BLUEJACKETS TO SEE HONOLULU.

Grandeur of the Hawaiian Scenery Graphically Described.

The American Fleet of 16 Battleships Will Mark off Another Stage of Its Globe-Girdling Journey When it Drops Anchor in the Harbor of Honolulu Today.

Washington, July 16.—The American fleet of 16 battleships will mark off another stage of its globe-girdling journey when it drops anchor in the harbor of Honolulu today. Recent dispatches from the capital of Hawaii tell of elaborate plans that have been made for the entertainment of the officers and men of the fleet during their week's visit there. Of all the places to be visited by the fleet on its cruise around the world it is safe to say that none offers more attractions for the visitors than Honolulu and the Hawaii Islands, which were annexed to the United States in 1897.

The Hawaiian group, tropical, volcanic, beautiful, lies more than two thousand miles from San Francisco and about three thousand miles from the nearest mainland to the far West. No where in the world is there to be found a more attractive and delightful country. Eight islands comprise the group. Hawaii, Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Molokai are the principle ones. Situated within the tropics, but swept by the trade winds, with a boundless expanse of sea on every side, and mountains towering thirteen thousand feet above the ocean level, with an almost daily gentle rain on the windward and almost absolute dryness on the leeward side, the whole island group is a natural sanitarium.

Oahu is the principal island of the group. The city of Honolulu is situated on it, and over two thirds of the population and wealth are on this island. The entrance to the harbor of Honolulu is one of the most charming in the whole world. The water is a peculiar deep blue, and the great crescent bay is fringed by rolling hills that rise one above another and are green-thatched by thousands of picturesque coconut trees, waving palms and banana trees. In the background, rearing themselves several thousand feet high, are to be seen torn and serrated lava mountains, enveloped in verdure of the richest hue.

The grandeur of the Hawaiian scenery was thus graphically described by United States Senator Money of Mississippi, who was one of a party of public men from this country who visited the islands when the treaty of annexation was being arranged.

"A visitor, standing upon Haleakala, on the rim of its stupendous cap, twenty-three miles in circumference, and thousands of feet deep, can turn from a field of corrugated lava, shining like satin, and a chaos of extinct volcanic cones, to a far reaching view of mountain, plain, sea, and remote islands. Ten thousand feet below, the wrinkled sea changes its deep blue to a border of vivid green, edged with a lace of milk white foam, where the surf breaks in thunder on a lava coast. Along the mountain foot, green fields and white plantation houses extend down to the vale of Wailuku. This is the prospect looking under the clouds; looking above them, Molokai and Oahu, on the sharp horizon's edge, appear like brown stones in a setting of blue enamel. Strangely enough, the sea seems to have lifted itself to the mountain's height, and the islands to float in a sea above the clouds. The tremendous crater of Kilauea, blotting the sky by day, and illuminating the night with her perpetual fires, sacred to Pele; the immense fields of lava flow from Maunaloa, in their sterility and loneliness; the wild loveliness of the deep valley of Iao—all these are scenes that fill the mind with wonder and delight."

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Mid-Summer Quiet Still Prevails, With Preparations For Fall Trade Stimulated by Good Crop Progress.

Special to the ARGUS.

New York, July 18.—Bradstreet's says today: Trade and industry are still in a condition of midsummer quiet, with preparations for fall trade stimulated by generally good crop progress, going forward with confidence, but with conservatism ruling operations pending clearer views of ultimately crop and political results. Activity in retail trade is centered in the disposal of surplus stocks of summer goods at concessions but reduced public buying ability is reflected in reports from some centres of slow progress in clearing shelves of goods. Jobbing activity is still mainly confined to filling small but frequent repeat orders for summer fabrics, though a few Southern and Northwestern points report enlargement of takings for fall. Wholesale trade is preparing for future shipments but primary lines of production are running within control and curtailed outputs are still a feature in most lines of industry. There is a little more life in building lines principally South and West, and yellow pine is firmer with optimistic predictions from Southern and Pacific Northwestern lumber men. Business failures for the week in the United States ending July 16, number 258, which compares with 246 last week, 177 in the like week of 1907, 188 in 1906, 166 in 1905 and 190 in 1904.

RATES TO BE ADVANCED.

Must Raise Freight Rates or Lose $600,000,000 per Year—From 10 to 40 Cents on the Hundred.

Special to the ARGUS.

Louisville, July 18.—All roads operating South of Ohio and East of Mississippi as is announced today, will raise freight rates ten to forty cents per hundred, the advances to become operative, in all probability, about September 1st, as thirty days notice must be given when new tariffs are filed with Interstate Commerce Commission.

The territory affected is controlled by the Southeastern Freight Association and Southeastern Mississippi Valley Association. The railroads are, however, confronted with grave danger in making this advance according to Interstate Commerce Commissioner Judson Clements, who says the roads can be brought to book under the Sherman law.

James J. Hill, chief owner of the great Northern and Northern Pacific, just back from a fishing trip to Canada, said in New York today "The roads must raise rates or the country will die. I am not in favor of cutting wages but the railroads of the United States must raise rates or lose $600,000,000 per year, and that loss would eventually fall on the American people and cause suffering."

The encampment of the First Infantry will be from July 18th to 24th inclusive, and the Third regiment will go into camp August 4th breaking on the 11th. Brigadier General J. F. ## HOW IT HAPPENED.

After pitching a game that will win him fame, Umstead added more glory to his name; It was simply great, is what they all say, About that beautiful game, we won yesterday.

Although goose eggs did poor Wilson greet, She fought a noble battle before defeat; Amid intense excitement and the great uproar, The former champions were unable to score.

They fought like heroes, of which we have heard, But the nearest they came to scoring, was to land on third; It was one, two, three, and they were out, And then, the way the fans would shout.

Our crack third baseman with his strong will, Is what carried the corn to old grist mill; Then Umstead showed, how this corn to grind, And that, poor Wilson, is what left you behind.

With Umstead on second and Hamilton at bat, Well fans, we will just let it go with that; For as the sun was slowly sinking in the grand old West, The suspense and agony was over, and —you know the rest.

CANTATA.

An Opportunity of Hearing Goldsboro's Best Colored Musical Talent.

Queen Esther, the Beautiful, a musical drama, will be presented at the Messenger Opera House Monday night, July 27th, under the auspices of Shiloh Presbyterian church.

SYNOPSIS.

Esther was born in Persia 500 years before Christ. She was reared and trained by her uncle Mordecai. She was chosen by the king of the realm to be his wife and Queen. She was a Jewish damsel, but did not disclose her nationality. Haman was premier and a favorite of the King. Haman hated Mordecai. He did not know Mordecai's relation to the Queen. To be revenged, he obtained a decree destroying all of the Jews in the provinces. Mordecai discovers the plot and charges the Queen to petition the King for the safety of her people, which she does, at the peril of her life. Haman makes a gallows upon which Mordecai is to hang. And by the King's command he is hanged thereon instead of Mordecai, and Mordecai is proclaimed premier in his stead.

Tickets will be sold at the door, and prices will be given later on. Come out and give us a full house, and we will endeavor to give you a good show, as we have selected some of the best voices among us, and are being trained for the occasion.

CELEBRATION AT QUEBEC

5,000 Strangers Will Be In The City When The Celebration Reaches Its Height.

One of the Most Notable Features of the Celebration Programme Will be the Dedication of the Battlefield of the Plains of Abraham as a National Park.

(Special to The ARGUS.)

Quebec, July 18.—In observance of the 300th anniversary of the founding of Quebec by Samuel de Champlain, the intrepid French navigator and explorer who was the first man to explore a large section of the North American continent, the Dominion of Canada, England, France and the United States are uniting in the most elaborate celebration ever held in this part of the world. The Prince of Wales, the Vice President of the United States, the Governor General of Australia, military and diplomatic representatives of foreign powers and a long list of other distinguished persons, including the foremost officials of all the Provinces of Canada, are to be present to commemorate the tercentenary of the time when Champlain broke ground where the city of Quebec now stands. Royalty, nobility, generals, admirals, diplomats, legislators and men famed in the world of art and letters will participate in historical pageants, in memorial exercises, in naval and military displays and in the dedication of battlefields and monuments. The programme will be ushered in tomorrow and will continue until the last day of July.

A bare list of the notables who will take part in the celebration, many of whom have arrived in Quebec, would fill column of newspaper space. The Prince of Wales is due to reach the city next Wednesday on the cruiser Indomitable. He will be accompanied by a brilliant staff and will be received and entertained on a scale befitting his exalted rank. Other notables from the mother country will be Lord Roberts, the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Dudley, Earl Ranfurly, Lord Lovat, Sir Alfred Lyttleton. The United States will be officially represented by Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks and by Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, who has arrived here on the battleship New Hampshire. France has sent several warships and an official deputation headed by Vice-Admiral Jaureguiberry and L. S. Herbet, Councillor of State.

One of the most notable features of the celebration programme will be the dedication of the battlefield of the Plains of Abraham as a national park, with the Prince of Wales presiding at the consecration. This event is to take place next Friday and will be participated in by 25,000 troops. In the park will be erected a joint monument to the two heroes, Wolfe and Montcalm, the Englishmen and Frenchman, who fought 150 years ago, a battle that decided that the future of the country should be in the keeping of the Anglo Saxon. A descendant of Montcalm will be present at the ceremony.

The public is chiefly interested in the historical pageants, which promise to be more elaborate than anything of the kind ever attempted before in America.

Thousands of visitors are already arriving in Quebec to attend the celebration. It is estimated that nearly 50,000 strangers will be in the city when the celebration reaches its height.

The decoration of the city was practically completed today, though the final touches will not be put on until the arrival of his royal highness, the Prince of Wales.

The decoration and illumination of the Parliament House and grounds form one of the most attractive sights.
