Dick and I were mates that night in a two hours' anchor watch, and I found him remarkably well read for a foremast hand. He appeared alive to every thing of importance in British history; but his heart was with the sea, and his brain seemed marked like a marine chart. 'I believe,' he said, 'the very gales were harder once than they are now. At least it seems so, as we read of them. Right bere, at the very place we are now swimming at anchor, Admiral Beagmont was lost, in 1708, with thirteen ships of war. That, you know, was in the great Louden storm, where there was a comwas piled with wrecks. There has been some terrible disasters between here and Land's End,' he continued. 'You've seen the Rocks of Scilly, no doubt - saw them as you came up the channel in this spring into the weather rigging, and, in ship. Well, you know it is on them a moment, over she went, with her great that Admiral Shovel was lost, with the Association, the Eagle, the Romney, and the Firebrand. Hardly anybody was saved, for though it was almost calm, there was antremendous swell-a kind of fog swell.'

. av 1 "Did you ever meet with any accident

"Oh, yes; the very first ship I sailed in vent upon the Goodwin Sands, and I drifted on the top of the deck's canin away over to the coast of France, for the wind was northwest. It was in 1870, while the Prussians were there.') He would say little about his past life except to regret that it had been wasted, 'I, meant to go home before now,' was his remark; 'but shipmate, you know what a wild sailor is !'

'How long since have you seen your olks?' I asked.

Why don't you go and see them? What whatevor Mr. Yule says! I'll shoulder tive.

should she continue to run longer with her three topsails.

A thickness of the atmosphere torbade our seeing more thas a mile or two in any direction.

What does he heave to here for? asked Dick. Why don't he make sure of his offing? He might carry the lower of the office of the indicative of the ower is and a rested foresail, in spite of they were now going the second state of the second se to without knowing whether he's right or wrong. Chaps, I've been here before ! I don't believe the ship Switzerland is out of the English channel yet !! The gale presently blew much harder, fairly Leating down the sea, and causing the ship to lie over at a fearing steep angle.

At length, sure enough, we all had to vards awashing in the foam.

In this position she remained half an our, when the air to leeward becoming. a little clearer, we saw in that direction a line of tall, gray cliffs, upon which the spray was flying fifty feet hight, At this sight the mate lost all presence of mind. "Cut away the rigging with your knives I' he sang out. 'We must get rid of the masts to light the ship. Cut away the mizzen shrouds and the main topmast backstays! Let the lore-rigging stand !'

The idea was preposterous; yet some of the sailors had already snatchd their heavy sheath-kaives, when Dick should with a voice that up tempest could drown ; being anable to read or write or speak 'Avast, avery one of you! Don't cut a our language correctly; spunyaru! Nothing can save us if you do that! The gale lulis a little and the

a fine slipt, statiw ritkem area

The New York Herald, which devotes most of its space to news, has published a brief editorial on woman's heataches, which is certainly more suggestive than many of the articles in that paper. One principal reason why women suffer unore than men with headache, is the fact that heir life is largely indoors, and they are not able to take so much physic-al exercise. There is very liftle complaint of headache at summer resorts, where the windows are always of the advance a brief editorial on woman's he the windows are slwaysoten, and games and excursions constantly tempt people into the open air. Guie who ride, row, sail, and shoot, seldom have headache, and the same is true of these who: work In fields, as women in many countries do, Heatlaches might be almost banished from civilized society by a wise and carstul system of physical training and a rational system of diet. We ought to be ashawed of having a headache as of

One of the best and most appropriate things we have heard it a long time, ec-ouried last month first neighboring town. It was court week, the last day of the term, the court was the last in the district, the Correctment bolichays were near at hand and averabedy, indge, jury and floers were all in a burry to Let away. at hand and averabedy, isdge, jury and "ficers were all in a burry to get away. Just previous to the atjournment of the court. Capt. Swift Galloway, the solici-tor for the district, arose to his place, his tall figure overlooking flose around him, pointing his long forefinger in the dr. and to that deep separately voice which he sometimes affects, he said. 'May it please your Honor, I move that the cerk of $1000 a. d here the speaker turned his head, and pointing his floger at Mr. 8 and to the district of the solid of $1000 a. d here the speaker turned his head, and pointing his floger at Mr. B. said, 'I have stready taken judgment aris ov bine. He annat either get, mar-ried in thirty days or go to jult.' There was an increase of laughter which amouned to an immense shour, in which everybody joined, when Mr. B., who, by the way, is a gallant gentleman and au immense favorite everywhere, pulling his tall figure out of his chair, made a very protound bow to the court.
