OUB WASHINGTON LETTER. From our Regular Corresp

WASHINGTON, April 23, 1892. Mr. Harrson appears to have been brought to a realizing sense of his situation by the speech of Senator

Teller, of Colorado, charging him with using his efficial influence to control the votes of the Representatives and Senators on the affver question, and with being allied with the money hage. of Wall street against the interests of the people, for since that speech was delivered he has stated positively that unless something should occur to bring alimt a change in his mind he would shortly take occasion to state formally that he would not be a candidate for a econd term. This decision was not, however, alogether due to Mr. Teller's speech. The fact that he cannot possibly be elected if he is nominated has been thrust upon Mr. Harrison from all quarters recently, and he has at last realized that is is true. Platt and Warner Miller both agree that he cannot carry New York, Quay and Cameron admit that his nomination would make Pennsylvaria dou'tful ; Indiana republicans say he would have no hance of carrying his own State :

men who know have told him that it was doubtful whether he could carry a year was reduced to $50,000. slugle one of the Pacific States, and all republicans expect to lose several of the northwestern States. Is it any wonder that with this outlook he bename discouraged and concluded to dignity?

The administration having made fizzle of its attempt to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with Mexico the House committee on Foreign Affaire, believing that "grographical location, dmilarity of institutions, and community of commercial interest : wou'd seem to justily every reasonable effort to promote close trado relations," has reported favorably a resolution providing for an international commission. three members to be appointed by each Government, to negotiate a reciprocity

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27, 1892. Mr. Harrison did not return from his sisit to New York feeling in a very good humor. The cgotism of the man is so great that he expected to have secured pledges of support from the New York bosses, and his failure to do so made his disappointment correspondingly great. The fact was nmmented on here that on the day he was in the Metropolia the republican dailies of that city, as if by agreement, were full of talk about the probability of Blaine atter all becoming the caudidate. Mr. Harrison must have regard ed this as significant ; it was certainly so regarded here. Whatever the outcome, it is apparent to even the most mount observer that the Harrison boom is rapidly losing ground here. The Naval appropriation bill, recently passed by the House, has been reported to the Senate with amendments argely increasing the appropriations for new ships. Senator Danicls' amendment appropriating $300,000 for the international paval review next

Cure Clover Hay. The thick steps of a rank growth of slover make it hard to cure by the ordinary means of exposure to the sun. Long before these stems are dried through, the tender, thin leaves will be shrivelled up and broken off. This necessitates curing clover by heatog, and with as little stirring as pos sible, and that only when freshly cut. The best way is to follow the mower with the hay tedder without the least interruption, and then while only the leaves have dried, rake the clover and put it in cock. It may seem dry because the leaves will rustle, but leave it twenty-four hours, or if need be, thirty six or forty-eight. Then open and it will be found molat inside. The moisture has come from the stems. and when this has dried off the bay will be cured sufficiently to go into the barn or stack. The slight heating which hay thus gets not only does not injure it, but really makes it more paintable to stock.

The coarsest clover cured thus will bo taken more greedily than that grown so thin and fine that it can be cured without heating. It is sweeter and more nutritious, as well as more palatable, than clover that does uot go through the beating process or that is put in large stacks without being previously put through the sweat. and thus subjected to more violent exclusion bill, which was passed by fermentation that b'ackeas and ruins it. When clover turns black it is a sign that heating ha chauged to coal or carbon much of the more valuable nitrogenous nutriment that it original ly possessed.-American Cu'tivator.

Cutting Clover Enrly.

This year of all others in the West the farmers should out their clover early. Be sure to cut it before the seed is formed. There is a Phys'ological law in this that will help the farmer if he is wise chough to know it. Clover is a bicuulal-one of those plants that commences to die when it hus once produced seed. Here is the point: By cutting before the seed forms you can cut two crops in one season and still keep the root alive. At sast it will not die because its purpose has been fulfilled. This year we shall need all the hay we can get. Skiliful management of our clover meadows will give us a lare additional yield of hay and have the roots right for the next season. That wise farmer the late Hiram Smith, once showed us a
