

THAT $100,000!—We called in at the Treasurer's office yesterday on our regular rounds, and found all hands busy. We asked the Doctor how about that $100,000 deficit that we heard some little laughing and talking about on the streets. "Do you want to interview me young man?" said the Doctor. "That is our desire," said we and no mistake. "Then go ahead," said the doctor. "Reporter—Well the $100,000, tell us where has it gone, &c., &c. Can you explain?"

Yes, sir, I can, and am not only willing but anxious to explain anything, in connection with my office when called on from any quarter. The report of Treasurer Jenkins, ending September 30th 1876 showed a balance in the Treasury of $189,687.07. The Legislature of 1876-77 made various appropriations to pay iron for the Western N. C. Road, Western Insane Asylum, Colored Insane Asylum and various smaller matters, believing that the sum on hand with the then tax levy would be sufficient to pay the whole, and it would have been sufficient but for the fact, that the Legislature extended the time for the levies to pay into the Treasury to the 12th of January, so that it left me fifteen months to provide for instead of twelve. I left no demand on the Treasury unpaid except to the Western Insane Asylum and the Colored Insane Asylum and I made satisfactory arrangements with the Commissioner of the Western Insane Asylum by which they got the full benefit of the appropriation, and as I understand have made good use of it. I also made satisfactory arrangement with the officers of the Colored Insane Asylum for the payment of the site purchased for that institution. It is all now paid and I made no debt and paid no interest. The balance due the Western N. C. Railroad has not been called for. I have paid as you will find in my report as follows:

Western N. C. Railroad,	$75,195.93
Western Insane Asylum,	50,500.00
Penitentiary over the special tax,	100,000.00
Interest on W. N. C. Railroad Bonds,	118,545.00
	$344,241.93

For which no special taxes have been levied. That is where it is gone. Well, sir, if everybody could answer us as promptly and clearly as you have, our position as reporter would be more pleasant.—Raleigh Observer.

BEAUTY OF MANNERS.

Manners are the garments of the spirit—the eternal clothing of the being, in which character utters itself. If the character be simple and sincere, the manners will be at one with it—will be the natural outbirth of its traits and peculiarities. If it be complex and self-seeking, the manners will be artificial, affected, or sincere. Some persons make up, put on, take off, alter or patch their manners to suit times and seasons, with as much facility, and as little apparent consciousness of duplicity, as if they were treating their clothes in like fashion. The fine lady of this class may be polished to the last degree, when arrayed in silks, and laces, she glides over the rich carpets of the drawing room—and yet, with her servants at home, she is possibly less the lady than they; or worse still, the free lady, married, perhaps, to a fine gentleman of character similar to her own, in the privacy of domestic life, carries on a civil war with him, in which all restraint of courtesy is set aside. The best manners possible are the simple bringing down of the perfect law of clarity into the most external intimacies of social life. Until character treads at all times and in all places, and towards all persons, to ultimate itself in manners or thorough courtesy, it is not building itself upon a safe foundation. This is the golden rule of true manners. Ec.

POST-MORTEM PRAISE.

Why not say many good kindly things of a man to his face, and not reserve them all for his funeral? Many a man has gone hence without the encouragement and reinforcement a word of thoughtful cheer would have given to him—and through him to the cause for which he labored. It is an old maxim that many buried men would think they had fallen in to the wrong graves if they could but read their epitaphs. Not always so: rich scamps can pay for big monuments and subsidize epitaphs; but, on the contrary, some genuine men never get their dues until after their burial when survivors take time to realize how much went into the tomb. Old discords, past reproaches, superannuated rivalries, by-gone misunderstandings send many a poor heart almost gladly to its rest, and the sod rests far more lightly on his breast than did the world while he lived. Give men your hand, man! Do not fear to tell a man you love and honor him if you do really love and honor him. At any rate, you can say something encouraging, and so lighten your own heart. This world is not a bear-garden to be musical with grows. We be brethren.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"Mr. President," said a Buffalo alderman, "I makes der motion as der new jail be build on der same spot as der old jail what's now standing; dat saves der money for der land, and I makes der motion as der old jail shall not be pulled down till der new jail is build, so ve-vill not be widout der jail."

Here is a striking fact: "I have had twenty thousand prisoners pass through my hands," said the keeper of the Canterbury jail, "since I have been keeper of this jail; but, though I have enquired, I have not discovered one testotoler among them."

The man who lives right, and is right, has more power in his silence than another who lives differently has by his words. Character is like bells which ring out sweet music, and which, when touched accidentally, even, resound with sweet music.—Ex.

Josh Billings says, that the man who distrusts everybody, is the man whom nobody should trust.
