WHAT THE WIVES OF PARIS FEAR TO SEE IN THE PAPERS.
 [The New York World.]
 During the recent heated term a workwoman met her perspiring brow then adds in a tone which permits of no doubt on the subject.
 "But if it seems on like this, what sort of weather will we have by January?"
 At the police tribunal:
 Judge—Prisoner, why did you steal this poor man's wages on Saturday, his pay day?
 Prisoner—Because Saturday was my pay day, too.

FOR THE GLEANER.
Mr. Editor,
 I will give you a short account of our doings and proceedings in Orange County this week. The Superior Court has been in session; his honor presiding with his usual dignity. Solicitor Strudwick was, of course on hand and made the offenders against the law look sharp. Not very many were sent to the Penitentiary because the offenses were not grave enough, but the pockets of several were lighter than when they came to court, owing to the fines imposed. The people, however, seem to be more interested in politics than in law just at this time. On Monday Josiah Turner, independent or bridge, tall candidate for the Senate and Maj. Jno. W. Graham the regular nominee addressed the people for about four hours. The crowd was small but the white men seemed all anxious to hear Graham and the negroes to hear Turner.
 On Tuesday F. H. Busbee, the Democratic elector and Ike R. Strayhorn the Radical elector had the day to themselves. Busbee ought to be ashamed of himself to come to a man's own home and skin him right in the presence of his own family and friends. But perhaps he is excusable when he does it in a good cause. But to speak seriously, everybody says that they never before have heard such a complete flooring in all their lives as Busbee gave Ike. And when he told him that, although there was a name to save the Isaac of old when his father was about to offer him up as a sacrifice, yet no man could be found in this case and Isaac was bound to go; the enthusiasm of the crowd was beyond bounds. The people of Orange say they want no Ike in their midst (whether Young or Strayhorn).
 Prospects here are bright. Tilden, Vance, Davis & Co. are far ahead. Court is still in session. The lawyers present are Messrs H. K. Nash, J. W. Norwood, J. W. Graham, Thos. Webb, F. N. Strudwick, A. W. Graham, Thos. Ruffin, I. R. Strayhorn, C. E. Parrish, J. Turner, of Hillsboro.
 Jones Watson and J. M. Alexander of Chapel Hill, S. H. Webb and P. M. Briggs of Durham, Col. T. C. Fuller of Raleigh, Geo. B. Home's of Granville, Jas. A. Graham of Alamance, R. W. York of Chatham and Jas. Terry of Caswell.
 Business here is dull but the people are hoping for better times.
 Yours truly
 I. H.

IS IT POSSIBLE.
 We think it is and so, from all accounts, do the people of North Carolina and the whole country. Is it so that there is so bright a day dawning for us?
 I have often heard this question asked within the past few weeks. It refers to the result of the election. We undertake to say Yes, Yes. It is so, we will by the time the sun sets this afternoon be relieved.
 Tilden will be President, Vance will be Governor and the Independents of Alamance will be numbered with the things of the past. From the work we have seen in our country, and from the cheering reports we get from all over the State and the country we predict that such will be the case. Two days work will finish it. And will it not be glorious when we can once more say we have a honest President, and honest Governor and the whole of our affairs in honest hands when fraud and pretence can be banished and honest men can hold office without fear of being kicked out whenever they have shoves tried and convicted.

Grand Rally at Liberty
OLD RANDOLPH UP AND MOVING.
CHATHAM, ALAMANCE AND GUILFORD REPRESENTED.
TILDEN, VANCE AND REFORM THE WATCHWORD.
 Escorted by a delegation of our citizens, the Greensboro Cornet Band, drawn by four spanking horses, in the lead, Governor Vance, left here Monday morning to address the people of Randolph at Liberty. Although the morning was misty and lowering, all along the way people, on horseback and in conveyances, fell into line. Within a couple miles of our destination a company of about a 250 mounted men met the Governor with three hearty cheers, opened ranks saluted the procession as it passed between and then closed up, fell into line and marched in the rear to the place of meeting, where a stand had been erected, beautifully decorated with flowers, seats arranged and about a thousand people, with many ladies, were waiting the arrival of the Governor a united cheer, a spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm welcomed him with a genuine welcome. After a brief time spent in conversation with those who gathered around to welcome him in person, the Governor took the stand and for two hours and a half amidst the utmost attention, broken only by applause or the laughter excited by his wit and humor he pictured the condition of the country—past and present and the frightful enormities of the radical rule. We have neither time nor space to enter into the details of his speech but the impression it creates on the minds of the Republicans who listened to him have never faded. The Conservative ticket avowed their intention to do so this time. At the conclusion of his speech he was presented with a number of bouquets by the ladies, all of whom he bowed in shaking hands with. "On next Wednesday,"

In response to a call Col. Morehead addressed the meeting briefly calling attention to special points and the Constitutional Amendments after which the meeting adjourned with three hearty cheers for Tilden Vance and Reform.

Randolph is awake, the greatest confidence prevails, whilst the Radicals, apparently realising their doom are demoralized. The Conservative candidates everywhere have large assemblages to meet and listen to them, whilst the Radicals notwithstanding their secret efforts and widespread announcements fail to find audiences. Jim Boyd and Wheeler had to give up their campaign for this reason—Randolph has entered the ranks Reform and Republicanism has played out.

THE SLAYER OF JIM FISK.
 [St. Louis Times.]
 The History of Edward S. Stokes, the man who killed Jim Fisk, will bear study, it does not "point a moral or adorn a tale." On Saturday morning at a o'clock he completed his three years term of imprisonment, and walked forth from Auburn, N. Y., state prison a free man once more. And notwithstanding the fact that the expenses of his three trials for murder, lawyers' fees and other items including his final verdict have amounted to five years over $500,000, Stokes will come out of prison a comparatively wealthy man, his oil refining works at Hunter's Point which have been taken care of by his mother, being very valuable property. It is also said that he has speculated since he has been in prison and is the owner of a very valuable patent for paying streets, which he purchased from a convict while in Sing Sing.
 But Stokes has learned that severe old lesson; "The way of the transgressor is hard." He is no longer the soi-disant Broadway elegant who five years ago paid $2,000 a year to his tailor to keep him attired in the latest fashions of the day. His incarceration seems to have been no gala day with him. He said to a New York Herald correspondent a few days ago, in response to a question as to how he felt: "Well Mr., I don't feel well at all. I was pretty high gone. For four weeks I thought I would die, and I have suffered since I came here. I do not think I thought I would ever leave the hospital. You do not know what percentage I have suffered since I left Sing Sing. Think of ruehly the cold sending me nearly three hundred miles from Sing Sing to this place with my hands on a feet in iron. Then I have been kept on bread and water and have not even been allowed prison fare, as bad as that is. I do not want to find fault with Warden Durston; it is the state prison inspectors Clark and Crowley that ordered it. I am a little better; but sometimes I have intermitted fever and I am all flushed now from it and the asthma hurts me. You do not know how I have suffered. I assure you I will bear up until the day of release, well as I can if they don't kill me before the 28th of October. My letters have been intercepted and I have not been allowed to see anyone since I came here."
 Misfortunes in multiples have visited Stokes since the fatal day when Fisk fell at the foot of the Grand Central stair case. His brother Clinton died of consumption, and his father died a year ago, worried to death by grief for his son's disgrace. His wife has procured a divorce, and he has accomplished daughter eighteen years old who has forsaken him. He seems to have no friends left him at the end of his term, save his mother who has stood by her unfortunate son with unflinching devotion and fidelity throughout his terrible ordeal, hovering like a guardian angel around the prisoner though he is blighted and fallen.
 "Around the dear ruin each wish of heart
 Will enwre itself verdantly still."
 At the early age of thirty-eight he is broken and shattered in health, emaciated irritable, with stooped figure and hair prematurely gray.
 Stokes expresses his intention to go to Europe for a short time upon his release from prison but. But this cup of bitterness will scarcely depart entirely from him. Wherever he may roam he will behold a thousand multiplied images of his crime and its consequences, reflected from the mirror of his own memory.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.
 WASHINGTON, D. C.,
 October 31, 1876.
 "LITTLE JOHNNY DAVENPORT."
 The Evening Star, of yesterday, referring to this individual as the one to whom the Republicans are looking to reduce the usual Democratic majority in New York, says he graduated under Gen. B. F. Butler. He did, when Butler was bottled up" (Vid. one of Genl. Grant's reports when commanding the armies operating against Richmond, at Bermuda Hundred.) Little Johnny was his Provost Marshal. He was then a pimply-faced youth of about twenty; but, in selecting him for the important post of Provost Marshal, the "widow" showed herself to be an excellent reader of human nature. "As the old cock crows, the young one learns." Little Johnny, in turn, at once began the study of his master's character. He soon discovered that Butler was arrogant and cruel, and that, to please him, he, Davenport, must be the same. He did not disappoint his master, and, in a short time, he was the terror of petty offenders in Butler's command. For trifling offences, men were thrust into a stockade without shelter and were forced to remain there for weeks. Once in his power there were no means of redress—Protests against his inhumanity were invariably followed by additional punishment; and so the majority of his victims preferred to suffer in silence until it pleased his little majesty to release them. Once, in obedience to the behests of Butler, this same little Johnny placed a heavy ball and chain on a prisoner, and placed him between the lines of the two armies, where he was kept for a week. He would undoubtedly have been killed by the confederates, had he not lifted up the iron ball chained to his limbs to show them his helpless and pitiable condition. "But then," the victim said afterwards, "I was not so much afraid of getting a shot from the front as I was of getting one from the rear. Knowing Butler and Davenport as well as I did, I feared they might investigate one of our own men to fire upon me." The secret of Butler's antipathy to his person, who was a civilian, lay in the fact that the latter was cognizant of some circumstances to the detriment of Butler, and had been detected in writing a letter detailing them to President Lincoln. Butler subsequently sent him through the lines, evidently hoping he should be shot as a spy; but he was afterwards exchanged.
 It need only be said that Butler's plan came near succeeding, for the man to whom I refer who now lives in New York, was under sentence of death, and would have been executed but for the intervention of the French Consul at Richmond. This was the kind of work Davenport was called upon to do; and this is the man who is "running" the election in New York city in the interests of the Republicans. In doing this, Davenport is aided by no less than eight hundred assistants, who, acting under his orders, will doubtless do all that lies in their power to intimidate Democratic voters.

WENT BACK ON HIM.
 The following story is substantially true: A short time ago, a Southern member of Congress, a Republican, of course, obtained a clerkship in the Interior Department for a good looking female. Prior to this, there was an implied if not an expressed promise, on the part of the female, to repay the obligation by becoming the brever wife of the member of Congress. He kept his part of the compact, and secured her an office, upon which she gave him a good sized slice of cold shoulder, and ordered him not to annoy her any more. He persisted in his suit until he became convinced there was no hope of success, when he told her he should report her to the Secretary as an improper person to be employed in the Department, and she would be summarily dismissed. Taking her first opportunity, she called on the Secretary and laid the whole matter before him. Subsequently, the disappointed Congressman visited the Secretary, and true to his promise, requested the immediate discharge of the girl on the ground of her immorality. When he had finished, the Secretary informed him that he knew all about the case, and that he must decline to discharge the female in question. "Old Zack was firm, and the girl still holds a $900 place in his Department."

ON TUESDAY, NOV. 7.
 Samuel J. Tilden will be elected President of the United States. There can be no reasonable doubt of that fact. He starts into the contest sure of the votes of the sixteen following States which constitutes a solid South:
 States. No. of Electors.
 Alabama 10
 Arkansas 6
 Delaware 3
 Florida 4
 Georgia 11
 Kentucky 12
 Louisiana 8
 Maryland 8
 Mississippi 8
 Missouri 15
 North Carolina 10
 South Carolina 7
 Tennessee 12
 Texas 8

Virginia 11
 West Virginia 5
 Total 138
 Tilden will undoubtedly carry the three Pacific States, which have 12 votes:
 States. No. of Electors.
 California 6
 Nevada 3
 Oregon 3
 Total 12
 In the East, Mr. Tilden will carry, beyond a doubt, the following States which have 59 votes:
 States. No. of Electors.
 Connecticut 6
 New Jersey 9
 New York 35
 Total 50
 The Democratic vote in the Electoral College will then be:
 States. No. of Electors.
 Southern 138
 Pacific 12
 Eastern 50
 Total 200
 This will give Mr. Tilden 15 more votes in the; Electoral College than are necessary.
 It was contended that the above 22 States are the only States Mr. Tilden can possibly carry. He has as good a show for Ohio and Indiana as Hayes has, and a fair prospect, also, of getting the vote of New Hampshire. But these three States are mighty uncertain. They can not be relied upon. The indications have been for months, that if he loses through any mismanagement four or five of the Southern State, Hayes and Wheeler will probably be elected. There is a possibility that Mr. Tilden might be elected without the vote of South Carolina and Florida; but it would not do to risk the loss of the eleven votes of those two States; because one or two of the Eastern or Pacific States above named may disappoint us. It will never answer to work for only a bare majority of electoral votes.
 Will the South see it, that no single State south of Mason and Dixon's Line goes against Tilden?
WE MUST HAVE A SOLID SOUTHERN VOTE, AT ALL HAZARDS.

VANCE NAILS THE BLOCKADE LINE.
 Holden Abuses the Brand He Broke That Heavensble Night That Heavensble Brigade Came to Town.
 GREENSBORO, Oct. 30, 1876.
 Editors Sentinel and News:
 DEAR SIRS—In refutation of certain false and malicious insinuations made against me in a gratuitous sheet called the Constitution in regard to blockade running during the war, I desire to make a brief statement.
 When the war ceased there were some $219,000 sterling in the hands of the state agent in Europe, J. H. Flanner. For this sum Flanner refused to account and went from England to the Continent to avoid arrest on the part of John White. The latter gentleman had been the original agent of the state abroad, and Flanner had been appointed temporarily to enable White to visit his home. Not one dollar of that sum was ever received by me, on personal or any other account. The draft to which, I suppose the Constitution alludes, drawn by me on partners in Europe, were for the proceeds of fifteen bales of cotton shipped by me on Alexander Collier's steamers. That gentleman, who was himself running the blockade, learning that I would not ship cotton for myself on the state steamer, kindly invited me to ship fifty bales on his vessel, and I availed myself of his kindness to the extent of fifteen bales. By this I mean I placed in Collier's hands some $3,000 and brought in some family supplies for the use of the executive mansion which was then kept open. Holden, one of the editors of the Constitution, has no doubt a vivid recollection of participating of some of these "supplies" on the night when Bennings's brigade drove him into my bed chamber for protection. The money came to me at a most opportune moment indeed, being received soon after my release from prison, and when Gov. Holden had sent a lot of federal soldiers to Statesville and taken all the furniture of the mansion which my family were using, even the bed from under my sick wife.
 Whilst I was in Carroll prison in Washington I wrote to Gov. Holden immediately after his appointment as provisional governor, and informed him where all the state property was, the cotton and rosin, and particularly this amount in the hands of Flanner, and urged him to take steps to secure it. Perhaps that letter may be found on the executive letter book. Governor Worth, then treasurer, told me whilst I was in prison that he had received it, and had sent him to Washington to confer with me about it.
 The facts in regard to the blockade transaction of the state are all in the personal knowledge of John White, now I believe a resident of Petersburg, Va. Dr. Thomas D. Hogg, Major John Devereux, Alexander M. McPheeters, and Dr. T. J. Boykin of Baltimore.
 Very respectfully,
 Z. B. VANCE.
