SAYS FAREWELL.

Captain Morou Kisses His Men Down the Line.

AN AFFECTING SCENE.

The Ragged and Miserable Spanish Prisoner Wept The Muster Out of Cervera's Men.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 11.—The Spanish prisoners who were brought to this port in the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis, from Santiago, numbering 692 of the men who formed part of the crew of Admiral Cervera's fleet, are to-night sleeping peacefully and in comparative comfort in the new barracks erected for them on Seavey's Island. Among them is a guard of 125 marines, the pick of the marine barracks on the Atlantic coast. It was a pathetic sight from beginning to end, and such as would bring tears to many eyes. The poor, wretched creatures struggled up the hillside, clad for the most part in rags, some of the men being covered only with the fragments of a table cloth, or a blanket, while others had on portions of what was once a uniform. When the men landed, some of them were so weak that they could not stand and lay on the ground until stretchers were brought, and by the aid of their comrades were carried to the main road, where they were placed on the grass.
Many of the prisoners had wounds that were still unhealed and their heads and arms showed the effects of the terrible battle in which they fought. The crew of the Cristobal Colon were landed in a body. They were better clad and evidently better fed than the other men, for they bore a resemblance of the Spanish sailor in make-up. Thirty members of the Colon's crew, however, were severely wounded, and had to be carried on stretchers.
The unloading of the motley crowd was witnessed by thousands of people on shore and in boats, and it may be said with all sincerity that during the two hours occupied with the task not a sneer or a jeer was heard.
The most interesting part of the landing of the men was the duty performed by Captain E. Diaz Morou, of the Cristobal Colon, the once hearty and jovial officer, the favorite captain of the Spanish navy, standing on the height near where the man came ashore, clad in a tattered uniform of white duck trousers and blue coat, book in hand, the mustering officer of the Spanish prisoners. His heavy voice called out the names of the prisoners and credited each to the vessel to which the individual was once a member.
When the muster out, as it seemed to be, was finished, the men were formed in line and marched into the temporary barracks which will serve as a prison for them. Of the number landed 40 have been taken to the hospital, suffering from the most part from wounds, while not a few are victims of minor ills.
One of the most touching incidents of the day was the farewell Captain Morou took of his crew before he went back to the St. Louis. Few who saw the tenderness with which the former big hearted and jovial commander walked down the line and affectionately embraced each seaman as if he was his only son, could refrain from tears.
Capt. Morou turned to the American officer and asked permission to say a few parting words to his men. The request was readily granted, but Capt. Morou, instead of making a formal and eloquent address to the line, walked up to the man at the head of it and taking him warmly by the hand, tenderly kissed the grim sailor on the cheek. When the men saw the action of their commander, they wept as if their hearts would break, and as the captain walked down the line, shaking each by the hand and kissed each sun-burned cheek, each man threw his arms around the commander's neck and gave him a hearty embrace.
When finally the captain reached the end of the long line, he turned and in a voice shaking with emotion, said a few words of farewell to the crew as a whole. As he finished the half-clad man surrounded him, grasping his arms and legs, all trying for one last embrace.

Native Accounts of the Creation—The Climate of Paradise.

Only think of it! Now we can indulge in the "climate of Paradise" without departing from the jurisdiction of our own president. Convivial gentlemen in the future may substitute poi for cocktails or chew betel nuts without losing their reputation as patriots.
And the glorious flora we've adopted! Even the city of Honolulu, the capital of Oahu, is scattered over miles of gardens, orange groves and forest trees. Annuals in Europe become perennials in these blessed isles, where the traveler's palm stands ready to quench the thirst, and the banana flourishes there like the bay tree. The gigantic halapepe, with its pandanus-like foliage, is also ours.
Then think of the exquisite joy of looking into our own volcanoes; why it's looking into nature's very crucibles. If an eruption is on the bills we'll have fireworks without any expense, and no "fizzes" either. These volcanoes should immediately be put in training for the Fourth of July, else they may forget the date. What use are even prime volcanoes which can't be depended upon.
HAWAIIAN LEGEND.
The natives think little of the way most of us have of accounting for the existence of these delightful islands, insisting rather that Manu fished them up with a hook from the place McGinty went to. Pele is the goddess of volcanoes, and at times has been guilty of gross neglect of her duty. Odd, too, that she hasn't got the hang of them, since gods have existed since the "Time of Night." One of the duties of the priesthood, by the way, was to remember the legends of the gods. They also exorcised evil spirits for consideration. And, speaking of spirits, the earth, sky and sea used to swarm with them, until the poor native hardly dared set his foot down for fear of fracturing the spirit of an ancestor.
Judging from an expurgated folk lore, the Polynesians probably emigrated from Asia 500 years before Christ. During the deluge their ancestors took to canoes instead of the orthodox ark; but a woman was made from a rib of the first man.
THE ORIGINAL NAME.
One is glad to know that their original name, Sandwich Islands, was given them, not because of the natives' cannibalistic tendencies, but rather because Lord Sandwich was the patron of their discoverer, Capt. Cook. Cook, by the way, discovered them while sent on a voyage to observe the transit of Venus in 1778, so, of course, the Hula dancers came as a surprise to him. Something of a come-down, eh? The chief christened him and his sailors Haolis (white hogs), which wasn't so far off, in view of their subsequent actions, though the chief meant it as a compliment. However there was a chance for improvement in the natives themselves which they have embraced. Though above widow murder, patrieicide and cannibalism, morality, war and infanticide were harder to resist. The missionaries who took them in hand in 1820 found they had already deserted their national gods.
A BAD PLACE FOR FISHERMEN.
"If you move to the new part of our territory you must forewear fish stories, for, though mollusks abound, the streams are destitute of fish. As for birds, though they have forty species, none of them sing. This will be awkward for masculine admirers who have been wont to compliment their songstress friends by saying, "Madame, you sing like a bird." It is the poor bird which has two exquisite yellow feathers under its wings which has gone toward the making of royal robes. In the line of reptiles they are only three small lizards, and of indigenous mammals only the mouse and the bat.
A good share of their money came from sandal wood, which they sold to the Chinese at the rate of 135 pounds for ten dollars.

WEEKLY WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15, '98.
Had there been less monkeying with flags of truce and more cooperation between Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson in the campaign against Santiago, the Washington officials would not now be nearly frightened out of their wits by the appearance in the field of Spain's long expected ally, "Yellow Jack." While our army and navy were waiting for the Spanish army in Santiago to surrender, the Spaniards were hurrying refugees out of the town into our lines, with the knowledge that some of them would be certain to carry the yellow fever along with them. It was probably owing to the panic in which some of the officials were thrown by the news that the yellow fever had made its appearance in our army and that it was allowed to become public. But not one word can be had officially as to the extent of the outlook or in what portion of our army it is, further than the admission that there are fourteen cases in the field hospital and some additional cases elsewhere. This is one case in which the censor does more harm than good. Since it is known that the yellow fever is in our army, it would be much wiser to allow the exact facts to be stated than by suppressing them to cause the public to imagine it much worse than it really is. There can be little public rejoicing over the taking of Santiago until our people are assured that is no danger of yellow fever becoming epidemic in our army.
Admiral Dewey, the one commander who is not hampered by orders from Washington, has been at it again and the result is another victory, with the demolition of the Spaniards. The victory was won by the cruisers Raleigh and Concord, and without the loss of a man or injury to either vessel. A German gunboat might also have been demolished if its commander had not been wise enough to get out of the way before the Americans began to bombard. This German had set himself up as the protector of this particular port, going so far as to threaten to fire on the insurgents if they attacked it. The insurgents reported that to Dewey and that's why he sent the Raleigh and Concord to capture it. Later the German Commander tried to explain his meddling to Dewey by saying that he acted in the cause of humanity. He wanted Dewey to take charge of a lot of refugees that he had on his gunboat, but Dewey told him he had better keep them since he had taken them.
The Republican Congressional Campaign Committee professes confidence in the election of a sufficient number of republicans to keep in control of the House in the next Congress, but that committee is not acting up to its professions. If so confident of winning, they should be willing to fight fair in the campaign, instead of engaging in trying to bamboozle voters into believing that all the patriotism is in the republican party and that the democrats in Congress tried to obstruct all the war measures that went through Congress. Of course everybody who is acquainted with the facts knows that the democrats, and the populists, in Congress voted for every war appropriation that was asked for. The republican committee has a force of expert word jugglers now carefully going through the Congressional Record for the express purpose of preparing cooked-up documents for campaign use that misrepresent the position of the democrats in Congress during the session just closed. The committee may overshoot the mark and disgust the decent voters who know that patriotism has never been confined to any political party in this country.
Mr. McKinley has found time, notwithstanding the onerous duties

INSURANCE!

I wish to call the attention of insurers in Alamance county to the fact that the Burlington Insurance Agency, established in 1893 by the late firm of Tate & Albright, is still in the ring.
There is no insurance agency in North Carolina with better facilities for placing large lines of insurance, that can give lower rates or better indemnity. Only first-class companies, in every branch of the business, find a lodgment in my office. With a practical experience of more than ten years, I feel warranted in soliciting a share of the local patronage. I guarantee full satisfaction in every instance. Correspondence solicited upon all matters pertaining to insurance.
I am making a specialty of Life Insurance and will make it to the interest of all who desire protection for their families or their estates, or who wish to make absolutely safe and profitable investment, to confer with me before giving their applications to other agents.
Very respectfully,
JAMES P. ALBRIGHT,

See? Had you ever thought of it?

imposed on him by the war to give Senator Cullom, chairman of the Hawaiian legislative commission, a few pointers on the sort of government he wants the commission to recommend for Hawaii. The three American Commissioners are going to Hawaii in the course of the next three or four weeks to confer with the two Hawaiian Commissioners, but so far as deciding upon the form of government for Hawaii is concerned the functions of the latter will be only ornamental. So far as can be learned, Mr. McKinley does not wish anything done to create the expectation that Hawaii will become a state. The problem ahead of the commission is somewhat like that which confronted the white people in some of the Southern States in reconstruction times—the commission is expected to recommend legislation that will give the Hawaii control of its local affairs and at the same time make it certain that the control is exercised by reputable citizens of the islands. In short, that those who set up and maintain the republic shall continue to be the controlling element. There is killing power at the long range.
