Lamar as a Masher.

ner at times cold and abstracted or exceedingly warm and genial, according to the mood he is in. He is a man who finds it extremely hard in his official position to say no, especially to a woman, and more especially if that woman be a pretty one. Apropos of this, he made the remark the other day that before his appointment as secretary of the interior he held in common with most people, the idea that Tom Ochil-tree was the biggest liar in America, "but," said Mr. Lamar, "since I have been in office I have told more lies than the Texas colonel has in his illustrious

I heard a lady remark the other day that Lamar looked like a snub-nosed lion. Certainly he does a good deal of gentle roaring among the sex, and is known as the male flirt of the present administration. It has been said of him that he only asks ten minutes to make a conquest of a weak and twenty minutes of a strong minded woman. This seems all the more singular as the secretary's thirty years of married life has taught in Oxford County, Maine. A lobeen pronounced by his friends a poem. cal paper says that a problem in alge-

In the vaults of the United States Freasury at Washington there is the sum of $220,746.26, which is entered upon the books of the Treasurer as "Miscellaneous receipts from persons unknown," and which sum constitutes what is known as the "Conscience Fund," as it is supposed to come from people who have at some time defrauded the government and who wish to make restitution by refunding the amounts of their peculations.

"This conscience fund," said a Treasury official, "has been steadily increasing for sixty years, until now it reaches the enormous sum of nearly $250,000. The first money of the kind received by the Treasury was $380 received in 1827 from an unknown person, who explained in his letter that he was refunding for some customs he had once defrauded the government of.—Since that time remittances of all amounts tranging from 8 cents to $2,500 have been coming in. They come from all over the country, and even from foreign lands.

"A great deal of this money is received from priests and ministers, who write that some sinner in their parish requested them to send it in. During the small-pox epidemic in Canada a Catholic The first money of the kind received by

"In January we received an official envelope postmarked at New York, and containing $2,500 in bills—one of $1.-000, two of $500 and five of $100. They were all cut in two, with a small piece cut from the center, and the word 'cancelled' written across the face. A note inclosed ran thus:

"'Here are $2,500 in United States bills, mutilated so as to insure the government's getting the money. Whatso-ever a man sows that shall he reap. I have sowed the wind, and am reaping Up Among the Clouds the whirlwind. This is next to the final payment due. God grant me a speedy

saw," said a passenger from Florida, "is down in Hernando county. on the gulf side. The land is high and rolling and not flat and swampy, as most of Florida is, and as most folks think it all is. The Wekowechee River in that county is twelve miles long, and about the prettiest stream I ever saw. It is made entirely by one spring, and this spring is sixty feet in diameter. You can row a boat right into it, but you ean't made a boat stay in the center, as the force of the water rising throws it gently to one side. A small steamer can navigate the river, whose banks are high and covered with foliage. This spring has the purest water that ever flowed out of the earth. It is seventy feet to bottom, and you can see a dime down there just as plain as you can in a glass of water. In the river you can see fish twenty rods away. Not the slightest trace of organic matter can be found in the spring water. This river and spring, by the way, have been purchased by two Chicago gentlemen. They got some 2,000 acres of land there for something like $8,000, and they will

Senator Fair's friends say—and the statement is equally true of the other two living members of the old bonanza firm-that he is no longer an active participant in mining speculations, and that he has salted away most of his money in Government bonds and California real estate. The editor of a New York mining journal says that he does world generally has thought, even in their palmiest days, and that they had less now than ever. "I don't think either Fair, Mackay or Flood has put any considerable money in mines in the last three years," he continued; "and " they only own now a few stocks in which they see a big future, and others that they cannot get out of without heavy loss. All three have turned their attention to legitimate business. Fair is here now looking into some railroad enterprise; Flood is the biggest holder of real estate in San Francisco; while Mackay, as is well known, has nearly all of his fortune in telegraph and cable schemes and the Hoffman House here. Their connection with the Comstock lode is now a reminiscence.
