mrs. Kidd's house that night. When I told father that, he got so white and unnatural looking that it scared me. I ran out to mother and told her I believed I had killed my father."

Under cross examination Attorney Daniel Harmon presented a map of the country over which the buggy ride was taken, and asked that the witness fix the point where Estes gave her a drink. She could not remember exactly, but designated the neighborhood. She was then asked where the assault occurred, to which she replied that it was after she and Estes had turned up the mountain road.

The prosecution brought the statement from the witness that she had not mentioned a single word of her experience on the evening prior to people she met on the same day. She had talked pleasantly with the mother of the victim on the morning of the tragedy, but had not mentioned her experience to her. The witness was asked, if before she went buggy riding she had not taken a drink of whiskey at Estes' store, to which she replied, "Yes."

Today the first witnesses were Sheriff Beard, of Amherst, and Lawyer D. M. Harrison, who both testified to the bibulous habits of Judge Loving and the effect liquor had on him, their testimony being that hard and continued drinking had often resulted in delirium, and that the drink habit had at times affected him mentally. This indicates that the unwritten law defense will be reinforced by effect of the dishonor of the daughter on the mind of the father, already weakened by liquor.

After some unimportant additional testimony the defense rested. The prosecuting attorney addressed the jury and said the State would attempt to prove that Miss Loving had sacrificed her reputation to save her father from the gallows, that the State's theory is she was not assaulted by Estes at all.

Evidence for the State will begin late this afternoon.

In the following lines there is as much food for thought as we have ever read in the same space, and we append them hoping they may cause some one to pause, and consider well, and to realize that by far the most important thing in this life is to prepare for the life to come:

"Did you ever think, as the hearse drives by, That it won't be long, until you and I Go riding out in that big plumed hack, And never remember of coming back? Do you ever think, as you strive for gold That a dead man's hand can't a dollar hold? You can pinch and tug, strive and save But you'll lose it all, when you reach the grave."

The thought of what we will have to give up when we reach the terminal station, and shuffle off this mortal coil, will never cause us much regret, but the thought of how abundant our entrance into everlasting life, gives us more concern each day, and we cannot understand how any man can live with his whole soul wrapped up in his efforts to accumulate money, and soon he is cut down by the grim reaper, leaving perhaps thousands of dollars behind him—and not one cent in front of him.

Mr. W. H. Neal, one of our best farmers, and a close observer of all pertaining to agriculture, tells us that he is of the opinion that the root lice on cotton which has been so destructive, and has played havoc with his field, is a black ant, when fully matured, and upon close examination he has found the ant, and louse as it is called, all together on the same stalk, and he thinks the louse an immature ant, as it crawls if put in the hand. He says if you pull up the stalk of cotton, they fall off like terrapins off a log, but to dig it up on a hoe and carefully separate the dirt you can see both, and neither seems to be an enemy to the other; that they start at the bottom of the root, and as they mature, they crawl up the stalk till they reach the surface and disappear. His theory seems reasonable for if the louse is destroyed by the ant, what is it that deposits the egg that produces lice, if it is not the ant that does it? He has studied it carefully, and says he has not found a single instance where the ant fed on the louse, but on the other hand he is convinced that the louse is only an immature ant.

We would be glad, yes, even delighted, to see our rural mail carriers with nice mail wagons such as go out from our sister town of Princeton, a nice white wagon properly lettered with number of route, etc., speaks well for the progressive spirit of the section it serves. We have as clean a set of carriers as any section, but not one who goes out from the "Best Town in the State," getting his mail from our handsome postoffice building and serving the prosperous farmers contiguous to the "Gem City of the Plains" can compare in up-to-dateness of appearance along his route with the carriers that go out from the small town of Princeton.

We are glad to see that the High School is to be located at such a desirable place, and as you say, with the Union Depot at the western terminus of Walnut street, will add considerable to the city's appearance. But what of the depot? If they do not make better headway in the future than they have in the past the High School will be graduating the children before they can take the cars without getting wet, or sunburnt. When our city's progressive citizens get behind anything it is pretty apt to materialize, and not be long about it, especially if it has anything about it pertaining to education. Would it be a good idea to get the city behind the depot and see both grow?

When things go wrong and everything we attempt to do seems out of gear and calculated to cause a feeling not akin a sweet disposition, the best thing to do is to be sure and not pull the wrong end of the string. That's the way to make a hard knot, and no doubt but that many of the hardest knots in life are caused by not being careful which end of the string we pulled, and after we find that we have hold of the wrong end and have already given it a jerk, if we would stop and consider for even a moment, I am sure in nine cases out of ten we could adjust matters and be as "calm and serene" as if nothing had happened. But it is so easy after we have given the string one jerk to continue until the knot gets so hard that nothing could undo it, and it becomes harder and harder, ever reminding us of our misguided judgment, temper and impatience. Let us then when we come in contact with even the hardest knots in our daily life be careful to get hold of the right end of the string and we will be surprised to see how easily we can manage them, and the worry and discomfort we can save ourselves and others.

Anniversary Of Thaw Tragedy.

[By special wire to THE ARGUS.]

New York, June 25.—One year ago tonight occurred the tragedy on the Madison Square Roof Garden, when Harry K. Thaw shot and killed Stanford White. In his prison cell in the Tombs today Thaw gave no indication by word or action that the anniversary possessed any special significance to him. He continues to receive daily visits from his wife and much of his time is passed in reading and in the preparation of a line of defense for his second trial, which will probably take place in October.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD. Coming of Warm Weather Forces Them Out, Causing Itching, Burning Skin Eruptions.

The blood and skin are so closely connected that whatever affects the one has a corresponding effect on the other. When the blood is pure and healthy the skin will be soft, smooth, and free from all eruptions; but when the blood becomes infected with some unhealthy humor the effect is shown by rashes, eruptions, boils and pimples, or other disfiguring and annoying skin disease.

The skin is provided with countless pores and glands which act as a drainage system to rid the body of impurities through the perspiration that is constantly passing through these little tubes. There are other glands that pour out on the skin an oily substance to keep it soft and pliable, otherwise it would become hard and dry from constant exposure to wind and sun. When the blood becomes filled with humors and acids these are thrown off through the pores and glands, burning and irritating the skin and drying up the natural oils so that we have not only Acne, Eczema, Salt Rheum, etc., but such dry scaly skin eruptions as Tetter, Psoriasis and kindred troubles.

These humors find their way into the blood through a disordered or deranged condition of the system. There is a certain amount of waste or refuse matter collected in the body every day. This is useless in nourishing or keeping the system in health, and nature intends that it shall find an outlet through the channels of bodily waste. As long as these members perform their duties properly the blood remains pure and free from infection; but when from any cause they become dull and sluggish, this refuse matter is left to sour and be taken into the blood in the form of humors and poisons. The skin is a perfect index to the blood; when we see one afflicted with a skin disease, or pimples, rashes, eruptions, blotches, etc., constantly appearing, we know that down deep in the blood a humor has taken root, and instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the fine, delicate tissues of the skin, it is pouring out its acid and unhealthy accumulations. The skin is not only affected by the humors generated within the system, but poisons from without, such as Poison Oak and Ivy, Nettle Rash, etc., as well as poisons from metals, acids, etc., enter through the open pores and glands, and so thoroughly do they take root in the blood that they are ever present, or return from year to year to annoy the sufferer.

The treatment of skin diseases with salves, washes, lotions, etc., is along the wrong line. True such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort, and aids in keeping the skin clean, but it does not reach the real cause of the trouble, and at best such things are only palliative and soothing.

A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for humors in the blood. S. S. S., a gentle acting, safe blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable ingredients from nature's forests and fields, is the proper treatment. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and neutralizes the acids and humors, thoroughly cleansing and purifying the blood, and curing skin diseases and affections of every kind. It supplies to the blood the fresh, nutritive qualities necessary to sustain the skin and all other parts of the body, and rids the blood of any and all poisons. S. S. S. cures Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Poison Oak and Ivy, Nettle Rash and all troubles of the skin. * Special book on skin diseases and any medical advice desired furnished by our physicians without charge to all who write.
