WIT AND HUMOR.

HIS QUEEN.

There is a palace wondrous fair of poetry in stone; The Queen with raven hair sits there upon a throne.

Her lowly courtiers come and go with tribute to their Queen, A haughty "thanks" she doth bestow upon each slave.

Around her lie the precious stores which power and wealth command; Perfumes, rich spices, glittering ores—the treasures of each land.

Were I the King of that sweet Queen, we'd put aside our throne; Our Court should be the meadows green by summer breezes blown.

"Come back and all will be forgiven" is the usual card published by a leader whose wife leaves him after wearing herself out trying to support him.

"The Chicago policeman," says the Boston Record, "now holds his head so high and proper pride, that he is easily mistaken for an Alderman."

Keely, the motor man, is still on the verge of perfecting his great invention. Keely has staid on the verge longer than any man on record.

Conspicuously displayed upon the front of stores in the city, kept by a couple of good-looking, marriageable young ladies, is a sign bearing the encouraging words: "No offer refused."

An Oregon young woman has brought a breach-of-promise suit against her father because he gave his consent to the match and then backed out.

The New Haven Register says: "In article on Yale yesterday, for 'alum water' read 'alma mater.'" This is as bad as the Iowa editor's erratum.

A Boston paper, in speaking of Miss Barnes' presentation to the Queen in London, says she wore "dem short sleeves." Whether this is profanity, or in short for "democratic," or is only "demi-short," with an i put out, we can only guess.—Lowell Courier.

People who pick up a pamphlet with this title: "The Length of a Man's Days is to a certain extent in His Own Hands," thinking it a striker's eight-hour manifesto or Knights of Labor document, find it is only a patent-medicine brochure.—Springsfield Homestead.

Overworked—Yes, madam, I think you are overworked. Patient—but do look at my tongue, doctor, and tell me why it looks so badly. Doctor—Oh, that's the result of overwork. Keep perfectly quiet and it will look better.—Troy Times.

Suitor—"Sir, you are undoubtedly aware of the object of my visit." Father—"I believe you desire to make my daughter happy. Do you really mean it?" Suitor—"Unquestionably." Father—"Well, don't marry her, then."—Flying Dutchman.

"Der's trouble in de church. De wale ob de temple am rent to twain; de congregation am done gone busted, and dar was no preachin' dis mawnin'!" Is the picturesque description of church troubles in an African church by an aged member.

The wages of stone-cutters in a portion of Europe have been recently advanced to 80 cents a day. As soon as one of them gets over here, however, and goes to work at $3.50 a day, he strikes for $4.50, and heads a dynamite riot if he doesn't get it.

A man jumped off a railway train and sprang into a hack. "What hotel do you wish to go to?" asked the driver. "I am an Irishman and have just arrived in this country, and 'Ah, I see! You want me to take you to the polls."—Arkansas Traveler.

The title of the recent Greek play bothered those who were not up in the dead language. A pretty young miss was overheard telling a friend in a street-car that "the performance by the college boys of 'The Anarchists' was truly lovely."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Rev. J. H. Cason, Graham, Tex., said: "I am thinking of going North to beg some money to aid in building two Baptist churches in Texas. What would you advise?" We advise him to take with him enough to pay his expenses back.—Richmond Religious Herald.

Compensation: "Ulo, Jones! You in Paris?" "Yes, I've just run over for a holiday." "Where's your wife?" "Couldn't come, poor dear. Had to stop at home on account of the baby."

"There is a sad state of affairs in Russia," observed Mr. Snags last night. "There has been an increase of 300 per cent in the number of suicides in the last ten years." "What is the cause?" asked Mrs. Snags. "It is attributed largely to pessimism." "That dreadful drink. I wonder the people don't sign the pledge."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Miscellaneous.

"Episcopal duty in some parts of Australia has its humorous side," says the Ballarat Courier. "One prelate on his first journey round was flung into deep mud from his horse. Rising ruefully, with his chaplain's help, and surveying the place the Bishop consoled himself with the reflection, 'I have left a deep impression in that part of the diocese at my rate.'"

When the enterprising small hoodlum says, "Give me a flower," and is rewarded by the benevolent passer-by with a fragrant blossom, he does not carefully preserve his gift with an appreciation of its refining influence in his humble home.

On Lorillard's property, Truxedo Park, Mr. Baldwin, who has carried out the plans so efficiently, was recently showing some probable investors over the club-house. "Come out on the piazza, now," said he, "and you can see about how the land lies." "O, no," said the irrepressible Henry Draper, who was present; "come out and see how the agent lies."—San Francisco Argonaut.

All of the men who went on strike didn't suffer. Some of the strikers' families seemed to feed well and dress well all the time. Some of the strikers always appear to wear good clothes and smoke good cigars as long as the strike lasts and have money to go on after it is over. Not all, but some of 'em do.

"This is the first thing about a strike," says the working man, "and he would investigate this joke and ascertain why it is that some men, and usually the same man, always seems to fare better and dress better while the strike is on. There's lots of fun in a strike, for some of the fellows, but there would be no fun enough to go through the strike. The more you know about this joke the less they will laugh at it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

LEMON ELIXIR. From The Land of Lemons. An old citizen of my town and an old druggist, said to me to-day that he had long been looking for a liver medicine that would take the place of calomel, producing all its good effects and none of its bad, injurious constitutional effects.

Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I have sold, as you know, large lots of the Elixir since last spring, and never sold a liver medicine for biliousness, constipation and diseases resulting from these causes that pleased the people as much as Lemon Elixir. Send me nine dozen at once.

Druggist, Jasper, Fla. To Dr. H. MOZLEY, Atlanta, Ga. Sold by Druggists. 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Prepared by H. MOZLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. aug-1m Magistrates requiring blanks will find a full supply at the MESSENGER office. See our advertisement of "Magistrates Portfolio" in another column.
