

SEVEN SPRINGS LETTER.

GOLDSBORO, Aug. 23, 1886. Editor Messenger:—On Sunday, Aug. 22d, in company with Mr. George D. Bennett, Col. James Stackhouse, D. Marion, S. C. with two of my daughters, according to previous arrangement, I paid a visit to the fast becoming famous Seven Springs, near the village of Whitehall in this county. As early as 7 o'clock a. m., Mr. Bennett, with Col. Stackhouse, drove up to my front gate, in a handsome carriage, to which was hitched a span of splendid bay horses, well caparisoned with harness, and our little party of five, started on our journey for the Seven Springs—17 miles distant, over, perhaps, the sandiest road in Wayne county, and arrived at our destination at 10:30 a. m. When we arrived at the edge of the low-grounds, just this side of Whitehall bridge across Neuse river, we found the low-grounds overflowing, owing to the large freshet prevailing in the Neuse, which I found to be the largest with one exception, that has prevailed in said river since the famous freshet of 1867—judging from the depth of the water, which ran over the seats of our vehicle. Our party here dismounted and walked over the waters on the well constructed foot-way, extending the whole length thereof, about one-fourth of a mile, while our team was driven through by a young gentleman, who met with at this point, who very kindly tendered his services for this purpose, and right here, in behalf of our party, I wish to tender to this young gentleman our heartfelt thanks for this act of kindness, with our politest bow. We found all the crops on either side of our road, where they have had proper cultivation, splendid, the best I have seen on this road in many years—at least, better than they were this time last year. On arriving at the Springs, we drove directly to the large Springs Hotel, now kept by that courteous young gentleman, Mr. Thomas A. Whitfield. Here our party put up for the day, and I wish to say, for the benefit of the proprietor, that, if the dinner to which we were treated to-day was a fair sample of his manner of attending to the wants of the inner man, then there can be no just ground of complaint on account of this department of his hotel, and I trust none as to the comforts of his house. It was as good a dinner as I have ever seen spread in any small village hotel of North Carolina, and would compare favorably with the dinners usually spread in hotels of large cities—at least cities as large as Goldsboro. Every article that a man could desire, and the commodities of such as suit the appetites of a hungry party, after a long and somewhat tedious ride. The hotel I found much enlarged, and the spring much better fitted up than they were three years ago, the occasion of my last visit. They are now well housed in with a latticed shingle-roof house. We spent the day most pleasantly. The crowd present was much larger than usual, owing in part to the swollen condition of all streams in Eastern Carolina. Yet we met here people from many of the surrounding counties and a few from other States. Among the latter, Capt. Day, of Florence, S. C., we found here, who told us that he came seeking health—had only been here a few days, and yet in this short time the water of the sulphur spring had done him a great deal of good. He very highly praised the water of this spring as a curative for his disease, as the best he had ever tried, saying he did not believe better could be found in our entire country. So they come, some to seek pleasure, others health. I have never yet seen any one male or female, who has tried these waters, but what was loud in praising their many medicinal properties. These Springs are situated near the banks of old Neuse, a short distance above White Hall, surrounded by a romantic country, consisting of hills and dales, there being a chain of Seven Hills running parallel with the South bank of Neuse river. Seven Hills and Seven Springs, and it is thought that perhaps each hill furnishes a spring, all of which are concentrated in this cluster. In the entire scope of Eastern North Carolina, from the foot of the hill country to the seashore, there can be found no more picturesque and romantic country than the Seven, or Sapona, Hills of the White Hall section of Wayne county. Nature seems to have been lavish in her gifts to this section, and my county pride induces me to hope that the day is not remote when these springs, so beautifully surrounded, shall become famous, far and near, for their healing properties for the ailments to which our common humanity are cursed. All that is necessary to make them famous is that they become known, and the way for them to become known is for them to be tried. When once tried, all who make the trial, even the most skeptical, will be convinced that these waters will accomplish all claimed for them. By all means in the world, and by every consideration a Railroad ought to be run via Seven Springs to Jacksonville, in Onslow county, from this city. Such a road would help Goldsboro and Seven Springs immensely. This, at all events, is my opinion. When at Seven Springs I attended Divine Worship in the Presbyterian church, and heard a sermon from my old friend, Rev. J. D. Stanford, of Duplin county, from the text: "How long halt ye between two opinions?" which I enjoyed greatly. It was a good, plain, pointed, practical sermon, well delivered, in the style of a preacher, more so than I had imagined my old friend could assume, after nearly 30 years of public political speaking. The congregation was small—smaller than usual, I am informed, owing to sickness among some of the flock, and the swollen condition of the Neuse, which kept back most of the people on the north side of the river. The singing was good, after the good old fashioned style, without instrument, and my heart was made glad as I heard them thus singing—making melody to the Lord from soul and song, in those good old familiar hymns: "Nearer my God to Thee," and that other that always stirs up the best emotions in my spiritual nature:—"Jesus, lover of my soul," songs that will never die out, this side of the gate of the Eternal City, while there are human tongues to make Him known, or lips to sing His praise. May God's richest blessings ever rest on friend Stanford in his efforts to minister in holy things. We left the springs at 5 o'clock p. m., and arrived at home at 10 o'clock. Thus ended my first Sabbath visit to

SEVEN SPRINGS LETTER.

Seven Springs, with that kind hearted and accommodating quiet man, Mr. George D. Bennett, and my new formed friend Col. James Stackhouse, whom I found to be a very genial and jovial traveling companion. "Long may both of them live and prosper." Yours respectfully, E. A. WRIGHT.

CHURCH PICNIC.

AUGUST 26, 1886. Editor Messenger:—At the Methodist church in this county, called Zion, on Saturday the 21st, we had a splendid picnic. The day being bright and beautiful, the air cool and salubrious, everything spoke well for the community and schools that were represented. The opening exercises were a song by the entire congregation and prayer by the writer—after which the opening address was given by Prof. W. R. Skinner, who did ample justice to the great Sabbath school work, and showed to the audience that his mind was well stored with useful and beneficial knowledge. Afterward, Indian Springs school gave us a few of her sweet and soul-stirring notes, which showed that her Officers and Teachers had not labored in vain, but were richly rewarded for all their labor. Nor would I be doing justice to this school, (Zion,) at which the picnic was held, were I to omit saying, that the two, reflected much honor upon themselves, and their earnest co-workers; their songs were sweet as the morning air, while the bright eyes and ruddy cheeks glowed with healthful delight. The people were then invited to dinner, finding a long and well furnished table, filled with barbecue and all the rich luxuries that the country could afford. The blessing being asked by Rev. P. L. Groom, all partook plentifully, and if any failed to get enough it was their own carelessness. Dinner being over, the audience were called to order, by the writer, and a song sung, by all the schools. Bro. C. F. R. Korngay was next introduced, who gave us a lecture on the grand theme of improvement, showing what our race is, and what people may be, by proper industry. Bro. George W. Starling, from Providence Sabbath school, ably addressed the people upon the noble work that was before us. He spoke in such a way that his school and community ought to be proud of such a youth. The writer, for forty minutes, next spoke upon the origin and extent of the Sabbath school. Some pieces especially prepared for the occasion, were spoken by Miss Axy, Saponia and Alice Price, which reflected much credit upon these young ladies. A beautiful scene, presented itself, three little girls from the Union school, held at Byrd's school house, stood before the audience and sang clear as the morning lark. The schools represented were, Zion, Indian Springs, Macon Academy and the Union school, at Byrd's School House. After the entire congregation sang, "When Our Work is Ended," and prayer being offered by Brother Starling, the benediction was given, by the writer, and all dismissed. After refreshing up, with a plenty of "ice cold lemonade," we went to our respective places of abode. Thus passed off another delightful time which will long live in the minds of the present generation. JUDSON VERNON.

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

Those who think of Princeton College as strictly Presbyterian will be surprised to find by statistics recently given to the public that a large representation of other denominations, and notably the Episcopalians, have had both in the college and among its distinguished sons. Bishop Johns, of Virginia, was a Princeton graduate. So were Bishop McVaine, of Ohio, and Dr. Haight, of Trinity Parish, New York, and Dr. Noah H. Schenck, of St. Ann's, Brooklyn. The three oldest clergymen in the Episcopal Church are Alumni of Princeton, namely: The Rev. John Rodney, Class of '16, Germantown, Penn.; the Rev. George A. Smith, Class of '21, Alexandria, Va.; the Rev. John B. Clomson, D. D., Class of '22, West Chester, Penn. The Episcopal Church is represented in the Board of Trustees. An Episcopal religious society—the St. Paul's—exists among the students and has its place in the college catalogue, and Episcopal students are permitted to attend services in their own church instead of the college chapel, where the exercises are under Presbyterian guidance. It is a mistake to suppose that the college is formally a Presbyterian institution. It is under the direction of Presbyterians, but tolerance and catholic spirit prevail—a fact very decidedly attested by the few illustrations just given.

A HYDROPHOBIA CASE.

CINCINNATI, August 27.—On the 12th of last month, while visiting the family of Dominick Baccioeco, the Fifth street confectioner, the young and beautiful wife of Will Nonstein, who resides at 18 Betts street, was set upon by a huge Newfoundland dog and severely bitten about the arms. The wounds were immediately cauterized, and the dog, which showed no symptoms of rabies, was shot. About 5 o'clock last night, while Mrs. Nonstein was in the rear yard her husband was startled by loud outcries, and running into the yard found his wife lying in spasms on the ground. She was brought into the house when she began to snap and bark like a dog. Dr. Rowgh and a number of physicians were summoned and the sufferer removed to the hospital, where she was only quieted by the liberal use of chloroform. The physicians pronounce it a clear case of hydrophobia.

As we have previously said it is a charming publication and there is nothing which can give more of mingled pleasure and profit to the juvenile mind. FEARFUL EARTHQUAKE.

A Terrible Upheaval in Greece, in Which Three Hundred People are Killed.

ATHENS, August 28.—Greece has again been visited by an earthquake, which has been the most disastrous in Morea, and in which the loss of life, according to the best information, reaches the enormous figure of 300. The village of Pyrgo and the town of Philiatra, both situated on the western coast of Morea, were the chief sufferers, and these furnish, it is believed, all that have perished, while Philiatra is almost swept from the face of the globe, swallowed up in convulsions of the earth. The shocks were experienced throughout Greece in a greater or less degree. In the town of Zante every house was damaged, and the inhabitants fled in terror to the open country. Several towns in Italy were also visited by the earthquake, but not to any serious extent. Naples, Brindisi, Foggia, Casterta and Taranta being also of the number visited.

MURDERER AND MADMAN.

Terrible Retribution for a Criminal.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A special dispatch from Freeport, Ill., says that Charles Lashelle, who is confined in Carroll county jail at Mount Carroll, a night watchman at Shannon, a few months ago, was ferociously attacked yesterday by an insane man, named Francis F. Mayer, and nearly killed. The two men were occupying the same cell in the jail, but Mayer's hands had been bound by iron shackles, which in some manner, he slipped. Just before the attack Mayer was reading a Bible. He suddenly stepped before Lashelle, and exclaiming, "You are a murderer and must die," struck him with a club, felling him to the floor, and followed the first with several more blows. Lashelle's skull was fractured and several of his ribs and one arm were broken. Physicians say that his case is critical, with the chances against his recovery. He was to have been tried for Reddington's murder at the coming term.

WATER-SPOUT IN NORTH CAROLINA.

RALEIGH, N. C., August 26.—News has just been received here of a water spout in Wilkes county on Sunday night. The people living on North Lewis Fork river were awakened by loud noises and were thrown into a panic by the swell and overflow of the water, which came in a rush, sweeping away everything within its reach. The water stood in dwelling two feet deep, while enormous drifts of timber from the mountains floated against houses. W. S. Hall's house was surrounded. He sprang from the door and was swept against the stable where his mule was. He got on the back of the mule and was carried safely down the stream until the island was reached. His house was swept away. Wm. Lawes and family and Franklin Parsons and family went into the woods, fleeing from the waters and leaving their wrecked house. Such devastation was never seen by the oldest residents. Spruce pines, with the bark peeled and shining white, are lodged in the valley. They were torn up by the roots and washed down from the mountains. Some of these trees are three and four feet in diameter.

The cloudburst occurred in a field of H. H. Church, on the side of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Such a body of water fell all at once that great cavities are cut in the side of the mountain which can be seen from a distance of eight miles. Strange to say, in all the mad rush of the water not a life was lost.

KILLED HIS WIFE.

YPSILENS, MICH., August 27.—Willis, a station on the Wabash railroad, about 12 miles of here, was the scene of a ghastly murder yesterday. For some time trouble had existed in the family of a farmer named Wells. His mother-in-law had a mortgage against the farm which she was about to foreclose, and the troubles culminated yesterday afternoon, during which Wells cut his wife's throat from ear to ear. Their little children found the body of their mother reeking in blood in the doorway when they returned from school. Wells was arrested and brought to this city and jailed. He is about 30 years old and is playing the insane racket.

DESTITUTION IN TEXAS.

DALLAS, TEX., August 27.—E. L. Walker, county judge of Stevens county, arrived here to-day seeking aid to avert starvation there. The county, he says, is entirely denuded of grass, without grain and has only post oak and mesquite leaves for stock food. About one-third of the population have exhausted all their supplies and the remainder are mostly without bread and meat and need outside aid to save them from starvation. Cattle are dying in large numbers, and unless moved to the ranges none can survive the winter. Shackelford, Young, Polo Prato, Throckmorton, Eastland and Baylor counties, he says, are but little better off.

When We Demoralize the Stomach By excesses or imprudence in eating, we cannot hope to escape the consequences for any great length of time. The most robust digestion must succumb to abuses of that important function. But supposing that we have been foolish enough to eat the stomach, is the damage irreparable? By no means. The damage is only to do two things to insure his ultimate recovery. First, he should adopt an easily digestible diet. Second, he should use with regularity and persistence Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading gastric invigorant of the age. The malicious symptoms of dyspepsia, and the almost invariably attendant disorders, biliousness and constipation, will assuredly cease to persecute the sufferer if the above advice is attended to. Who that has suffered the tortments that chronic indigestion inflicts will neglect to take advantage of a remedy which, if the most positive evidence of the medical profession and the public is to be received with due credence, is an absolute specific for the complaint.
