Rheumatism
I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will strengthen the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, but one that brings back to health again. This is impossible, but I can now easily kill the pain and spasm of this deplorable disease.

In Germany with a Chemist in the City of Bamberg, I found the best ingredients with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without the best ingredients, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I can cure all curable cases of Rheumatism, much dreaded disease. Those men like granular matter found in Rheumatism, gonorrhoea, and pass away under the action of this remedy as they do sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous matter pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no Rheumatism, a great relief to sufferer, which will help. We sell, and in confidence recommend.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON April 3, 1909.
The White House cow, or, as she is facetiously styled by one of the policemen on duty about the Executive grounds, "The First Cow in the land," is receiving a full share of the attention bestowed upon the new administration. The cow is certainly an innovation and has been purchased by Mrs. Taft in order that the President's family may be provided with milk strictly sanitary under all conditions. Hygienic conditions will receive the most scrupulous consideration at the White House and Mrs. Taft believes that pure milk is one of the first and most important essentials.

The leaders of the House of Representatives have decided to amend the Payne bill by increasing materially the authorization of Panama Canal bonds and providing for a sinking fund to pay these bonds at maturity. The Secretary of the Treasury believes he can dispose of a larger issue to greater advantage than he could the issue of $40,000,000 authorized by the bill as reported, and the first step will be taken on his recommendation. Secretary McVeigh has suggested to the leaders, also, that he be given authority to defray the expenses of the canal from the general revenues as long as he deems desirable, but that he be empowered to sell the larger issue whenever he finds conditions for such sale most favorable. The sinking fund provision will set apart a portion of the receipts of the canal as a fund to redeem the issue. One object in taking this step so early is to check the agitation in favor of making passage through the canal free. The claim is made that this agitation emanates from those interests which have always opposed the canal, and which, now that its completion is assured, seek to make it as unpopular as possible by making it a heavy expense with no compensating return to the government. While the Panama Canal will cost in the neighborhood of $400,000,000, it is believed that it will yield a very large percentage on the investment, if proper tonnage is charged, and the leaders of the House desire to insure the devotion of that income to the payment of the bonds which the construction of the canal makes necessary.

The Democratic Secretary of War will not tolerate the "exclusive" clubs which have sprung up among officers detailed at various army posts and barracks through the United States, and in an order, issued through the chief of staff, Gen. J. Franklin Bell, Mr. Dickinson has sounded the death knell of these organizations. The custom has grown up at a number of army posts throughout the country, but particularly in the Department of the East, of establishing exclusive clubs formed entirely of officers of a single organization, or of equal rank, equal wealth, or equal social position. For instance at Fort Myer where both cavalry and artillery are stationed, the officers of the former maintained a club and the officers of the artillery were held not eligible for membership. Those officers who worked their way up from the ranks and had not the good fortune to be appointed from West Point were seldom, if ever, taken into these "exclusive" clubs. Secretary Dickinson believes that the purpose of army clubs is to foster a feeling of comradeship between officers of all branches of the service, and believes that these particular kind of clubs have operated against this fundamental principle.

The tariff situation in the House of Representative shows little or no improvement and efforts made recently to obtain some unanimity of sentiment only revealed wider disaffection than has been apparent heretofore. At a conference this week at the White House between the President and the House leaders, it was suggested to Mr. Taft by the latter that in view of the disaffection in the Republican ranks, he could assist them greatly by reasoning with recalcitrant Republicans who placed their individual fortunes above the interest of their party and who refuse in some instances, to vote for a rule or to enter a party caucus. The President declined to commit himself and repeated what he had said in the past about the Congress taking care of its own troubles.

Many of the state delegations have held meetings this week with a view to formulating specific demands, but so far as affecting any unanimity of sentiment is concerned the caucuses seem to have been a failure.

A bill has been introduced in Congress, by Representative Weeks, of Massachusetts, providing that officers of the navy retired for disabilities resulting from service, shall have for active duty the rank, pay and allowances of officers of the active list of like length of active service. If actively employed for an aggregate period of three years after retirement they shall, after detachment from duty, have the rank and highest retired pay of their grade.

Cleveland and Fanny Crosby.

When Fanny Crosby and Grover Cleveland were fellow teachers in the New York institution for the blind the superintendent reprimanded Miss Crosby for having Cleveland copy a poem for her. In telling of the incident in the April McClure's Miss Crosby says: "Of course I felt very much hurt, and when the superintendent went out Mr. Cleveland said to me: 'Now, Fanny Crosby, how long do you intend to allow that man to harrow up your feelings like this?' I asked him: 'What can I do to stop it?' and he said, 'By giving him as good as he sent.'"

"I was nonplussed, and in reply I said, 'Mr. Cleveland, I never was saucy in my life.' To this he replied: 'But it is not impudence to take your own part, and you never will be taught independence and self-reliance any younger. Now, we will experiment. Come down tomorrow and ask me to copy another poem for you. I will do so, and then you come in as usual, and you will see the consequences; but in any event make up your mind never to let any one impose upon you.' According to this agreement, I went down and asked Mr. Cleveland to copy a poem for me. As was anticipated, the superintendent came in and made the same remark. Then I turned round and said to him: 'I want you to understand that I am second to no one in this institution except yourself, and I have borne with your insolence so long that I will do so no longer; if it is repeated I will report you to the managers.' The superintendent looked at me with the greatest astonishment, but my reply had just the effect that Mr. Cleveland said it would have. I never had any further trouble with the obnoxious superintendent, nor did he assume such a manner toward me or Mr. Cleveland any more."

It is silver-plated, very pretty, and positively prevents all dripping of tea or coffee. The doctor sends it, with his new free book on "Health Coffee" simply to introduce this clever substitute for real coffee. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is gaining its great popularity because of: first, its exquisite taste and flavor; second, its absolute healthfulness; third, its economy — one and one-half pounds 25c; fourth, its convenience. No tedious 20 to 30 minutes boiling. "Made in a minute" says Dr. Shoop. Try it at your grocer's for a pleasant surprise. Blackman & Farrell.

UNKNOWNLY TOOK TURN.

Were Treated by Their Generous Host as One of the Family.

A group of American commercial travellers were telling yarns on the subject of hospitality, when one of them took up his parable thus, says the Queenslander:

"I was down in Louisiana travelling cross country, when we kinder got lost in a lonesome sort of road that over in the children. He had six from four to seven years old, and as there didn't seem to be but one bed, me an' Stony was wonderin' what in thunder would become of us.

"So we unhitched, went in, and found 'twas only a two-room shanty, and just swarmin' with children. He had six from four to seven years old, and as there didn't seem to be but one bed, me an' Stony was wonderin' what in thunder would become of us.

"They gave us supper, and then the old woman put the two youngest kids to bed. They went straight to sleep. Then she took those out, laid them over in the corner, put the rest two to bed, and so on. After all the children were asleep on the floor, the old folk went in to the other room and told us we could go to bed if we wanted to, and, bein' powerful tired out, we did.

"Well, sir, the next morning when we woke up we were lying over in the corner with the kids and the old man and the old woman had the bed!"

Heredity.
A Parliamentary candidate was being heckled. One of the questions had reference to the religious denominations to which he belonged.

"Well," he said, "you have asked me an honest question, and you shall have a straightforward answer. My grandmother was a Scotswoman—a rigid Presbyterian."

Disappointment was shown on the face of the audience, so the candidate proceeded:

"My grandfather was English, and therefore a member of the Church of England."

Still no enthusiasm, but rather the reserve.

"My father, on the other hand, was a good Baptist," went on the desperate candidate, who was still unrewarded by applause. He grew anxious, so hurriedly added: "But my dear old mother, long since dead, was a Methodist."

Instantly all faces were radiant, so he concluded:

"And, gentlemen, I follow the precepts of my dear old mother. I'm a Methodist and I don't care who knows it!"—London Daily News.

A Tip on Botany.
William C. Whitney, Jr., who has spent a year in Indian Territory learning practical mining at Quapaw, described at a dinner party in New York a Quapaw restaurant, says the New York Tribune.

"At this restaurant one evening," he said at his description's end, "two miners near me got into a botanical argument about the pineapple, one claiming that it was a fruit and the other that it was a vegetable.

"In the midst of their argument the waiter entered in his shirt-sleeves and looked about to see what was the cause of the loud talking. 'The waiter decided to let the water settle their argument, and accordingly one of them said: 'Pete, what is a pineapple? Is it a fruit or a vegetable?' 'The waiter, flicking the ash from his cigar, smiled at the two men with pity. 'It's neither, gents,' he said. 'It's an extra.'"

In Case of Fire.
A Germantown man was talking about the famous Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton.

"When Van Dyke was a little chap," he said, "I went to school with him.

"One day, before school closed for the Christmas holidays, we expected a visit from a director. This director always questioned the children about one thing—namely, what they'd do in case of fire. So the teacher coached us all the morning before he came, preparing us finely on the course. 'If he takes it fire should break out.

"Well, sure enough, the director called, but when he got up to address us, he said: 'It is good to be here at this jolly Christmas among so many rosy, smiling young faces. You are a very bright looking lot of children, and I wonder what you would do now if I were to make you a little speech on the best way to celebrate Christmas.' Dyke piped out:

"Form in single file and march out quicky!"

HE STUNNED THE BISHOP.

By His Timely Remark Made That Gentleman Open His Eyes.

At a recent dinner, which was attended by a number of clergymen, President Buckingham, of the University of Vermont, told the following of Bishop Hall, of the Episcopal Diocese of Vermont, in response to some good-natured chaff about the liberal views of the Congregational church and the ease with which almost anybody could join it, says the Pittsburg Post.

He said he had heard of a negro who had many times applied for membership in St. Paul's Church at Burlington, but had not been able to satisfy the Bishop that his state of mind entitled him to admission. The negro had been advised to pray that his spiritual condition might improve.

After doing so he made a new application. The Bishop said to him: "Well, Erasmus, have you prayed as I told you to do?"

"Yes, indeed, sah; I dun prayed an I done told the Lord I want to join St. Paul's Church, and the Lawd he say to me:

"Good luck, 'Rastus; I been tryin' to line dat church twenty years mas'f."

Love Is Blind.

Mrs. Newed—And do you really and truly love me, George?
Newed—Of course I do, my dear.

Mrs. Newed—But some people are saying that you married me just because my uncle left me a fortune.

Newed—Now don't let that worry you, dear, for there isn't a word of truth in it. I'd have married you just the same, even if some other relative had left you the money.—Chicago News.

How It Balanced.
Mrs. Ada Dean, the woman jockey of Grafton, Mass., said the other day of snobbishness:

"The greatest preventive of snobbishness is charity, unselfishness, sympathy.

"I know a little boy, a well-dressed, wealthy boy, who was playing one afternoon with some dirty urchins in rags.

"Johnny," cried the little boy in tones of horror, 'come here at once!'

"And when he came she added: 'Don't you know these are bad boys for you to play with?'

"Yes, mother," he replied, 'but then I am a good boy for them to play with.'"

Slightly Mistaken.
The official in charge of the grounds at Mount Vernon not long ago came upon a woman kneeling before a building not far from the monument. She was bathed in tears. Thinking that the lady was in trouble, the director gently inquired whether he might be of service to her.

"No, thank you," sobbed the woman. "I am not in trouble, but my patriotic feelings overcame me when I first gazed upon the tomb of the Father of His Country."

"Pardon me, madam," said the director with a smile, "but you have made a slight mistake. This is not the tomb of Washington, but his ice house."

Defining a Chemist.
A good story comes from a Swede correspondent. It seems that Berzelius, the great Swedish chemist, made most of his experiments in the kitchen, with his cook as his only assistant.

"What is your master?" asked one of his neighbors.

"Oh, he is only a chemist."

"What is that? What does he do?"

"Oh, he has something in a big bottle, then he pours it into a smaller one, and then again into quite a tiny one."

"And then what happens?"

"Then I throw it away."—London Express.

A generation or two ago men and women worked very long hours and children had to work, too, in order to produce enough to support the workman's family. The growth of capital and the employment of machinery have added so much to the efficiency of labor that long hours for adults are no longer necessary, and the industrial employment of children under fourteen can be entirely dispensed with.—American Review of Reviews.

Grenoble, France, probably manufactures more ladies' kid gloves than any other place in the world. Paris, Chamois and Millas are also largely engaged in this industry.

"I want you to lose no opportunity in getting my arguments to the public," said the candidate.

"All right," answered the workman, "which kind of argument do you want me to handle, campaign book or pocketbook?"

A Poem for Today

THE SIN OF OMISSION

By Margaret E. Sangster

I don't think you do, dear;
It's the thing you've left undone
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts tonight.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear;
The gentle and winsome tone
That you had no time nor thought for,
With troubles enough of your own.

The little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind;
These chances to be angels,
Which every mortal finds;
They come in night and silence,
Each chill, reproachful writh,
When hope is faint and flagging
And a blight has dropped on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great
To suffer our slow compassion
That tarries until too late.
And it's not the thing you do, dear;
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you the bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.

Tillman on Taft.

Senator Tillman was interviewed in Augusta several days ago. He said some very hard things about Mr. Roosevelt and explained why it was that he did not "show up" the president in his true colors. In his opinion "Roosevelt narrowly escaped being a great man, but his want of sincerity and earnestness made him really one of the greatest failures that has ever occupied the White House." We are not sure that this judgment of the senator from South Carolina will not stand, but we are particularly interested in what Mr. Tillman said about the living rather than in his severe judgment of the dead, and in speaking of the wholesome change that has been made at the White House he said:—

"Mr. Taft's administration is going to be like a calm after a storm. He is a patriot, just-minded, big-hearted man. He will be popular in every section of the country. He will bring about an era of good feeling.

We think that it is an altogether just view of the president, and we are glad that Mr. Tillman expressed himself in these terms. What the country needs above everything else just now is "an era of good feeling," and if Mr. Taft shall be able to bring this about he will be a greater man than if he had wrecked all the corporations in the country and shot all the lions in Africa.—Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

Tax Wealth, Not Food.

Philadelphia Press.
The revision of the tariff this year has a double task. The rates must be revised and $100,000,000 of additional revenue must be raised.

The committee on ways and means has been wise in its tariff in leaving out the tax on coffee and imposing a tax on inheritance. It is better to tax wealth than to tax food.

European countries raise a large portion of their revenue by taxes on tea and coffee. England raises nearly half its revenue from duties by taxes on food. Sugar is dutiable in this country, but there is for this the sound reason that the duty protects home-grown sugar, now one-fifth of the whole, and fosters sugar in Cuba. Abolish the duty on sugar and the reduction in the Cuban product would advance the price by more than the reduction from the abolition of the duty.

The McKinley tariff, in spite of this, abolished the duty on sugar and its consumption increased with great rapidity under the stimulus of cheap sugar. If it were not for its protection of the home sugar product and its effect on our insular neighbors there would be little to be said even for the duty on sugar.

New duties on food have no defense. Tax wealth instead of food.
