A WORKINGMAN ON THE STEPS Engaged With the Morning Newspaper. An Interview and a Chat.

"I am not an early riser," said a resident of North State street, "nor is any member of my nearly naked from the tattered remains household. It is not often that either I or of an only pair of stockings, his breeches one of my servants gets out after the morn- not enough to cover his nakedness, his ing paper earlier than 7 e'clock. But one shirt hanging in strings, his hair dismorning, about three weeks ago, I happened heveled, his face wan and thin, his look to come down about 6:45, and on going out after my morning paper, found a workingman sitting on the steps, his dinner pail by his side, deeply engaged with the news of the day. He was not aware of my presence, and my first impulse was to speak sharply to him and give him a reprimand for his impudence. But on second thought I did nothing of the But on second the kind, but re-entered the house and left him alone, watching him, however, from behind the curtains of the front window. A few minutes before 7 o'clock he carefully folded the paper, put it on the doorsill, picked up

The next morning I got up early on purpose there he was, with the paper in his hand. He was a sober, thoughtful appearing man, and the incident so impressed me that I told my apologized like a gentleman for the liberty he had taken, and when I told him that I knew he was reading my paper before I did, and liked to have him do so, the man almost broke down. It was a little thing-a mere triflebut I fancy we were both the better for our interview. He seemed to be a well-informed man, and said that he could not be satisfied to remain in ignorance of current events, and yet was too poor to take a paper. "I earn $1.60 a day," he said, "and pay $1:

a month for rent. I have a wife and four children, three of them in school. My wife is sickly, and there are medicines to buy, and occasionally the doctor comes. I neither smoke nor drink, but when our expenses are paid-and, God knows, they are little enough actually too poor to take a newspaper. "I wonder," the State street gentleman added, "if there are many men like him in Chicago?"—Chicago Herald.

They Renewed Their Honeymoon. A prominent colored preacher of Dougherty county had the misfortune of quarreling with which his reverend head had reposed. There this was the cause of his domestic unhappiness. His first impulse was to throw the bag into the river. He changed his mind, however, and took the conjure bag to Mayor Wilder, of Albany, who reassured him by the information that the true purpose of the bag was to restore harmony in a divided house hold. This had the desired effect, and husband and wife are now in the bliss of a re newed honeymoon.-Atlanta Constitution.

The Queen at Cabbage Soup. Maria Henrietta, queen of the Belgians, received a letter from the unfortunate ex-Empress Carlotta a few days ago asking her to come and see her as soon as possible. The queen had her ponies hitched to the caleche, which she always drives herself, and set out at a gallop. Overtaken by a storm, her maj-To My Patrons and the Pub- esty took refuge in a barrack. Being mess hour, the officers set about improvising the best dinner they could for their august visitor, but the queen refused, saying: "A newlyarrived recruit should be content with ordinary fare." And she sat down at the common table and ate a plate of cabbage soup and picked a pig's foot.—Foreign Letter.

Best Proof Against Mashers. Oh, I just think the "chestnut bell" is the best proof against mashers ever invented. All the girls are in love with it. One day last week a lady friend and myself were out shopping, and we both purchased a "chestnut bell" and pinned them on our dresses. When we took the cable cars to come home a handsome young man a few seats in front turned The next time he did it we both rang the bell on him, which attracted every one's attention in the car. When we left our homes the soldiers gave us fresh meat, and we hung it up in the cars to dry. When we had come one day it began to rot and wouldn't dry. If fresh meat would do this, then we will rot also, and by and by our arms and legs will drop like white Yaquis with the white man's sickness deprosy.) The air is heavy and the sun dim here. Coffee From Bolivia. Bolivian coffee is newly introduced into this market. The berry is large, lustrous and, although of good flavor, is of surprising strength. Used as Mocha, Java or Rio coffees , in infusions, it is so much richer than in the active principle of coffee that its effects upon the nervous system are almost like delirium tremens. It promises to be of much

A Strange Kind of Fish. A battered old piece of wreck, covered with barnacles and moss, was washed ashore on Brigantine beach, New Jersey, recently, and closely following it was a large school of some kind of fish, altogether new and strange to the fishermen of that neighborhood. Some 400 of the strange fish were washed ashore with the wreck. They averaged about one pound each in weight, were black, and had large eyes and queerly shaped heads.-Ex-

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stemach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is

An American Army in 1777.

Here is a picture of one of the men at Valley Forge: "His bare feet peep through his worn-out shoes, his legs hungry, his whole appearance that of a man forsaken and neglected." And were torn and ragged; the guns were rusty; a few only had bayonets; the soldiers carried their powder in tin boxes and cow-horns.

The horses died of starvation, and the his dinner bucket and hastened away to his men harnessed themselves to trucks and sleds, hauling wood and provisions from storehouse to hut. At one time there to see if he would return, and, sure enough, was not a ration in camp. Washington seized the peril with a strong hand and compelled the people in the country about, who had been selling to the Britservants never to go for the paper until after is army at Philadelphia, to give up 7 o'clock, or until the man had finished with their stores to the patriots at Valley it. He kept coming morning after morning, Forge.—Horace E. Scudder, in St. Nicholas.

Wild Hunters.

One traveler tells of having witnessed the pursuit and destruction of a large leopard by a pack of wild dogs. Whether or not the dogs had set out with the intention of capturing the leopard, he could not tell. He saw them start up the great cat in a low jungle. The leopard made no effort at first to fight off its assailants; but, with a series of prodigious springs, sought shelter in the only refuge the plain afforded-a tree which had partially fallen.

There the hunted beast stood, snarlthere isn't a cent left in the house. I am ing and growling in a manner that would have frightened off any ordinary foe. The savage dogs, however, never hesitated a moment, but with agile leaps fan up the sloping trunk, and gave instant battle to their furious game. One

Yet they conthereafter he came across a small bag of red | tinued to throw themselves against the Turpentine and Whiskey Stills, Brooks flannel securely sewed within the pillow upon enraged creature, until, wearied by the contest and wounded in fifty places, it upon he concluded he had been conjured, and fell from the tree; when, still struggling, it is quickly torn to pieces.

It must not be supposed, however, that the wild dog usually prefers as for-midable game as the leopard. A sheep-fold is always an attraction too great 500 that the wild dog usually prefers as forfor the wild dog to pass.

And now, after calling this wild hunter a dog, I shall have to say that it is not a dog at all, but is only a sort of cousin to the dog, and really a nearer relative to the hyena, though it so resembles both animals as to have gained the name of hyena-dog. Its scientific name is Lycaon venaticus; and besides the two common names already mentioned, it has half a dozen more. - John R. Coryell, in St. Nicholas.
