

A STRANGE STORY.

A MILLIONAIRE'S FATE.

HIS DYING MARRIAGE AT HENDERSONVILLE.

(From the Richmond Dispatch.)

James H. Wheatley left Tennessee for Brooklyn over twenty five years ago, when a lad of sixteen years. Being penniless he pitched in with a will, and at the age of thirty-eight found himself a millionaire, married an estimable Brooklyn lady, and turned his attention to the doing of good works. He was chief mover in many charitable schemes, presented a rectory to St. Peter's Episcopal parish, and founded a much-needed home for consumptives. He lived in a magnificent house. He did not drink, chew or smoke. The panic of 1873 came, and Mr. Wheatley found himself crippled. He left the sugar business and went to Philadelphia to manufacture water-proof cloth. Later he went into the shirt business in New York. On the night of August 27th 1878, Officer Gannon, of the New York police, found Mr. Wheatley lying on the sidewalk at the corner of Charles and Morton streets. He was moaning piteously for help. His vest was buttoned, his ruffled shirt and collar betokened a struggle. He seemed under the influence of a powerful drug. To the officer the prostrate man said he had been robbed and nearly murdered by highway men. He painfully told the story of the assault upon him. As he was walking along Sixth avenue, just at dark, he said, he was suddenly assaulted by three men, who threw him down and began to beat him. They then tore open his vest and robbed him of $20,000 in money and bonds. On the person of the victim were found securities valued at $15,000, together with a small sum of money, a valuable gold watch, and a set of diamond studs. The police did not credit the story of Mr. Wheatley, but his friends to this day express the opinion that he was robbed. He was taken to a hospital, and leaving it without a goodbye to his wife, disappeared. Then it was discovered that he was a defaulter to a large amount. Detectives who were put upon his track found him at Hendersonville, a small mountain town of North Carolina, but found him on his death-bed. He had entered Hendersonville last winter, ragged, foot sore, and sick. He worked, though and stayed in the town, where he made the acquaintance of a woman named Josephine Bond. Her relatives were in good circumstances. A warm attachment quickly sprang up between Mr. Wheatley and Miss Bond. Although the former was somewhat eccentric in his behavior, his acquaintances attributed it to his illness, and had no idea that he was demented. Mr. Wheatley's illness grew upon him. He suffered from Bright's disease of the kidneys. Miss Bond frequently visited the house where he boarded and tenderly nursed him. Her attentions gave rise to some scandal and in order to stop the gossip Miss Bond proposed to Mr. Wheatley that they should be married, and that he should be taken to her house. The insane fugitive readily assented and when he was in a dying condition a clergyman was summoned, and the ceremony was solemnized. Mr. Wheatley was then borne to Miss Bond's house on a bed, from which he never stirred until his death. The woman he had wedded tenderly nursed him until his demise, and then his remains were buried in the village church yard. An intimate personal friend of the former millionaire, hearing of his sad end, has just brought the body to Brooklyn, and interred it in Greenwood Cemetery.

WOULDN'T HAVE HIM FOR A PALL BEARER.

(From the Pittsburg [Pa] Telegraph.)
Some time ago a citizen of this place was very ill. He fell into a stupor, which lasted three or four days. He was carefully watched by his wife and one or two ladies from the neighborhood. One afternoon the attending physician said he could not live through the day, and the sorrowing wife, with a view to having everything in readiness for the end, held a consultation with her friends as to the arrangements for the funeral. The conversation was held at the bedside of the dying man, and in a short time all the details were arranged except the names of those who should be asked to be pall-bearers. Three or four young gentlemen had been selected, when the wife said in a sobbing tone, suitable to the occasion, 'How would Mr. so and so do?' 'Oh, he would do nicely,' echoed the chorus of friends; he's such a nice young man. There was a sudden movement under the coverings of the bed, and the dying husband slowly raised himself on one elbow, rubbed his eyes, and said in a weak voice, 'No, he won't do. I ain't going to have that fellow as one of my pall bearers.' The ladies were astonished at this revival of the sick man, but the wife laid him back on the pillows, and said soothingly: 'Never mind, dear, don't worry. This is a matter that need not trouble you. It is a sad duty which we have to perform after you are gone.' 'No it isn't,' said the husband crossly. 'That fellow isn't going to be one of my pall bearers. I don't like him, and I never did, and if you are going to have him I'll get well see if I don't. Again he fell back in the bed and became unconscious, but in a few hours there came a change for the better. To day he walks the streets as hale and hearty as any man.

It is easier to rectify whiskey than it is the ways of those who drink it.

Ayer's Ague Cure.

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

This is a compound remedy, prepared with scientific skill from vegetable ingredients, which rarely fails to cure the severest cases of Chills and Fever and the concomitant disorders. Such a remedy the necessities of the people in malarious districts demand. Its great superiority over any other medicine yet discovered for the cure of Intermittent, Remittent, or Bilious Fevers, and those who take it are free from danger of quinine or any injurious effects, and are as healthy after using it as before. It has been extensively employed during the last thirty years in the treatment of these distressing disorders, and its efficacy has been its success. It has gained the reputation of being infallible. It can, be safely recommended as a sure remedy and specific for the Fever and Ague of the West, and the Chills and Fever of the South, which, once broken up by it, do not return until the disease is again contracted.

The great variety of disorders which arise from the irritation of this poison, such as Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Erysipelas, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Spasmodic Affections, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and derangement of the Stomach, all of which become intermittent or periodical, have no speedy remedy than AYER'S AGUE CURE, which cures them all, and protects the system from future attacks. As a preventive, it is of immense service in those communities where Fever and Ague prevail, as it stays the development of the disease if taken on the first approach of the preliminary symptoms. Travelers and temporary residents are thus enabled to defy these disorders, and few will ever suffer if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity, it is an excellent remedy; it stimulates the organ into healthy activity, and produces many remarkable cures where other medicines fail.
