CARE OF ROADS.

After Good Ones Are Constructed They Should Be Cared For Regularly.

The good road era has begun in many states, and already the steam roller, the piles of crushed rock along the roadside and the digging out of the original roadway are familiar sights in many of the eastern states. The roads built are generally of approved macadam construction, which, completed, are perfect strips of white ribbon running through the green fields and hills of the rural sections.

These roads are perfectly built, and as soon as completed the farmers and other ratepayers contentedly sit back and exclaim, "Those roads are now good for a generation or more without trouble." This is a serious error and one being made in many states. That it is an error is borne out by the dust cloud raised by a passing car traveling at twenty miles per hour or perhaps faster.

Many fail to realize that whenever dust is raised a road is being destroyed. This is particularly the case on smooth macadam surfaces, where there is nothing to hold the dust on the road and where every cross wind blows off any loose material.

As soon as roads are built arrangements should be made to keep them in repair. With roads it is essentially "a stitch in time saves nine." Some dust preventive should be used immediately macadam roads are completed in order to prevent dust.

Oil, tar and many special preparations are now on the market, and the

A WELL KEPT ROAD IN A RURAL DISTRICT. [From Good Roads Magazine, New York.] communities should be educated to look upon these additions as a legitimate part of the road maintenance. California has its oiled roads over which motoring is a pleasure to the motorist and not a dust path to the citizen who happens to be on the road the same day or who has the misfortune to reside along a well traveled highway.

Massachusetts has proved that road treatments are a success and more economical than continuous applications of water, and in England dust preventing is always considered a part of the road problem.

Drink Buttermilk and Live Long.

New York Dispatch.

The famous Metchnikoff was reported some years ago to have found in buttermilk an antidote for old age. The hardening of the arteries, technically known as arteriosclerosis, is due to the invasion of the body by bacteria bred in the large intestine, where, too, the bacteria of typhoid and various other grave disorders find their abiding place. Destroy these hardening bacteria and the arteries remain elastic, as in youth.

Metchnikoff announced that the microbes which developed in souring milk are deadly enemies of those bacteria. Moral: Drink buttermilk and you are up against perpetual youth.

Well, after awhile it turned out that Metchnikoff didn't quite say that old age could be indefinitely delayed by means of milk, because because while we are as old as our arteries, according to an ancient and quite honorable medical dictum, we are old as all the organs that keep us alive, and the kidneys or liver may harden up as the arteries do and kill us off anyway.

But there could be no question as to the amazing nutritive value of buttermilk after all, and the notoriety attending the Metchnikoff theory as popularly misapplied, helped along the buttermilk cult to an appreciable extent. The merits of the drink as a prophylactic became even more conspicuous in the course of the discussion that ensued.

Every physician who was questioned felt constrained to endorse the full truth of the statement made by Metchnikoff, that the excess of lactic-acid bacteria present in the drink constituted the best safeguard any one could have against any invasion of destructive bacteria in the digestive tract. The buttermilk breed of bacteria invariably eats 'em. Then you're eating the buttermilk cohorts alive, and it becomes a steady round of pleasure. Besides that, it tastes good.

All efforts have failed to find a better remedy for coughs, colds and lung trouble than Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough, heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. J. N. Patterson, Nashua, Iowa, writes: "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." Graham Drug Co.

Marriage Superstitions.
Matrimony is surrounded with superstitions, many of which apply only to the marriage ceremony. The wedding ring is made plain and thick only for the reason that its thickness and plainness secure it against breakage, for to break it is the very worst of luck for both bride and groom. White is the best color to get married in, but a widow may marry in any color save yellow. Should a bride drop one of her gloves woe betide her! She must exercise great care in getting in and out of her carriage, and a false step is an ill omen which brings misfortune.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box 25c.

Mother and Child.

Why get up in the morning feeling blue,
Worry others and worry you;
Here's a secret between you and me,
Better take Rocky Mountain Tea.

The Newton Enterprise says that Mr. John Bolick, of Catawba county, hauled a one-horse load of seed cotton—1,325 pounds—to a gin a few days ago and the "turn-out" was 525 pounds of lint. For the bale of lint he received $75.60 and for the seed $9.80—a total of 85.40 for a one-horse load of seed cotton.

A Scalded Boy's Shrieks,

The Supreme Court has granted ex-United States Marion Butler and his brother, Lester F. Butler, editor of the Caucasian, a new trial in the case against them from Guilford county in which they were fined $500 and $250, respectively, for criminally libeling ex-Judge Adams.

Guy O. Burgess, a young man of Thomasville, was killed by a train about five miles from Thomasville Saturday night. He was under the influence of liquor and fell under the train while trying to board it.

Mothers—Have you tried Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea? It's a great blessing to the little ones, keeps away summer troubles. Makes them sleep and grow. 35 cents. Tea or Tablets. Graham Drug Co.

At Hamlet Sunday night Geo. Poston shot Elam McLendon, from the effects of which the latter died next day. Both negroes, and Poston is in jail. Poston was drinking and McLendon was talking to him about drinking and trying to persuade him to go home when Poston shot him.
