WIT AND HUMOR. The great woman question—"What did she have on?"—Lynn Union. Customer—"Do barbers find it hard to raise the wind in these times?" Barber—"No, sir. Not if the razor is sharp."—Lowell Citizen.

Employer (to collector)—"See Mr. Smith?—Collector—"O, yes." Employer—"Was he annoyed at your calling upon him?" Collector—"Not a bit. He asked me to call again."—N. Y. Sun. As far as we have noticed there has been thus far no organized movement for an increase in "the wages of sin."

"Yes," said a husband, sadly, "my wife is a devotee of the red flag. The very sight of an iron cross, or a high church of exemption."—Surrey. I can not have any sympathy in common with such cut-throats. "Yes she has." "What, Anarchists and Socialists?" "No, auctioneers."

"I see the Socialists of Chicago are in a ferment," observed the Judge. "You surely are mistaken," replied the Major. "Mistaken! Nothing of the kind. Didn't I see it in the paper?" "Can't help it if you did. Ferment means to work, and that's something Socialists don't do."—Pittsburg Chronicle. Aunt Matilda—Dear me! that's my minister, the Rev. Ananias Howler, knocking, and he does so dislike dogs, Miss Prettypert—Never mind, auntie, I'll be off, good-by. Aunt M.—Well, if you wouldn't mind, dear! I shouldn't like Jingto to bite Mr. Howler. Miss P.—Certainly not. He's a most unwholesome-looking man.—Fun.

The Eureka (Cal.) Brass Band has received its instruments, but evidently not its full instruction, as the Standard of that town respectfully requests residents to be forbearing for a few months while the members of the band are practicing. This is construed by some as an earnest appeal against the organization of a Vigilance Committee.—N. Y. World.

Street-Car Philosophy: Calm Conductor—"Can't take that quarter, sir!" Indignant passenger—"I'd like to know that, C. Landlord, it's too smooth." "Well! That's cool! You gave me that very quarter on this car this morning. I took it from you in change." "Well, you see, we are more particular than you are."—San Francisco Wasp.

"Get inside, sir," ordered the brakeman on the Third Avenue elevated road. "Passengers are not allowed to stand on the platform." "But you allow those two men to stand on the platform," said the passenger. "and why shouldn't I?" "Those two gentlemen are personal friends of mine," said the brakeman indignantly.—N. Y. Sun.

Ab, these landlords! Landlord (to tenant)—"How did that door get mutilated at the bottom in such an outrageous manner?" Tenant—"My dog was mad last week, and bit it before we could stop him. We were all away that day." Landlord—"You didn't take that door off the hinges before you left? Seems to me a little more foresight might be used in some cases."—Tid-Bits.

Some years ago we had an absent-minded wife who lost a brass safety pin. She could not remember whether she had swallowed it or, inadvertently stuck it in the small of her back. Three years ago she complained of the same pain in her right arm. Two days after applying a fly blister she found the safety pin in the tray of an old trunk in the attic.—Detroit Tribune.

Minister (dining with the family)—"My young friend, you must come one of these days and spend an afternoon with my little boys." Little Johnny (delighted)—"And can I see the skeleton, too?" Minister—"Skeleton! Why, what do you mean?" Little Johnny (paralyzing the whole company)—"O, I know what she'd do if she had such an ugly skeleton in her closet as you have."

These laughable calls upon a library for books are recorded in the Library Journal: "Santa Claus bounded. (A bound volume of St. Nicholas." "Snow-bier." (Zembla.) "Pneumonia series." "Phantasmagoria by Hans Christian Andersen." (Improvisatore.) "Mr. Isaac's Tale of Modern India." "Erskine's Letters on Representative Men." "Goshier's Winter in Russia."

Smith (addressing a stack of blue chips)—"All velvet, boys, every one of 'em. It's better to be born lucky than rich. My tailor catches me for a spring suit to-morrow. I'll play one more hand and quit you." Same Smith (after the hand is played)—"Four sixes are go-o-od. They beat an ace full to a dead certainty. Let me have a stack of reds, and I'll give you a check for 'em."—N. Y. Times.

One of the most prominent dairymen of Orange county, New York, has a spring on his farm in which for years he has kept a fine brook trout. The dairymen is a most upright and conscientious man, and was grieved to get the following note from a New York man: "The trout you sent me in one of the cans of milk was very fine, and a piece in its sole was very fine to send it!"—Forest and Stream.

A little 5-year-old lady came from Montpelier to St. Albans the other day with her mamma on a visit, and after a hard day's work at play was rather tired. While she was preparing for bed that night she was pretty cross, and when told to say her prayers she refused to do so. When asked why she would not pray as usual, she said: "Mamma, it isn't a lay to say prayers in St. Albans!"—St. Albans Messenger.

Planter—"That's a vicious-looking mule you've got there, Pompey." Pompey—"Dat mewel, sah? Dat am one of the wondahs of the world." Planter—"One of the wondahs of the world?" Pompey—"Yes, sah; dat mewel spilled me outen de wagon yestaday. Planter—"Is dat why you call him one of the wondahs of the world?" Pompey—"Yes, sah; Pompey's spiller, you know. Hah, hah! Gid long dar!"—Boston Courier.

Judge—"The officer says you were drunk last night and fell down on the street. Can you explain that little matter?" Prisoner (with dignity)—"The cause of my fall, your Honor, was not attributable to liquor, but to circumstances over which I had no control. Judge (in surprise)—"What circumstances do you allude to?" Prisoner (sadly)—"My legs, your Honor."—Lowell Citizen. George is 4 years old. One day the young fellow had been taken with a slight attack of pre-arrangement, and, wishing to impress upon his infantile understanding the sinfulness of telling lies, his father related the story about George Washington and his little hatchet, closing with the remark that George Washington was a good boy and never told a lie. The child sat in deep thought a moment and then said: "Papa, touden't he talk?"—Boston Record.

Haskins—"See here, Andrews, I don't propose to stand by and be made a laughing-stock of by you. What in thunder did you mean when you told Harrison I was all the time making insane remarks?" Andrews—"My dear fellow, I never said anything of the kind. Harrison must have mistaken me. I didn't say insane, I said insane. Haskins—"O, well, that's altogether different. I know you couldn't have said that about me."—Tid-Bits.

Indian Sword Performers. The favorite sword for performing feats in India is the gaunt, hand-tooled pata. The swordsmen will first show the keenness of its weight by cutting in two a leaf laid flat on the outstretched palm of a friend or by cutting a cloth hanging loose in the air. He will put one sword on each hand, and, so armed, spring from his feet on the bare ground, will throw sunbursts back and forth, and, following each movement with a wondrously complicated and simultaneous gyration of both swords around his head and body. He will have the naked sword, more than five feet long, double-edged, sharp-pointed, and keen as a razor, lashed from the back of his neck down his back, and will again, from his naked feet, repeat the somersaults. He will, with sword and shield in his hands, he will leap head foremost through the stretched-out loop of a rope, held by two men at the height of their heads, as a circus-rider leaps through a paper hoop, and light safely on his feet. Small wonder if the gaping crowd of spectators applauds vociferously; that the carpet of the plucky athlete is soon covered with a harvest of small charity; and that the recurring festivals, with these profitable opportunities, prevent the knowledge of the old sword play from dying out.—Blackwood's Magazine.

LEMONT ELIXIR. OFFICE SUNDAY TELEGRAM, ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 9, 1885. DR. MOZLEY: Allow me to thank you most kindly for the bottle of Lemont Elixir. I am not much of a believer in medicine, but being overtaxed by excessive office work, I resolved to try your Lemont Elixir. It proved all that more than you claimed for it. It acts like a charm on the liver, stomach and bowels, gives a check to nervousness and produces what I craved most, namely, pleasant and refreshing rest at night. I cordially recommend your remedy as a delightful tonic in all cases of indigestion, biliousness and nervous prostration. CHAS. T. LEONARD, Editor and Proprietor Sunday Telegram, 205 Broadway, New York, N. Y. 25c per bottle. Prepared by H. MOZLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. sept-1m
