The above announcement meets my approval and is entirely satisfactory.

J. HOWARD BROWN, Goldsboro, N. C., August 2, 1886.

HENRY WARD BEECHER has canceled his lecture engagements in England and gone to a hydro-pathic institute in Scotland. He is ill.

The Pennsylvania Democrats have a highly colored ticket this year in their State election—at least in name. They are not only going to vote for Black, but also for Africa, these being the nominees for two places.

The effect of strikes on the business of a place or locality is forcibly shown by the statistics recently published of the Cumberland coal trade. Compared with the same time last year, the shipments have fallen off this year within a fraction of four hundred thousand tons.

BLAINE is aggressive this year as heretofore. As the papers say, he is forcing the fighting. The Maine campaign is opening and the friends of the Plumed Knight are doing all they can to make him a candidate again in 1888. Really it looks like Cleveland and Blaine once more.

CUTTING makes an address to the American people. This is a superfluous performance as was the self-revelation of this humbug in the beginning of his Mexican career. To be notorious and to be conspicuous, especially as a bore, is the gift of some people. It is highly developed in editor Cutting.

MR. POWDERLY, the great labor leader, like other sensible men, denounces the anarchists. He also declares that the principles of the latter will never get a foothold among the Knights of Labor. He says he is not a candidate for any office, and would not accept the highest office in the United States, if offered to him.

TRUE, we do not agree with the President about the financial policy to be pursued. But we do not care a bauble as to that surplus resolution, amended out of shape by Republican Senators, which he pocketed just at the adjournment of Congress. The President, we know, pocketed it because he did not believe in anything of the kind. But what are the Republicans, high money men that they are, growling about?

THE Judicial State Convention should have endorsed the administration of President Cleveland, but as it did not, we suppose the administration will not suffer in the estimation of that large element of our people who favor honest government, and we are rather inclined to the opinion that President Cleveland will not only survive the neglect, but that he will continue to grow in strength and popularity until those who now see no good in his policy will be foremost in applauding him.

THE SUPREME COURT.

The State convention last week renominated the presentable court. The ability and fitness of the court was conceded by all, yet old age was urged as an objection to the nomination of Chief Justice Smith and Justice Ashe, and in this opinion the MESSENGER concurred to a certain degree.

BAD MARKSMEN.

When Mr. Allison attacks the President in the unguarded way in which he assailed him in the Iowa Republican convention, the country well understands that Mr. Allison has nothing better as a stock weapon to employ. Now the Iowa Senator knows that many Presidents have handled the pocket veto with skill and effect, and that that form of veto is not unconstitutional. What hurts Mr. Allison is that the President snaps his fingers at the Senate majority, and does not at all he awake o' nights because they object to his way of doing business.

CUTTING RELEASED.

The release of the fellow Cutting, who has kicked up all this rumpus with Mexico does not seem to end the incident. The State Department will still stress for some guarantee that such a claim of extra-territorial jurisdiction by Mexico shall not be set up again. It is exceedingly unpleasant to have creatures like Cutting getting our government into hot water with other powers, exciting our borders and filling the air with rumors of war, which, even if idle, are none the less injurious in a broad sense. The whole affair, we trust, will now be straightened out. Mr. Bayard is equal to his responsibilities, and we expect to see the country—all except Mr. Blaine and a few soreheads like him—settle down to that belief. It cannot be very long before the international matter in controversy will be arranged to the satisfaction of both nations.

The more important matter of the man Arresares has been nearly lost sight of. A citizen of the State of Texas was abducted by an officer of the State guard of Coahuila—a military officer, acting without warrant from sufficient authority—taken to Mexico, and there shot, under circumstances of great brutality. Of course, our government will insist upon some reparation for this gross outrage. Measures should be adopted to prevent the recurrence of incidents like those of Cutting and Arresares.

THE inundation at Galveston, mentioned last week, was nothing comparatively. The submergence of Indianola, with loss of life and property, the two and a half million loss at San Antonio, the terrible reports all along the lower coast and two hundred miles inland, show that the telegraphic statement that never before was there in that region so destructive a storm, was not an exaggeration.

THE Republicans of Philadelphia are going through with their biennial elegant little comedy of putting up Mr. Randall for re-election to Congress. No wonder the Morrison Democrats call Mr. Randall a Republican in disguise. Now this except is not from a Morrison Democratic paper, and therefore the Randall Democrats must not charge the MESSENGER with prejudice for printing it. It shows that other people have eyes and use them, and ears and avail themselves of the same.

LADIES!—Now is your time for cheap dresses. Childrens at 90 cents, worth $1.25. Ladies $1.25, worth $1.75. Call at once on Mrs. E. W. Moore.

THE BULGARIAN SURPRISE.

All Europe (except the knowing ones) was startled by the sudden revolution by which Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria, was deposed and a provisional government set up by the Russian party, acting in concert with the government of Russia. There have been many accounts of the affair, but there is only one belief with respect to the origin of the revolution. It has thrown England into something of a panic. France refuses to regard Germany and Austria as particeps criminis, but it seems very clear that the three emperors had an understanding. The whole thing in a nutshell is about as follows: Alexander would not, as a ruler, make himself a tool of Russia. He leaned rather to England. This infuriated the Czar. The Russians for some time have had their secret agents in Bulgaria working upon the fears and hopes of the people. Austria and Germany have their plans, which just now are furthered by the deposition of Alexander, who is the national enemy of the Servians, Austrians allies. The Greeks are jealous of both the Russians and Austrians, and favor Alexander, although they were opposed to the union of Roumelia and Bulgaria. Each country is for itself. The Sultan is the only party they all plot against—all except England.

Authentic dispatches from Sofia show that the deposition of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria was accomplished during the night. According to these advices one thoroughly Russianized regiment of cavalry was detained in the city after nightfall, when the other troops retired to their barracks. This regiment, perfectly under control of the revolutionists, surrounded the palace about two hours after midnight. Prince Alexander was in bed, and the palace was closed. The revolutionary leaders, with the assistance of soldiers, forced their way into the building, went to the Prince's ante-chamber and had him aroused. They bluntly made known to him the purpose of their intrusion. He was stunned, having been taken completely unawares. When he recovered his self control and realized the utter helplessness of his situation he bitterly reproached his captors for their treachery. What followed is still rather obscure. The revolutionists declare that Alexander signed a formal abdication of the throne. Others, however, assert that he firmly declined to sign an abdication, and that in consequence of his refusal he was made a prisoner and confined in a remote prison, being told he would be kept there until he complied with the demands of the revolutionists. It is said that the Prince was removed from Sofia under a strong cavalry escort long before daylight. The people did not become acquainted with even the fact of the coup d'etat until several hours after the Prince had been removed from the palace. Later advices state that the Prince went to Servia. Telegrams from Widin say that advices received there from Bulgaria state that there is much discontent among the Bulgarian troops over the change in the government, and that a large proportion of the troops are disposed to restore Prince Alexander. The people, too, are divided into two parties.

ONCE FOR ALL.

The release of Cutting, the Charleston News and Courier says, will probably put an end to the trouble with Mexico, which originated in his arrest and imprisonment, but should not silence the demands of the United States government for prompt and full recognition of the claims it has asserted. If the Mexican authorities were right in the position they assumed, the release of Cutting was unnecessary. If they were in the wrong, as the United States government has maintained, his release is insufficient, since it leaves the questions at issue in his case open to cause further trouble in the future. We have gone too far to stop or to go backward. Nothing ought to satisfy the United States but a disavowal on the part of Mexico of the recent action of her officials, and full amends for it. With the feeling that prevails on the other side of the Rio Grande, American citizens in Mexico are liable to insult and outrage at any time, and the surrender of Cutting if more calculated to intensify this feeling, and to provoke a fresh outbreak than to have a tranquilizing effect.

We must compel an understanding with Mexico, sooner or later, and the sooner it is reached in whatever way, the better it will be for our peace and honor.

WITH delightful coolness, entirely apropos of the season, Mr. Candidate Blaine says that up in Maine there could not in his judgment be a more deplorable event than a war between the United States and any other republic in America. There is nothing like Peruvians your work, James G. That's be Chili work, sure's your's born.

A RECENT appointment deserves more than a passing notice. It is said that Hon. Jesse J. Yeates was strongly supported for the position of Assistant Solicitor of the Treasury. This gentleman would have graced the office, and his friends would have been pleased to see him obtain it. The appointee was Mr. F. A. Reeve, of Tennessee. Mr. Reeve is a son-in-law of the late Horace Maynard. During the late presidential campaign, at a time when it looked as if Mr. Blaine was in the lead, Mr. Reeve, then holding the clerkship he now holds, wrote a letter to a New York paper, over his full name, giving some reasons why he thought Cleveland should be elected. He came out strong for Cleveland, and was looked upon as one of the "marked men" had Mr. Blaine been elected. Since Mr. Cleveland's inauguration, Mr. Reeve is said to have been an applicant for the position of Assistant Attorney General and also for the Judge Advocate Generalship of the army.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The Philadelphia Record, which is perhaps the best posted daily upon commercial matters, sums up a review for the past week in this wise: "Business shows gradually increasing activity at leading centres throughout the country. The recent gains in bank clearings and railroad earnings and the advance in interest rates for money are unmistakable evidences of the revival of confidence and growth of enterprise in commercial circles. The improvement is but slight in some departments, but it is apparent to some extent in nearly every branch of business. One of the more encouraging features of the situation is the renewal of something like old time activity in the export trade in wheat. The legitimate trade in this cereal is better than it has been for some years past, and its effect upon the country's exports is likely to be supplemented shortly by larger shipments of new cotton, which will soon be in sufficient supply to admit of increasing foreign sales. The distribution of all kinds of merchandise to interior points is constantly enlarging in volume, and there is a hopeful and cheerful feeling as to business prospects in all sections of the country. The failure list shows some increase this week in the Middle and Pacific States and in Canada. The total for the whole country is 186, as against 157 last week and 154 the previous week."

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE DEMOCRAT'S CAMPAIGN BOOK.

The Cutting Affair—About Office Holders—Department News—Mayo's Invention. [Staff Correspondence of the Messenger.] WASHINGTON, August 24.—The release of Cutting by the Mexican courts does not end the incident. Gov. Porter told a friend of mine to-day that the question of extra-territorial jurisdiction remained to be settled by diplomacy, and that subordinate to that was the other question of damages for Cutting. The latter claims $10,000. The more important Arresares case is not in as good shape for speedy settlement. But our government will, it is understood, demand reparation—perhaps the punishment by Mexican courts of the officer Mondragon, who arrested Arresares, an American citizen, on the soil of Texas, and taking him into Mexico, shot him to death while pinioned and manacled. There is no disposition on the part of the Administration either to back down or to fulminate over little Mexico. The feeling at the Department is one of rational patience. But diplomacy and not bluster is thought to be the way to conduct international relations. The Democratic campaign book is to be issued very soon by the Congressional Executive Committee. Chairman Kenna and Secretary Thompson have given considerable time and thought to the work, and it is expected to meet the wants it is intended to supply. The book is relied upon in large measure to defray the expenses of the campaign. The price is one dollar, not very much in excess of its cost. Orders come in pretty freely. In an interview to-day, Senator Kenna said that not a single dollar had been accepted from a Government official or employe, though thousands of dollars have been tendered. The purpose is to be clear of the charge of official pressure or corruption. This action is in grave contrast with that of the Republicans when they held the reins of government. The place of Assistant Solicitor of the Treasury has been filled. The lucky man is not my friend Maj. J. J. Yeates, but a Tennessee clerk in the Solicitor's office, Mr. Felix A. Reeve. The President signed and forwarded the appointment of the Assistant Solicitor. Pension Agent, Robert L. Taylor, solves the difficulty of holding a Federal and running for a State office (Governor) by resigning the former. That was what his visit on Saturday meant.

The office seekers as a general thing steer wide of the more difficult examinations in the civil service. Some time ago the commission issued a notice for the examination of applicants from the Middle States for the principal examiner of the Pension Office. Only one applicant responded to the call, M. F. Gallagher, of Shenandoah, Pa., who passed the examination yesterday. There are several vacancies to be filled. Mr. R. D. Graham, on reflection, concluded he didn't want to resign the place of secretary to the civil service commission, which pays $1,500 a year, and influential means were resorted to for the purpose of securing his reinstatement. His successor has been appointed, and the effect of Mr. Graham's application is not known. His tenure does not expire until September 15th. Higgins denies that he will resign on the 1st of October. But Homer D. Harlan, of Michigan, appointed to a $900 clerkship in the Postoffice Department, declines the position. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, Railroad Commissioner, is ill in St. Louis.

NORTH CAROLINA NOTES.

Mrs. Faison, of Clinton, and Miss Sprunt and Miss Taylor, of Wilmington, will visit the Luray Caves, Virginia, to-morrow. From there they will go, on Thursday, to New York and other New York points.

Major Mayo, of Whitakers, is here to secure a patent for his remarkable invention to keep smoke out of railway cars.

Mr. W. W. Carrayaw was here to-day, but left at 7 o'clock for Chicago and his duties as postoffice inspector. He will not be stationed regularly at any special place. He is much pleased with the very kind mention of him by his brethren in the State press.

A big excursion party from the South came in last night. There were several pages of names at the Metropolitan Hotel. Among the North Carolinians are Mrs. Tyson and daughter of Raleigh, Dr. J. M. O'Brien and daughters of Reidsville, a group of Milton people and some whose names may be hidden on registers of smaller hotels and boarding houses.

Gen. Benson has returned home. Fourth class postoffices recently es-
