

THE GLEANER.

GRAHAM, N. C., JAN. 16, 1882.

Happenings at Home.

Miss Ada Denny has been sick for about a week.

Thanks to Gen. Seales for a copy of the Congressional Directory.

A sight of the sun last Wednesday made glad the heart of the average citizen.

A colored congregation of the Christian church was organized in the court house yesterday.

According to the census, the area of Alamance County is four hundred and thirty square miles.

Miss Clara Summey, of Asheville, is visiting her brother, the pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Miss Lula, daughter of Jas. H. Holt, has been sick several days, and is now lying at the point of death.

We are permitted to announce the death of Clem. C. Curtis, which occurred last Thursday. An appropriate obituary will be prepared at an early day.

Jas. M. Turner has got the Gleaner that takes. It is the "Morning Star." With each package is a holder. All you need do is puff the golden leaf call on Jimmie.

We are willing to wager that there is more mud to the square foot of surface on the streets of Graham than any other town in the State, except the principal thoroughfares of Raleigh.

Extra bargains in heavy brown and white Bed Blankets, also Gents all wool Under Shirts at Yeargan, Petty & Co's., of which Tom White would be pleased to give his friends the advantage.

GOLDEN DAYS, published by James Elverson, Philadelphia, Pa., is one of the largest and best magazines published for boys and girls. It is highly endorsed by leading newspapers and prominent clergymen. The price is three dollars a year.

The skating fever has reached Graham, and now we have a rink in full blast. The girls have a fine time practicing every afternoon, if we may judge by the noise they make. If we were not blessed with steady nerves, we couldn't write locals so near by them.

Our Pleasant Grove correspondent must have been suffering with a sour stomach caused by eating too much dinner, when he wrote the article that appears in another column. If we know him as well as we think, we can venture the opinion that he wasn't in as good humor as usual when he penned those lines.

The name of our townsman Mr. J. W. Harden, has been mentioned in connection with the office of collector of this district. In the event of any change in the administration, we should be pleased to see him occupy the office. The President could not make a better selection among those who are aspiring for the place.

On last Thursday, the knights and ladies of the birch rod and spelling book danced up before the county superintendent to make known to that functionary their qualifications for teaching public schools. Thirty applicants were examined eighteen white and twelve colored. Certificates have not yet been awarded.

We imagine that the average reader thought the family sketched in these columns last week, a large one. That is what the printer thought; for he made it read seventy when the writer intended it to be twenty. Moral: Write plain when you prepare articles for the newspapers if you do not want mistakes to happen, and don't blame the printer for your own carelessness.

Christmas has gone; but Forbis is still in Greensboro, and he keeps on hand a big stock of furniture, of all kinds, qualities and prices. Everybody can be suited in style and price. Two floors are literally crammed with furniture. Complete outfits can be bought to fix up a house from cellar to garret. Don't forget Forbis & Bro. when you want goods in their line.

ABOUT TO FREEZE.—If our paper fails to reach its numerous readers next week, they can blame our wood promising subscribers for it. A few of them have paid up; but others have complacently listened to our appeals, and left us to get along the best we could. If some delinquent would come in and pay his subscription we might buy a load, pay for cutting it up and have a quarter left for the printer.

REVENUE SALE.—On last Friday, the whiskey and stills seized by the government as the property of John P. Albright, were sold at public auction. Buyers from Hillsboro and other places were present, as well as a number of interested spectators who were not buyers. Samples were more numerous than purchasers. Among the former might be found more than one who could not raise money to buy a quart; but that seemed to be no objection to testing the merits (?) of the article.

THE LITERARY 'REBELLION.'—Mr. John B. Alden, who organized the 'Literary Revolution,' which has given the people the best of books at such wonderfully low prices, does not give up the fight with the failure of 'The American Book Exchange,' which failure, he claims, was in no respect the result of selling books too cheaply, but was caused by the combination of publishers and booksellers against the enterprise, infamous and baseless slanders being scattered broadcast culminated in a 'panic' among the creditors of the institution, causing a 'run' which resulted in the failure of the company, just as it had often caused the failure of banks or other institution perfectly solvent under ordinary conditions. He and other friends of the enterprise have organized 'The Useful Knowledge Publishing Company,' and a literary 'Rebellion' which proposes to carry on the fight. The first work published by the new company is a beautiful edition of Macaulay's 'Life of Frederick the Great,' which they sell for the marvellously low price of 20 cents, neatly bound in cloth. The company proposes to be in immediately the publication of a series of cyclopaedias—one of history, one of biography, one of science, one of choice prose literature, one of poetry, and one of religious literature—each of which cyclopaedias will be in several large octavo volumes of over 1000 pages each, at the price of $1.25 per volume, in cloth binding, and will also be published in numbers, at only two cents per number, being considerably below even the 'revolution' price! They will send specimen pages and catalogues free, and friends of choice literature at low prices will be sure to show them with postal-cards, at least. Address: THE USEFUL KNOWLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, 163 William Street, New York.

SIATING.

Mother, may I go out to skate?
Yes, my darling child,
But don't you try the figure 8,
For it will surely fool you.
Just as you make the lightning whirl
To show your springy muscle
The boys will see a foolish girl
Sleigh-riding on her bustle.

BOLD BURGLARY.—Last Friday evening, W. F. Gant, of J. J. Long & Co., closed the store to go to supper about six o'clock. About fifteen minutes later, George Durham, who occupies a room over the store, entered at the front door, a door going to the rear of the store, found the back door opened. An investigation showed that the store had been entered, and the cash drawer wrenched from the counter and carried off. A short time afterwards, the drawer was found in the vacant lot opposite the residence of A. Tate. The money was all gone; but the valuable papers belonging to the firm, were found intact. The entrance was effected by boring a hole in the door and removing a wooden bar which was the only fastening. The amount of money stolen is not known; but it is supposed to be between fifty and one hundred dollars. Henry Swan, colored, was arrested on suspicion; but there being no evidence to connect him with the crime, he was discharged.

Letter from Pleasant Grove.
[Correspondence of the GLEANER.]
It is this communication smells a little frosty, do not wonder at it, for we have been for several days, like most of our neighbors, engaged in stripping frosted tobacco. The coolness cannot be attributed to any nipping frost that has ever blighted any political aspirations of ours. We were born and reared in the old whig atmosphere, and it may safely be inferred that we have never entirely gotten rid of its conservative influence.

In spite of our life long devotion to the Union, and our good raising, we rushed headlong into the war for disunion. We served the secession cause faithfully, shed our blood on more than one battle field, spent all our substance for it, and gave it four years of faithful service. With the light we then had, and the influences bearing upon us, we could not well have pursued another course.

The close of the war found us a prisoner on Johnston's Island, a thousand miles by railroad, from home. As one of the conditions of our release, we were required to agree to the Union, and never to take arms against her. Since then we have faithfully stood by the Union and carefully avoided every institution or order having for its aims or ends opposition to regular constituted authority. We cast in our lot with the Democratic party, at one time called the conservative party. It embraced them and still embraces the wisest and best men in the South. But when we joined the party we did not agree to shut our eyes and ears and go it blind: we still reserve to ourselves the right of free speech, the right to approve or disapprove of the public acts of our public men.

We hold that the Democratic Convention did not act very democratically when it placed the power of appointing magistrates in the hands of the Legislature and Superior Court Clerks, the election of county commissioners in the hands of the magistrates, and the appointment of school committees in the hands of the county commissioners. In your last issue, you struck the right key in suggesting that the election of magistrate and county commissioners be remanded to the people. We would further suggest that school committees and county superintendents ought to be elected in the same way.

The office of State Senators and Representatives being higher than those referred to it, would seem that the people have sense enough to elect the higher officers might be entrusted with the election of the others.

The convention made another blunder in reducing the number of Supreme Court judges, Justice to the people and public necessity demand that the number be increased.

The majority of our magistrates are Democrats, and they as a body make a blunder when they abolished the office of County Treasurer, merging it into that of Sheriff. We think that they blundered again when they refused to pay George Stafford a reasonable sum for building Cedar Cliff bridge. We think that our State officials blundered when they sold for a nominal sum, our railroads and their franchises, or rather gave them away.

Now I know that it is very easy to find fault, but hard to remedy evils; but a word to the wise is sufficient. Let the Democratic party be wise and return to its first and true principles, and all will be well. If not, the scepter will fall from its nerveless grasp, for the party will be dead, and upon its tomb stone may be written: "Died by his own hands." B. F. W. Jan. 13, 1882.
