COCKROACH TOURNAMENT. A Strange Sport Enjoyed by the Chinamen. CHICAGO, August 16. - Chinese sporting circles have been greatly excited over the outcome of a cockroach tournament which has been going on in the basement of a down town laundry and Chinese club house for the last three nights. This is the first big tournament ever held east of the Pacific coast. It has been engineered and conducted by a party of Chinese sports, which left San Francisco nearly three weeks ago with nearly fifty trained fighting cockroaches. Last night it was reported that the San Francisco party had left for New York, having won several thousand dollars from the local Chinese betting men. The San Francisco Chinamen who came here were informed before they started that there were a large number of their countrymen who would enjoy and liberally patronize a tournament. In Chinatown, at San Francisco, an old Chinaman has long conducted a Chinese shoe shop, and in odd hours maintained a large number of fighting cockroaches. He was ordered to prepare fifty of his ablest fighters, which he at once did, delivering them in a wicker basket made for the purpose. In this basket were nearly a hundred cells, in which each roach was kept separate from his companions. The celestial sports arrived here with their animals without mishap last Monday. In two hours it was known to every Chinaman in this city that the tournament would begin Wednesday night. About ten o'clock the tournament was opened, a feather-weight fighter being matched against a middle-weight cockroach. Before the insects were pitted against each other they were handled by Quong, a Chinaman, who had some experience in this line in China. With a minute pair of scissors he clipped their wings, and then, just before facing them, he greased their bodies with salve. This is done to prevent the insects catching one another, as they will not touch the greased portions of each other's body. At a signal two champions were dropped into the pit. This was a large urn, shaped like a punch bowl, and greased on the edges. The first fight was one of the best of the whole tournament. No sooner had the two fighting cockroaches dropped into the bowl than they sprang at each other with the fierceness of bulldogs breasting. Just eleven minutes after the fight began the big roach was dead. In the last struggle, and despite the pain caused by the effort, he turned in such a manner that his left foreleg was pulled from its socket, but in so doing he caught his adversary by the throat. The next instant he died covered with wounds, while the little victor staggered off with a terrible cut in his throat. Eight battles were fought the first night, it being two o'clock before the last battle was finished. The betting was heavy and many of the local men were winners. The next night only four battles were fought but they were all desperate. On the third night there were eleven battles. When the tournament concluded the San Francisco Chinamen had nearly all the money of the local sports. It was charged that Quong, who handled the fighting roaches, had played into the hands of the visitors and drugged some of the bugs.

A Bouncing Bride. There was a wedding the other night in a cottage on Benton street, and about 11 o'clock a number of boys got together to give the newly-married couple a serenade. They had horns and tin pans and various other musical instruments, and had just turned up when the groom came to the door and said: "Boys, don't. This 'ere noise disturbs us." A clod of earth hit him below the belt, and he retired for a few minutes. When he reappeared he announced: "Now, then, this 'ere has got to stop or something will happen." "What will it be?" inquired a voice. "My wife'll come out and bounce the crowd." He retired again as chunks of dirt began to rattle around his ears, but in a short time the door was thrown open and the bride jumped into the club in her hand. She was all business from the start, and more than one serenade got a sound whack before he distanced her. In five minutes she had scattered the crowd over ten acres, and the husband stood in the door and clapped his hands and shouted: "Go in, Mary! I know you fellows would hear something 'drip if you kept on." - Detroit Free Press.

The Only Man Without a Title. "Gimme a ticket! Gimme a ticket!" shouted a wild-looking man, rushing into the railroad depot in a leading Dakota town. "Where to, please?" asked the polite ticket agent. "I don't care! Anywhere, anywhere to get out of the territory! Gimme one to somehwere 'eck'n' lightning!" "How would you like to Chicago?" "Too late - don't want one!" and he tore madly out of the door and knocked over a baby carriage as he clutched the rail of the last car, as it went past the platform, and swung himself on. The astonished ticket-seller looked through his window and said: "Blamed if that was that fellow, and what was the matter of him. Are you acquainted with him, general?" turning to another man. "Never saw the dashed fool before. How is it with you, judge?" he added, addressing a man by the door. "Yes, gentlemen, I know him, and I don't blame him for wanting to go. He is the only man in the territory without a title." - Estelline Bell.

LEMON ELIXIR. From the Land of Lemons. An old citizen of my town and an old druggist, said to me to-day that he had long been looking for a liver medicine that would take the place of calomel, producing all its good effects and none of its bad, injurious constitutional effects. After a thorough trial he had found it in Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I have sold, as you know, large lots of the Elixir since last spring, and never sold a liver medicine for biliousness, constipation and diseases resulting from these causes that pleased the people as much as Lemon Elixir. Send me nine dozen at once. T. ALBERT JENNINGS, Druggist, Jasper, Fla. To DR. H. MOZLEY, Atlanta, Ga. Sold by Agents, 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Prepared by H. MOZLEY, M. ADVICE TO MOTHERS. Are you disturbed at night and broken of your sleep by a sick and suffering child with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.
