TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Stonewall Jackson.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

Head, heart and soul were in the fight.

THOUGH his baptismal name was Thomas Jonathan Jackson, the great southern general will be known in history always as Stonewall Jackson. In fact, the sobriquet bestowed upon the Confederate warrior through General Bee's remark at the first battle of Bull Run, or Manassas, "There stands Jackson like a stone wall," became so intimately identified with Jackson's name even before his untimely death in the very midst of the war that it came to be printed without quotation marks.

Stonewall Jackson always stood like a stone wall for whatever he believed to be right. A native Virginian, he believed that Virginia and the south had the highest warrant for seceding from the Union. Jackson believed that secession under the circumstances attending the struggle was ordained of God. To him the Confederate cause was always a sacred cause, and to him the war was a religious war. He was a modern crusader. Not only his head and heart, but his soul was in the fight.

Jackson opened every battle with prayer. Daily and nightly he prayed in his tent, and every man under his command, no matter how irreligious, felt the spiritual uplift of his prayers.

But Jackson fought as well as he prayed. He was a military genius. Historians north and south, American and European, have characterized him as one of the very ablest generals on either side of the conflict. But for his death when the war had still two years to run Stonewall Jackson might have become one of the struggle as the foremost military genius of the civil war. General Lee's estimate of his chief lieutenant in the earlier Virginia campaigns expresses his own measure of the man. When Lee learned that Jackson's left arm had been amputated after being wounded by his own men through that pathetic error at Chancellorsville, a wound which resulted fatally a little later, the commander exclaimed: "General Jackson has lost his left arm; I have lost my right arm!"

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

Ripe scholar and poet of the people.

LONGFELLOW has been called by critics "the poet of the commonplace." Some friends of the beloved American poet have resented this characterization, but others have accepted it with thanks to the critic. These latter hold that it is glory enough for a poet to glorify the commonplace, to see and express the beauty of simple things, as Longfellow has done.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was a ripe scholar, one of the best educated men of his time. He was a reader of many literatures in many languages. Much of his work consists of translations from other tongues, the poet putting into simple and laudible English the thoughts of other men, but introducing also much of the personality of the translator. By far the larger bulk of his writings is original, and much of this work is distinctively of American flavor and inspiration.

Longfellow in "Hiawatha" produced the first great American poem of epic length and treatment. In this work the poet brought the neglected and despised American Indian for the first time into poetic literature. He perceived and gave expression to the romance of the aborigine.

But it is by his briefer poems, the lyrical poems, that Longfellow is best known to the great mass of the people. "The Psalm of Life" has passed into current speech. "The Children's Hour," "The Bridge," "The Arsenal at Springfield" and a score of lyrics in simple and tender strain have become a part of the life of English speaking people everywhere. In the sonnet, one of the most artistic forms of poetic expression, Longfellow still stands unsurpassed in American literature.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON April 11, 1908.

The extraordinary position into which the Republicans in the House have been forced by the minority leader, Rep. John Sharp Williams, and the lengths to which they are ready to go rather than respond to the President's recommendations are the occasion of amazement not unmixed with amusement to every one who has been watching the recent course of events in Washington. The Speaker and his colleague on the committee on Rules have not hesitated at anything and they have finally been forced to adopt rules which demonstrate, as never before, the absolute autocracy which the Speaker enjoys and which so far eliminates roll calls as to relieve every Republican of the responsibility of his acts. The Republican leaders seem to have realized the ridiculous attitude in which they were being placed by a minority of only 167 members, as against 223 Republicans, and they have tried in every way possible to avoid the adoption of these stringent rules, but they were finally compelled to adopt them rather than run the risk of voting by name against measures which the President has recommended and which their constituents demand.

The President does not seem to lose heart at all because of the opposition of his party to his policies and he is seriously considering the advisability of sending to Congress a special message protesting against the authorization of only two battleships when he had demanded four with no other authority to prepare plans but to make contracts at once. Every member of the Naval Affairs committee voted against the President on this proposition except Rep. Hobson, who submitted a minority report and whose service in the navy, before he entered politics, has resulted in a loyalty to the floating portion of the military establishment which nothing can chill.

The Republicans are greatly chagrined over the defeat in the House committee on Postoffices of the Gallinger postal subvention bill, that being the euphonic name for this year's brand of the old ship-subsidy bill. The advocates of the measure thought they had everything fixed for a favorable report on the measure when Rep. Haggott of Colorado "folded his tent like the Arab and as silently stole away" and the measure was laid on the committee table. The friends of the measure are not discouraged, however. They now purpose to offer it as an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill when that measure reaches the Senate and they believe that in this shape it will become a law.

The Senate this week passed the army appropriation bill carrying a total appropriation of about $98,000,000. This bill also provided the increase of pay for the officers and enlisted men of the army and the marine corps. The officers will receive increases varying from 10 to 25 percent, the higher the grade the lower the increase, and the enlisted men will receive an average increase of 25 percent, as much as 50 percent, additional being paid to men who enlist for the third time, or more. Democrats as well as Republicans voted for the increase of the pay of the army for the cost of living has so generally increased that the pay table fixed nearly twenty years ago was by no means adequate to the expenses of officers and men, especially now that the foreign service entails so much expensive traveling.

After the army bill was passed Senator Hale made his annual attack on the cost of the military establishment, an attack which would command greater respect did not Mr. Hale come forward each year and urge steadily increasing appropriations for the navy. Mr. Hale appears, this time, to have been misled by an article stating that Secretary Taft advocated an army of 125,000 men, although the article was wholly unfounded, the Secretary never having advocated this great increase which is the pet scheme of the General Staff.

The antics of the anti-administration, anti-Taft Republicans are affording a good deal of amusement for their Democratic brethren. The anti-administration crowd has been breathing fire against Mr. Taft and declaring that under no circumstances could he be nominated. Steadily, however, the ground has been slipping from under their feet and the staunch supporters of many of them have abandoned their former leaders to espouse the cause of the Secretary of War, or at least to secure comfortable seats not too far back on the big Secretary's hand-wagon. Now the anti-Taft crowd generally admits that the Secretary will be nominated but insists that he cannot be elected. Perhaps he cannot. Very possible, in fact. But there is no question that he is the strongest man the Republicans have and that were it not for his nomination other of the bright galaxy of stars the anti-administration crowd has been putting through their paces, it would mean a walk-over for William J. Bryan.

A Woman Tells How to Relieve Rheumatic Pains
I have been a very great sufferer from the dreadful disease, rheumatism, for a number of years. I have tried many medicines but never got much relief from any of them until two years ago, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I found relief before I had used all of one bottle, but kept on applying it and soon felt like a different woman. Through my advice many of my friends have tried it and can tell you how wonderful it has worked.—Mrs. Sarah A. Cole, 140 S. New St., Dover, Del. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes rest and sleep possible. For sale by Graham Drug Co.
