"'Put your foot on the lines and any in the campaign was that he was only art of driving on the prairie-not feet. All the rest is just sit still and look at the scenery."

"She held my hat for a windbreak, and I got my paper pipe together. And then-not a match! I searched every pocket. Not a lucifer. That is more of what I got for being funny and changing my clothes. And then she happened to think of a box she had for traveling and fished it out of her grip.
"'Young lady,' I says, 'until it comes to be your bad luck-which I hope won't ever happen-to be very much in love with a man who won't play back you'll never properly know the pangs of a man that's got all the materials to smoke with except the fire. Now, if I have a chance to do as much for you some time I'm there." "She laughed and crinkled up her eyes at me. 'All right, Mr. Saunders. When that obdurate man disdains me I'll call for your help.' "The place for the man that would disdain you is an asylum,' says I. 'And the only help I'd give you would be to put him there.' She blushed real nice. I like to see a woman blush It's a trick they can't learn. "But I see she was put out by my easy talk, so I gave her a pat on the back and says; 'Don't mind me, little girl. We fellers see an eighteen carat woman so seldom that it goes to our heads. There wasn't no offense meant, and you'll be foolish if you put it there. Let's shake hands.'

"So she laughed again and shook. mean shook. It wasn't like handing you so much cold fish, the way some women shake hands. And Loys and me, we were full pards from date. "I made one more bad break on the home trip.

"'Jonesy will be powerful glad to see you,' says I. " 'Jonesy?' says she, surprised. Jonesy? Oh, is that what you call Uncle Albert?

"Well, it does sometimes happen that way,' says I, and then my anti George Washington blood rose again.

You see, he was kind of lonesome out there at first, and we took to calling him Jonesy to cheer him up and make him feel at home,' I says. "'Oh,' says she. And I reckon she didn't feel so horribly awful about it, for after looking straight toward the Smith and myself. We'd brought up gulf of Mexico for a minute suddenly a herd of calves from Nanley's ranch, she bust right out and hollered. It and we were taking it easy, 'Boys,' seems that Jones cut a great deal of says I under my breath, 'they've made grass to a swipe when he was back home in his own street. It's astonishing how little of a man it takes to do that in the east. We had an argument ence on the subject. 'It's intellect does It,' says Silver Tompkins. 'Oh, that's it, ch? says Wind River Smith. 'Well, I'm giad I'm not troubled that way. I'd rather have a forty-four chest than a No. 8 head any day you can find in the almanac.' And I'm with Smithy. This knowing so much it makes you sick nin't any better than being so healthy you don't know nothing, besides being square miles less fun. Another thing about the eastern folks is they're so sot in their views, and it don't matter to them whether the facts bear out their idees or not. "'Here, take a cigar,' says one of the board of directors to me-a little fat old man, who had to draw in his breath before he could cross his legs-'them cigarettes 'll ruin your health,' says he. Mind you, he was always kicking and roaring about his liver or stummick or some of his works. I'm a little over six foot three in my boots when I stand up straight, and I stood up straight as the Lord would let me and gazed down at that little man, 'Pardner,' says I, 'I was raised on cigarettes. When I was two years old I used to have a pull at the bottle and then my cigarette to aid digestion. It may be conceit on my part,' I says, but I'd rather be a wreck like me than a prize fighter like you.' They're queer. You'd think that that little fat man would have noticed the difference without my pointing it out to him. "Well, I don't have to mention that Loys stirred things up considerable around the Chanta Seechee and vicinity. Gee! What a diving into wanne gans and a fetching out of good clothes there was! And trading useful coats and things for useless but decorating silk handkerchers and things! And what a hair cutting and

"A nice, decent fellow was Eyle Nothing remarkable, you could say, and that was one of his best points. Howsomever, he had a head that could do plain thinking, a pair of shoulders that discouraged frivoling. and he was as square a piece of furniture as ever came out of a factory. More'n that, he had quite a little education, saved his money, never got more than good natured loaded, and he could ride anything that had four legs, from a sawhorse to old tiger Buck, who would kick your both feet out of the sturrups and reach around and bite you in the small of the back so quick that the boys would be pulling his front boofs out of your frame before you'd realize that the canter had begun. Nice horse, Back. He like to eat Jonesy up one morning before Silver and me could get to the corral. Lord, the sounds made my blood run cold! Old Buck squealing like a boar plg in a wolf trap, and Jonesy yell-ing. 'Help! Murder! Police' Even that did not cure Jones from sticking

That's the main and | most as good looking for a man as she was for a woman. They made a to let the lines get under the horses' pair to draw to, I tell you, loping over the prairie full of health and youngness! You wouldn't want to see a prettler sight than they made, and you could see it at any time, for they were together whenever it was possible. Loys was so happy it made you feel like a boy again to see her. She told me in private that it was wonderful how the air out here agreed with her, and I said it was considered mighty bracing and never let on that they proclaimed their state of mind every time they looked at each other. I reckon old Smart Aleck Jonesy was the only party in the township who didn't understand. Kyle used to put vinegar in his coffee and things like that, and if you'd ask film, 'What's that fellow's name that runs the clothing store in town? he'd come out of his trance and say 'Yes' and smile very amiable to show that he thoroughly admitted you were right.

"Well, things went as smooth and easy as bobsledding until it came time for Loys to be moseying back to college again.

"Then Kyle took me into his confidence. I never was less astonished in my whole life, and I didn't tell him 'Well, what are you going to do about it? says L

"He kind of groaned and shook his head. 'I dunno,' says he. 'Do you think she likes me, Red?' I felt like saying, 'Well, if you ain't got all the traits but the long ears I miss my guess,' but I made allowances, and says I: 'Well, about that I don't think I ought to say anything, Still, if I had only one eye left I could see plain that her education's finished. She don't want any more college, that girl don't."

"Think not? says he, bracing up. And then by and by they went out to ride, for Jonesy was good to the girl, I'll say that for him. He was willing to do anything for her in reason, ac cording to his views. But Kyle wasn't in them views; he was out of the pic ture as far as husbands went.

"They came back at sunset, when the whole world was glowing red the same as they were. I reached for the field glasses and took a squint at them. There was no harm in that, for they were well behaved young folks. One look at their faces was enough. There were three of us in the bull pen-Bob and Wind River the riffle."

"'No,' says they, and then everybody had to take a pull at the glasses. "'Well, I'm glad,' says Smithy, and darn my buttons if that'old hardshell's voice didn't shake. 'They're two of as nice kids as you'd find in many a weary day,' says be. 'And I wish 'em all the luck in the world." "'So do I,' says I, 'and I really think the best we could do for 'em would be to shoot Jones.'

"'Man! Won't he sizz?' says Bob. And you can't blame us old codgers if we had a laugh at that, although it was such a powerful serious matter to the youngsters.

"'Let's go out and meet 'em,' says I. And away we went. They weren't a particle surprised. I suppose they thought the whole universe had stopped to look on. We pump handled away and laughed, and Loys she laughed kind of teary, and Kyle he looked red in the face and proud and happy and ashamed of himself, and we all felt loosened up considerable, but I told him on the quiet, "Take that fool grin off your face unless you want Uncle Jones to drop the moment he

"Now, here was a hurrah! Loys, she dasn't cry, for fear of uncle, and Kyle, he used the sinfulest language known to the tongue of man. 'Twas the first time I'd ever heard him say anything much, but he made it clear that i wasn't because he couldn't. "What will we do, Red? What will

"She was willing all right-even anxious. There's some women, and for that matter, who go through life like a cat through a back alley, not caring a cuss for either end or the middle. They would have been content to walt. Not so Loys. She wanted her Kyle, her poor Kyle, and she wanted him quick. That's the kind of people for me! Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, January 18, 1908. Senator Bacon of Georgia introduced in the Senate this week the first comprehensive financial bill which has been presented by the Democrats. In many of its features it resembles the Aldrich bill, but a radical difference is to be found in the provision that in times of finanbanks shall be allowed to issue the emergency currency under restrictions and supervision similar to that now exercised by the federal government over national banks. In the bank circulation be removed during an emergency but he did not press the suggestion to a vote. Senator Bailey, however, has proposed that in place of leaving unlimited discretion to the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Treasurer of the United States to say when and where emergency shall be issued, limitations proportionate to the banking capital and within certain geographical divisions be imposed and the suggestion has met with the respectful consideration of the committee which has asked Mr. Bailey to formulate his proposition in legal language. Senator Aldrich, who has been off the passage of the Culberson resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information relative to the sale of Panama bonds, from day to day, promising that a comprehensive statement from the Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Secretary would reach the Senate on Tablets. They did me so much good Wednesday, was finally obliged to that I bought a bottle of them and permit the resolution to pass as have used twelve bottles in all. To-Wednesday came and there was no statement from Mr. Cortelyou. It is expected to reach the Senate this week, but it is entirely probable that the Secretary will be reticent on the subject concerning which Mr. Culberson's resolution inquires. Mr. Culberson is convinced that when a report on his resolution is made it will show that Secretary Cortelyou has been guilty of violation of the law. Senator Tillman of South Carolina at mass meeting this week called for the purpose of bringing together all associations in the District of Columbia in favor of prohibition, enthused his audience by declaring it his opinion that the people of Washington can have prohibition if a majority of citizens appeal to Congress for it. 'You know what you want," he said, "but the trouble with you is you don't know how to get it." The Senator proceeded to give his hearers one of his practical common sense talks which excited the greatest interest and no little enthusiasm. .
