

THE STATE IS DRY

North Carolina The First Southern State To Vote Prohibition by Popular Vote--In Many Counties the Majority For Prohibition Was Even Larger Than Had Been Expected, Especially in the Western Part of State.

The manhood of North Carolina, responsive—as ever—to the prayers of womanhood of the State, have risen in their might and swept the licensed whiskey traffic forever without her borders.

North Carolina, by the vote of her freeholders in Tuesday's election has joined the Prohibition column and will remain there forever.

THAW IS INSANE.

The Plea by Which He Saved His Life Robs Him of Liberty.

He Must Go To Asylum and be Guarded Lest the Lives of Other be Taken During Another Brain Storm.

(Special to the ARGUS.)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 25.—Justice Morsehauser this morning handed down his decision, dismissing the habeas corpus writ by which Harry K. Thaw, twice tried for the murder of Stanford White on Madison Square Roof Garden, sought to get out of Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane.

The court holds that Thaw is insane now, fully as much as when he shot and killed the famous architect, and that the same wild desire to take human life may come upon him again, wherefore, Thaw should be kept in custody and guarded.

The decision upholds the constitutionality of the law under which Justice Dowling, at the end of the second murder trial, sent Thaw to Matteawan. Counsel for Thaw said today they will certainly take the case to the Court of Appeals and, if defeated there, to the United States Supreme Court.

Thaw's family are willing to spend every cent to keep Harry from returning to Matteawan. Hewitt for the present remain in Dutchess county jail, until the final disposition of the matter. He is cheerful today, and so is Evelyn.

NOTEWORTHY SUGGESTION.

There has been a disposition of late on the part of several social autocrats and dictators in the American metropolis to let down the bars and increase the famous "400" to 1100 by way of meeting broader viewpoints and demands. Still the tendency to build family trees and study the history of the aristocracy is no less conspicuous in exclusive circles, and the age of the houses of blue-blood cuts just as much figure as ever.

A Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka makes some noteworthy suggestions to the American Philosophical society on this line. He has been going into the matter from a scientific point of view, and no doubt what he has to say may be of value to certain circles who attach great importance to the matter of tracing their ancestry from away back. Dr. Spitzka wants an expedition sent to Andaman and Nicobar Islands to study the oldest families which he declares are the only survivors of the pure ape stock from which the human race sprang.

This is an excellent idea. Being the oldest these families should be entitled to the highest consideration as the "real stuff" in the aristocracy. They are the most blue-blooded of the entire "bunch," and it is eminently proper that they should continue to be select and exclusive by persisting in occupying remote islands where half-strainers, and other spurious aspirants to distinction in social prestige cannot easily butt in or sneak in the back door when nobody is looking.

In these old original families the racial purity has been rigidly preserved. There have been no international matrimonial alliances, and they have blue-blood and pedigrees to burn. This being the case, no doubt some of the Newport set who have made a reputation for congeniality with prominent members of the monkey family at elaborate and fabulously expensive dinner parties will heartily approve of Dr. Spitzka's proposition to inquire into the origin and family trees of the Andamans and Nicobars. There ought to be a strong bond of sympathy between the two sets, and no doubt some of the most exclusive Newporters would swell with pride at the opportunity to be on social terms with the oldest and most blue-blooded aristocrats in the world. It is true the latter would prefer not to migrate to the summer stamping ground of the "400," and hence the suggestions of Dr. Spitzka might necessitate some more globe-trotting by the Newport swells. They would probably make no objection to a little obstacle like that, as they have plenty of money to gratify their whims when it comes to cultivating the oldest aristocrat on earth. It may be that extensive tours will yet be made to the Andaman and Nicobar Islands for purposes of exploitation in social distinction and prestige.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason, mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must be by law on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding:

NEWS FROM WALTER.

Interesting News Items From that Prosperous Neighborhood

ARGUS BUREAU, WALTER, N. C. May 27, 1908.

"The greatest social force in the world is the quickening influence of a high ideal."

Mr. Sam Jones, from the Mt. Olive section, was a visitor at Mrs. M. C. Swinson's last week.

Miss Millie Swinson returned home Saturday from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Henry Hood, near Mt. Olive.

Misses Hazel and Mildred Crawford visited in Kenly last week, where they were guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Ormond.

Mrs. John C. Watson, of Lemon Springs, was here last week, where she was called by the critical illness of her father, Mr. J. H. Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Smith and Miss Pauline Smith, of your city, were visitors at Oak Glen last week, on their return home from a visit to Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Ormond, of Kenly.

The enterprising Collier Bros., whose mill near Ebenezer is turning out some very fine lumber, have built a track to the river, and have it equipped with engine and cars for transporting logs to their mill. By special invitation, we are going up some day soon, and take a ride on the evening car to the beach, that is, after they get their schedule under control, and breaks sufficient to negotiate the hill nearby with safety. We do not care to go down that hill so fast that the black-jacks would look like teeth in a fine comb.

Mr. J. H. Caldwell died at his home Southern Oaks, near here last Saturday evening, after a few days critical illness. He had been in declining health for two or more years, and for sometime had been unable to attend his gardening, etc., in which he took great pride, on account of a nervous trouble which affected the right side of his entire body and incapacitated him for any manual labor. However there was evident improvement in his condition for the past two or three months, which enabled him to resume his duties around the home and gave promise of permanent recovery. Mr. Caldwell moved to this community more than thirty years ago and bought the Goslet place, and has been a familiar figure in this community ever since. He was a great reader, and possessing an unusually retentive memory was as well posted as any man we ever knew. In his latter years, he devoted his time entirely to reading, when not engaged in his garden, turning over the farm to his son Mr. Bob Caldwell. He was our friend and never have we had a patient who was any more careful in carrying out instructions, to the very letter, or had more confidence in his family physician, or a higher regard for his services. He had passed the three score years and ten, and was nearing four score, his life having been spent in the busy scenes of an active farm life. He was a kind neighbor, a quiet and inoffensive citizen, and before the establishment of rural delivery, was a most efficient postmaster for a number of years at Walter. His remains were taken to Lemon Springs for burial on Sunday morning, accompanied by Messrs. John S. and James Edwards, Misses Elizabeth Beeton and Bessie Swinson, and four of his children, Messrs. Bob and Wade Caldwell, who live at the home place; Mr. Ham Caldwell, of Charlotte; Mrs. Sheriff Watson, of Lemon Springs, and his granddaughter, Miss Zela Caldwell. To the bereaved family the sympathy of the community is extended.

The following poem by James Whitcomb Riley fits us so completely, and the story it tells is so characteristic of life, to say nothing of the moral it points, that we give it to your many readers:

MY PHILOSOPHY.
I aint, ner dont p'tend to be
Much posted on philosophy,
But thar is times, when all alone
I work out ideas of my own,
And of these same thare is a few
I'd like to jest refer to you,
Pervidin' that you don't object
To listen close and recollect.
I allus argy that a man
Who does about the best he can,
Is plenty good enough to suit
This lower mundane institute—
No matter of his daily walk
Is subject fer his nabor's talk,
And critic minds of ev'ry whim
Jest all git up and go fer him!
I know'd a feller onc't that had
The yellin' Janders mighty bad—
And each and ev'ry friend he'd meet
Would stop and give him some recet
Fer curin' of em. But he say
He kindo' thought they'd go away
Without no medicin', and boast

That he'd git well without one docter.
He kept a yellin on, and they
Perdicitn that he'd die some day
Before he knowed it. Tuk his bed
The feller did, and lost his head,
And wondered in his mind a spell—
Then ralled, and at last, got well;
But er'ry friend that said he'd die
Went back on him eternally!

Its natchral enough I guess,
When some gits more and some gits less,
Fer themuns on the slimmest side
To claim it aint a fair divide;
And I've knowed some to lay and wait
And git up soon, and set up late,
To ketch some teller they could hate
Fer goin' at a faster gait.

The signs is bad when folks commence
A-findin' fault with Providence,
And balkin' cause the earth don't shake
At ev'ry prancin' step they take.
No man is grate, tel he can see
How less than little he would be
Ef stripped to self, and stark and bare
He hung his sign out anywhere.

My decern is to lay aside
Contentions, and be satisfied;
Jest do your best, and praise er blame
That follers that, counts jest the same.
I've allus noticed grate success
Is mixed with troubles, more or less,
And it's the man who does his best
That gits more kicks than all the rest.

DIED.

At the home of her daughter Martha Newell, at the State Hospital at Goldsboro, May 23, 1908, Mrs. Mary E. Newell, in the 98th year of her age. She was buried at Providence Methodist church, of which she was the oldest member, Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m.

Out on top—straw hats.
Ill-gotten gains—the doctor's.
Jailbird's of a feather are locked together.
Tainted money does not always put the owner in bad odor.
How long to wait for a woman often is a weighty problem.
The collector sometimes gets the foot instead of the bill.
Well-bred people never refuse to give others crumbs of comfort.
A scrub baseball team does not always clean out its rivals.
Even the merry-go-round man is expected to act on the square.
No; a Parisian corkscrew is not called a French twist.
The kind of friends you can buy are the ones who will sell you.
Street organs in need of new tunes should go on a fresh air excursion.
Umbrella makers do not always work under cover.
