AN AGED VIOLIN.

At a concert given in Charlestown, W. Va., Thanksgiving evening, a violin was used which at one time belonged to Gen. George Washington. This venerable relic is now the property of Mr. Thomas B. Washington, of Charlestown, and descended to him frem his father, Thomas Washington, who received it from Judge Bushrod Washington at Mount Vernon. A card on the inside of the instrument shows that it was manufactured by Jacob Steiner, a celebrated German workman, in the year 1675. It is therefore over two hundred years old.-Index-Appeal.

A WHOLESOME SUGGESTION.

It is a good business rule to start on as nearly so as can be accomplished by settling all small accounts. Accounts too large to be settled with cash ought to be closed up with negotiable paper. The man who adopts this as a rule of business will soon find himself superior to the dread of panics, failures and all the evils attendant on hard times. It is hard to make people believe it, but it is a solid truth which experience confirms, that it is far better to have other people owe you than to owe other people. A little reflection DR. H. D. HARPER, to owe other people. A little reflection will make this clear.—Petersburg Index-
