THE Providence, R. I., Journal, in an article on "Business North and South," says that the people of the South have suffered little or no interruption to their material prosperity. "The unsettled state of affairs in the North," it continues, "has caused a good deal of capital to flow from the North and from Great Britain to the South. It is estimated that during the first three months of this year fully $36,000,000 has been invested in the South in new undertakings, most of it from the North and from England. This is something which should interest the Northern workingman." To this the Richmond (Va.) Dispatch adds: "This is something which should interest the Southern workingman too. It speaks volumes for the conservatism of our working classes, and is very suggestive."
