Jacksonville, Florida, has gone to work to build up again. The spirit of enterprise is not broken, though there are thousands of heavy hearts. These brave people need help, for many are destitute and have to contend against the wants and hordes worthless loafers.

The school book commission has been contending with the book makers for several days. Some twenty concerns put in bids. There is said to be a book trust and a lot of independent ones, but there are combine men in other lines interested in some of them. Doubtless there will soon be a general combination of the principal houses, as that is the tendency now-a-days.

Our Raleigh Letter

RALEIGH, N. C., May, 13.-During the past few days there has been considerable anxiety in administration circles up at the capitol building regarding the legality of the new revenue act and the fact that the question involves something like a half million dollars of the State's income from taxes, during the next two years, is enough to set the State officials by the ears. The cause of the trouble is the al eged discovery by Wilmington law yers that some of the numerous amendments to the bill made by the Senate (and afterwards agreed upon by the conference committee) were so "material" that the amended bill should again wave been put upon its second and third readings and passed on seperate days in both houses (after being so amended) in order to make its passage legal, according to the requirements of the Constitution, and that the Supreme Court will so hold if the law is attacked and taken into Court.

Lieutenant-Governor Turner, the President of the Senate, appears to be inclined to this view ; indeed, he goes so far as to state that he called attention to this very matter on the them, and sooner or later they will closing day of the session and advised the course suggested above. unless they are put in harness at an The writer of these lines (who reported the proceeding of the Senate, and whose recollection is clear con-Wall Street had a big panic last cerning these amendments, some of ion on the legality or constitutionality of the proceeding, is constrained Last week many towns in North to think that Governor Turner's view and statement are correct. Several able lawyers here hold to the same opinion, Governor Aycock, and other equally as able lawyers as those referred to, take a contrary view, however, and do not think the act invalidated by the failure to again put the bill on its second reading after being amended; that the amendments all related to clauses in the original bill and merely changed original provisions. They add that previous revenue bills, probably all of them of late years, have been passed as the last one was.

AS TO EXTRA SESSION OF LEGISLATURE It was proposed, when the question was first agitated, that the Governor should call an extra session of the Legislature, as the readiest and most effective remedy. TWO NOBLE "OLD ROMANS."

General Ransom's address Greensboro on memorial day highly praised. He is a remarkable man. Though nearly 80 years of age, he is still as crect as an Indian in stature and does not look a day older than 60, while is eloquence is as entrancing as when he served in the U. S. Senate, General Wm. R Cox is another noble 'old Roman' of the same type, and of whom the above words may be applied with almost the same correctness, with the word Congress used in lieu of "Senate." General Cox (like General Ransom again, in that he is now managing his large plantation in eastern North Carolina) is now president of the State Fair Association and is actively interesting himself to give us a fine exhibition next October. In Secretary J E. Pogue he has an especially able and well qualified assistant, and the Fair this year will be a great one.

Governor Aycock will attend the annual Teachers' Assembly which this year meets at Wrightsville (near Wilmington) June 11th to 16th. Anybody can attend as a 'teacher," or "friend of education," for a membership card.

"NOT A CHEERFUL GIVER."

Mr. Röckefeller made a speec recently, in which he said that his greatest joy was in making others give who just wished to hang on to what they had. The public would have some of the same joy if the Standard Oil man could be induced to give up some of his tremendous profits, the gift to be in the form of lower prices for articles of universal consumption, and not alone to colleges and churches. When he says a university can have a hundred thousand of his dollars if it will induce other men to give a like sum, he has an advantage over the public which connot bring any influence to bear on him to give where he would not think of doing so without solicitation-that is to say, in the shape of lower prices for oil and the byproducts of the crude petroleum. The millionaire confesses that he does not give for the pure joy of giving, but for the satisfaction of seeing the purse strings of others loosened. He lives to play the part of a compress by squeezing money from men reluctant to give. He can pay out a few hundred thousand without a sacrifice of an atom of personal comfort and without disturbing his business plans in the least he compels charity on the part of others. We read that the Lord loves a cheerful giver, not that s man is lovable whose gavety comes at the usual low rates by paying $2 from the fact that he makes others

Every woman loves to think of the time when a soft little body, all her own, will nestle in her bosom, fully satisfying the yearning which lies in the heart of every good woman. But yet there is a black cloud hovering about the pretty picture in her mind about the pretty picture in her mind which fills her with terror. The dread of childbirth takes away much of the joy of motherhood. And yet it need not be so. For sometime there has been upon the market, well-known and recommended by
