GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

The Vanishing Trick.

Into the grocer's shop walked an ancient lady with a slow and halting tread and carrying on her arm a basket containing a large earthenware pot with a lid. Placing the basket on the counter, she made various purchases, which she put carefully in the pot, and had her bill made out.

"By the way," she said before paying this, "do you mind keeping this pot with the purchases in it until I come back and pay for them, as I have to buy other things some distance off, and it will be more convenient for me to leave the things here till later?"

This request was willingly acceded to, and, lifting the pot carefully out of the basket, the old dame placed it with an effort, in a corner; then, placing her basket on her arm, left the shop. Hours went on, by day ripened into evening, and evening gave way to night, but the old woman did not return. At last the proprietor thought of examining the earthenware pot to see if by any chance it had its owner's address upon it, and great was his astonishment, not untinged with dismay, to find that it possessed no bottom.—London Answers.

Witchcraft in the Nineteenth Century.

Most people believe that witchcraft among civilized people ended when the "Salem witch mania" ran its course and died out in the year 1692. It did as far as America is concerned, except among savages, but in other countries the belief in the superstition did not die until a much later date, even if it can be truly said to be dead now. In France an old beggar was tortured to death as late as 1807 on the charge of being one who "communicated with evil spirits," and in Spain a witch was burned in 1808. In 1850 in France a man and his wife tortured a suspected witch to death, and nothing at all was done with them by the criminal courts on account of the lingering belief in sorcery. Four years later a witch was drowned in England, and in 1890 one was burned in Mexico. In 1874, 1879, 1880 and again in 1889 witches were publicly burned in Russia, and even as late as 1890 regular judicial trials of witches were held in Prussia, Poland and Austria-Hungary.

Hoped He Wouldn't Grow.

A well known member of parliament was addressing an agricultural meeting in the south of England and in the course of his remarks expressed the opinion that farmers do not sufficiently vary their crops and make a mistake in always sowing wheat.

One of the audience opposed to him in politics asked him what crops he would recommend.

"Everything in turn," he replied.

"Well," said his interlocutor, "if swedes don't come up, what then?"

"Sow mustard," said the M. P.

"And if mustard doesn't come up, what then?"

And so he went on through a whole list of crops until, the M. P.'s patience being exhausted, he put an end to his questioning amid roars of laughter by saying:

"Oh, sow yourself, and I hope you won't come up."

Circumstantial Evidence.

Chick Bruce was a famous Adirondack guide, who accompanied Grover Cleveland on one or two of his hunting trips in those mountains. Chick left Mr. Cleveland sitting on a log one morning while he went out to drive down a deer should he chance to find one. When he came back he saw his distinguished employer still sitting on the log, but with the muzzle of his gun pointing directly at the presidential chest.

"Here," shouted Chick, "quit that, do! What's that? Suppose that gun had gone off and you had killed yourself, what would have happened to me! Darn ye, everybody knows I'm a Republican!"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Large Order.

The proprietor of a certain restaurant "leased" the reverse side of his bill of fare to a carriage manufacturer, who prints advertisements thereon. The other day a customer, in a great hurry, ran into the restaurant, sat at a table and was handed a bill wrong side up by the hurried waiter. The customer put on his pince-nez, curled his mustache with his left hand and shouted in a voice of thunder: "Bring me a fly, a laudan, two victorias and a dogcart. Got any funeral cars?" The waiter fled.—London Graphic.

Judgment Reversed.

Schoolteacher—I am sorry to complain, but Johnnie Jones has been very impertinent. Principal—You must be more patient, Miss Howard. Teach the children to respect you as they do me, and we shall have fewer complaints. What did he say? Schoolteacher—He said you were the skinniest old maid alive!—Brooklyn Life.

The Disadvantages of Schools.

"Why have you taken your son out of school without asking permission?" Father (a grocer) — But they were ruining him. I wish to bring him up to carry on my business, and they were teaching him that there are sixteen ounces in a pound.—Motto Pu Riders.

A Nice Present.

It is said of a champion mean man that the only present he ever made to his wife was on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, when he gave her four yards of cotton cloth with which to make him a shirt.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has scored abroad in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler."

It has been announced that Carlotta Nilsson will appear in Dr. Leopold Kamp's Russian play "On the Eve" at the expiration of her present contract.

William Vaughn Moody, the brilliant author of "The Great Divide," has gone to Europe. Traveling with him is Ridgely Torrence, in whose play, "Heloise and Abelard," Mme. Nazimova is to appear.

Marion Terry is to be the heroine of "The Hypocrites" in London. Charles Frohman will produce the piece in the British capital at the beginning of next autumn, when Miss Terry will be supported almost wholly by English artists.

George M. Cohan's musical comedy for the roof of the New Amsterdam theater, New York, this season will be entitled "The Honey-mooners." This prolific writer-is also at work upon another new musical play called "Young Napoleon."

George H. Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour" and "The Mills of the Gods," has been commissioned by Henry B. Harris to write a play for Robert Edson. The scenes of Mr. Broadhurst's new play are laid, it is said, in a locale never previously exploited for stage presentation.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

Rev. Joseph E. Cross of Nashua, N. H., inventor, artist, writer and founder of a new church, called "The Christian Disciple," is making plans to encircle the world with Bible classes.

Canon Lyon, the blind vicar of Sherborne, Dorset, England, has intimated his intention of resigning his vicariate after forty years' occupancy of it. The canon will be eighty years old in September.

Rev. George E. Eckman of New York declared before the Methodist Social union of Chicago that the gospel must be dramatized to carry on the work of salvation, as this is the day of action, not preaching.

The young men of the Church of Scotland and of the United Free church have formed a joint society in Edinburgh, looking toward a final and formal union of their denominations. They call their club the Church Union association.

Rev. Dr. Aked, the new pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, refused to live in the parsonage, next door, because he is a "fresh air fiend," and now the sign of a woman's tailor hangs from the former parsonage, while Dr. Aked lives in a flat near Central park.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

There are over 100,000 persons dependent upon the New England fisheries for a living. Combined together in this industry on an equal footing is the labor of 40,000 men and a capital of $20,000,000.

Early in the last century about 80 per cent of the male workers of the United States were employed on farms. Modern machinery now enables 85 per cent of these men to do the agricultural work.

A new industry has been started in Australia in connection with rabbits. Nearly half a gallon of oil possessing valuable lubricating qualities has been obtained by a rabbit hunter at Gilgandra, New South Wales, from seventy-three pounds of skins without lessening the commercial value of the pelts.

According to the last report of the commissioner of navigation, the merchant of marine of the United States now numbers 25,006, with a gross tonnage of 6,074,000. If the present rate of construction is not checked the output of the shipyards for the current year will be the greatest since 1865.

TOMATOES IN THE SOUTH.

Hot May Be Prevented by Spraying With Bordeaux Mixture.

Mississippi supports three state experiment stations. Her horticultural station is at McNeill, in extreme southern Mississippi. E. B. Ferris has recently made a valuable report on tomato culture. He says:

"Tomatoes have been grown here every year since 1808, but never successfully from a commercial standpoint, because the first and highest priced tomatoes always rotted. In 1905 these tomatoes were sprayed with bordeaux mixture, and it effected a wonderful improvement. It seems evident that if they had been sprayed earlier and oftener there would have been scarcely any rotten ones at all. Tomatoes ought to be a very profitable crop for these soils if they could be grown of first quality, for unlike many other vegetables an exceedingly rich soil is not so essential to success in growing them.

"The station bought a small canning outfit in the spring and at very little expense, either in the original cost of the machinery or in the labor required to put up fruit, makes use of all peaches and tomatoes that are partially faulty or that come too late to be shipped at a profit. All such canned goods may be sold locally at the highest market prices. The station will plant another year a considerably increased acreage in tomatoes, feeling convinced that with two or more ap-

Corn Well Displayed.

In selecting corn for exhibit at a state or local fair farmers should take only perfect and uniform ears. Frequently corn is ruined for exhibition purposes by being handled carelessly. One of the neatest ways of showing small lots of corn that we have seen is shown above. This was a first prize lot grown, selected and put up by J. L. Kockley of Ohio. Here is a hint for farmers in general, and the suggestion may prove helpful. The husks are turned back and tied as represented in the picture, says American Agriculturist.

Preserving Seed Corn.

The seed corn selected should be placed in a dry, well ventilated room where the ears can be spread out. They should not be piled in a heap, as it is important to expose them to a free circulation of air, so that they will dry quickly and thoroughly without molding. It is a good practice, often followed, to leave a few husks attached to each ear, so that the ears may be tied together in pairs by means of the husks and then hung over poles or wires in the upper part of the room. If convenient racks can be made like bookcases, with slat shelves about four or five inches apart and open backs and fronts, in which the ears can be arranged until thoroughly dried. Only one row of ears should be placed on each shelf. This method allows the preservation of a large amount of seed corn in a small space.—United States Bulletin.

"Did you ever know," remarked the medical authority, "that any one who will constantly practice singing can stave off consumption?" "Even so," replied the hard headed man, "some people might stand a chance of living longer by letting consumption take its course."—Philadelphia Press.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.
