SAVE TO LEARN HOW TO DO YOUR HAIR! IT READ AND HEED
WHAT FOLLOWS.

HAVE YOUR HAIR.—The laws of Health and Longevity demand it, the custom of social life requires it. The matter is of great importance in every way.

BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR.—It is the surpassing crown of glory, and for the loss of it there is no compensation.

RENEW YOUR HAIR.—For by no other means can it be saved and beautified.

LYON'S KATHAIRON,

Discovered thirty-five years ago by Prof. Lyon, who, in the most perfect preparation in the world for preserving and beautifying the hair.

Besides being the best hair dressing ever produced, Lyon's Kathairon will positively prevent grayness, and will restore new hair to bald heads, if the roots and follicles are not destroyed.

It actually performs these seeming miracles, of which the following is A FAIR SPECIMEN.

I had been entirely bald for several years, consequently, I suffered a great deal of mortification, and, to my great surprise, I have a thick growth of young hair.

COL. JOHN L. DORRANCE, U. S. A.
In every important respect the Kathairon is absolutely incomparable. It is unequalled.

TO CURE Baldness.
1. To Restore Gray Hair.
2. To Remove Dandruff.
3. To Dress and Beautify the Hair.

BEAR IN MIND.—The Kathairon is not merely a hair dressing, but a powerful and healthful vegetable lotion, intended to restore the hair by natural growth and reinvigoration.
It is especially perfumed, and the most delightful scented dressing known. No lady's or gentleman's toilet outfit is complete without Lyon's Kathairon.

TOBACCO PLANT BEDS.
The preparing and sowing of seed beds, which will soon occupy the attention of tobacco planters, is not only the first but a most important step toward the crop of 1879. To insure success there must be a favorable beginning, and a favorable beginning is impossible without a liberal of early vigorous plants; therefore the necessity of a judgment and care in the selection of a location for a plant-bed, the preparation of its soil, choice of seed and the culture of plants.

Every planter of any experience at all selects, when it is practicable, a southern exposure for the seed bed, that the young and tender plants may have the full benefit of the rays of the sun during early spring. The next choice of location is a south-eastern one, then a western, and to be avoided a northern exposure. Land lying off to the south end of a large building, as a barn, is esteemed by many a desirable place for a plant-bed, because the reflection helps to warm the ground.
A skirt of woods on the north and west sides is a protection to be desired when convenient, but no trees should be allowed to stand near the bed. A spot covered with a dense thicket of hazel, or any growth indicating a rich, friable, black soil, makes a capital seed bed, though a lighter soil can be made to serve with generous manuring and burning.

An old rule which still holds good among many planters is that the seed bed should be made any day after Christmas when the surface of the ground is without snow or frost and dry enough to work.

Any refuse wood, when dry enough to burn readily, is suited to the purpose, and any arrangement of this material which insures during its burning destruction of all the roots and seeds of grass and weeds in the soil and imparts to the soil a reddish, brick-like appearance has accomplished the result for which the bed was burned.

Seed beds are not all prepared by burning, though this is a time-honored custom with the majority of our successful planters.

Mr. Papencoe, a cultivator in Montgomery county, O., for a bed one roll wide and four rods long, takes two table-spoonfuls of seed.

The seeds must be mixed with ashes or plaster previous to sowing, and it is wise to have a sufficient quantity of the latter to go over the beds twice, in order to insure for them a most equal distribution.

Never, under any circumstances, sow tobacco seed until the land is in order for it, and be careful, for your future peace of mind depends upon it, not to introduce the seeds of grass or weeds in fertilizers applied. Seed beds, to be successful, must be kept quite free from all growths except the one plant for which it is prepared.

TOBACCO SEED.
As some of our readers are taking a deep interest in the culture of tobacco, we take it that whatever throws light on the culture of the weed is of invaluable information. In the columns of an exchange we find the following suggestions as to the selection and sowing of seeds.

The selection of seed depends largely upon the soil and the quality of tobacco desired. There are almost as many kinds of seed-leaf tobacco as there are varieties of Indian corn. Upon the whole, the surest and most profitable variety is that which ripens earliest and yields the largest number of pounds, cured, to a given number of hills planted.

Rich bottom lands grow heavy, strong tobacco, and farmers planting on these lands find it to their interest to make weight the main object of their crop.
Thinner, poorer lands will produce tobacco of the lighter weight, but often of a finer quality, and one that will bring a correspondingly higher price. The inclination, when the soil admits, however, is the cultivation of the heavier kinds, for the reason that finer qualities require more care and experience in handling. Each variety of tobacco has also some peculiarity in the form of its leaves and in the qualities of tenderness or toughness, therefore the form and texture of the leaf should be a consideration in the selection of a variety.
A long, narrow leaf for instance, cannot be used with profit by stemmers. A variety should be selected that will tempt the largest number of buyers. A broad long leaf, heavy, dark and gummy, is always in demand.

Sprouting seed previous to sowing, while practiced by some, is condemned by many planters, the germ is very delicate and therefore liable to become injured by handling. Pressing the earth around and against the seed after sowing, by the surface of the bed, or beating it down with the hand, is a mistake, induces seed to germinate more quickly and certainly than if allowed to lie loose and exposed to the air. In high latitudes seed beds are forced under glass, and brought forward at least a fortnight earlier; this insures a ripening of the crop before frost. Newly sown beds should be covered lightly with brush; not thick enough to shut out the sunlight but sufficient to protect the plants from the chilling and drying effects of the winds. Frequent watering with a strong infusion of refuse tobacco and water, hastens the growth of the plants; guano applied in the same way, will also produce marked effects.

BERMUDAGRASS AND SHEEP.
The true value of Bermuda grass for pasture, and as a preventative to lands washing is more than ever before being understood by Southern farmers. Bermuda grass is to the South what blue grass is to Kentucky. We have never yet found the man, who was familiar with Bermuda grass for pasture, who has denied its value for this purpose. We have yet to meet the man who dares assert that this grass upon rich land, does not equal blue grass or orchard in the amount of acre ing furnished. Bermuda, acre for acre, will furnish twice the grazing, the same space of time considered, as any other plant ever introduced into the Southern States. Lake blue grass it spreads from runners thrown out in every direction, until a solid mat is formed over the entire surface of the ground. From May until November it can be grazed, and, during this period of time, grows constantly and remains green. No plant known better withstands the heat of the summer. It will grow and spread over the very poorest soil—will grow upon all kinds of soil—is extremely hardy and hard to eradicate.
